"MED FLIGHT" VISIT: Barbara Feuby (center), health teacher at the Broad Meadows Middle School, stands with seventh grade students in front of the Boston "Med Flight" helicopter, which landed in the field behind the school on the last day of classes as part of a "Safety Day" organized by Feuby. The helicopter proved a strong visual aid for 18-year old Cullen Dwyer, who warned students about the importance of wearing a helmet while hiking or rollerblading by telling them of his story: a rollerblading accident at the age of 10 which caused critical injuries and required a med flight to Floating Children's Hospital. Students also learned about seat belt safety and viewed a fire safety video presented by Quincy Fire Lt. Robert Servaes.

Everyone is invited. The fee for non-members of the association is $10 per family.

EPA Kicks Off $260,000 Statewide Beach Monitoring Initiative At Wollaston Beach

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) selected Wollaston Beach as the site to kickoff its Clean New England Beach Initiative, which will provide $260,000 in federal funds to help monitor the water quality of Massachusetts beaches.

In addition, Wollaston Beach was designated a "Flagship Beach" by the EPA, meaning it will serve as a model for other beaches in improving water quality. The other two Massachusetts beaches chosen as flagship beaches were Provincetown Harbor Beach and Salem City Beaches.

"While our waters are dramatically cleaner than they were 20 years ago, we still have too many beaches in New England that are closed too many days in the summer due to pollution," EPA Regional Administrator Robert Varney told those gathered at Wollaston Beach last Thursday for the EPA's announcement. "This situation is unacceptable, especially at high-use urban areas such as Wollaston Beach which was closed nearly one of every three days last summer.

"Today's Clean New England Beaches Initiative will help improve these beaches, making them safer, cleaner, and more enjoyable for millions of New England swimmers."

The $260,000 EPA grant was awarded to the Massachusetts Department of Public Health (DPH) to improve its beach monitoring and assessment program.

"We look forward to working with our federal, state, and local partners to provide safe and healthy beaches," said Dr. Howard Koh, commissioner of the state DPH. "These new funds will allow us to identify effective pollution reduction strategies at these flagship beaches."

MDC Commissioner David Balfour called the grant "another example of the federal, state, and local teamwork which will result in a more informed public, better water quality, and a greater recreational experience for our citizens."

Mayor William Phelan noted his own experiences swimming at Wollaston Beach as a child and called the beach "a jewel" of the community.

"This Beach Initiative with the EPA and the state's beach restoration and seawall rebuilding, together with the sewer improvements the city is undertaking, will improve not only the esthetic value of the beach but also the water quality, so that children of Quincy can once again enjoy Wollaston Beach to its fullest extent," Phelan said.

The $260,000 grant will be used to improve state programs and to fund programs to assist communities and other agencies who manage public beaches. The programs will focus on improving the quality and frequency of water quality testing and ensuring prompt notification to the public when swimming conditions are unsafe.

Due to pollution concerns, Wollaston Beach was closed 24 days last summer.

D'Amico To Pay $2,500 To Settle Issue Over Use Of Campaign Funds

Former Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico has agreed to make $2,500 in payments to settle a dispute involving the use of campaign funds for D'Amico's lease of two automobiles.

According to Brad Balzer, deputy director of the state's Office of Campaign and Political Finance, D'Amico has agreed to make a $2,000 payment to re-fund his campaign account and will also make a $500 payment to the state, thereby closing the books on the matter.

"We have agreed not to pursue this matter any further or make any references to the state's attorney general," Balzer said.

At issue, Balzer said, were payments D'Amico received from his own campaign funds as reimbursement for his use of personal automobiles during his most recent campaign for the Ward 4 seat, which ended unsuccessfully when he was defeated in November of 2001 by Bryan Connolly.

Although such reimbursement is legal, Balzer said there are specific procedures and rules which must be followed but which were not followed in D'Amico's case.

"The records demonstrate that the mileage reimbursement was incomplete," Balzer said.

As of press time, The Sun was unable to reach D'Amico for comment.

Fore River Redevelopment Committee Discusses Traffic Issues, Sale Of MWRA Parcel

Regional traffic issues for the portions of Quincy, Braintree, and Weymouth proximate to the former Fore River Shipyard were discussed last Friday by members of the Fore River Redevelopment Committee during a meeting aboard the USS Salem.

Also discussed was the proposed sale by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) of a 12-acre shipyard parcel once used as a staging area during construction of the now completed MWRA Boston Harbor Project.

Council President Daniel Raymond, chairman of the committee, ran the two-hour meeting, which was attended by, among others, state Rep. Ronald Mariano; state Rep. Joseph Sullivan of Braintree; Maggie Debbie, director of Real Property and Environmental Management for the MWRA; William Walker of Harbor Express; and Ronald Coglian of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

The meeting was followed by a 30-minute boat tour of the shipyard via Harbor Express water shuttle.

City Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon, who recently opted for early retirement and was working his last day in that capacity, addressed committee members, focusing on possible traffic mitigation for the area. Gillon recommended the synchronization of traffic lights along Washington St., the pulling back of curbing at the intersection of Southern Artery and Washington St., and improvement work to the intersection of Quincy Ave.

at East and West Howard Sts.

Debbie updated committee members on the MWRA's proposed sale of its 12-acre parcel of former shipyard property, which includes roughly seven acres of land, five acres of water rights, and a pier.

Letters of interest for the property, Debbie said, would continue to be sought until Sept. 6. Also discussed at Friday's meeting was the possibility of public presentations by those interested in buying the parcel so as to ensure public input into the sale process.

Sullivan, who serves as chairman of the House Transportation Committee, introduced the possibility that a portion of proceeds from the sale be put towards creating a permanent Fore River Redevelopment Authority to oversee development of the larger shipyard parcel, explaining that past committees had been effective but "essentially ad hoc."

"The potential of this waterfront property is immeasurable," Sullivan noted.

Mariano, who also serves as vice-chairman of the MWRA Caucus, agreed, adding its value as one of the few industrial sites left with a deep water port and access to rail lines.

Raymond, who agreed with Sullivan's suggestion of a permanent committee, said one goal of the Fore River Redevelopment Committee was to hammer out neighborhood and community issues in preparation for whatever development proposal at the shipyard turned out to be the successful one.

"We're trying to focus on the bigger picture so that, when there's a real serious proposal, we're ready," Raymond said.

Debbie added that, with the completion of the Boston Harbor Project, the MWRA is eager to sell the parcel to return revenue to MWRA ratepayers, put the property back on the tax rolls, and aid development of the area.

The Fore River Redevelopment Committee agreed to meet Friday, Sept. 13 to discuss what they expect to be many letters of interest in the MWRA parcel.

July 4th Day Of Irony

(This column originally appeared in July, 1992 and has been updated for this week as we celebrate the Fourth of July holiday.)

July 4th, you could say, is a day of irony in American history.

America was born on July 4th and the two men who played major roles in that historic event also died on July 4th -- 50 years later.

Thursday marks the 226th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence and the 176th anniversary of the deaths of its two main architects -- Thomas Jefferson and our own John Adams.

Adams, like Jefferson, was a super patriot.

And certainly a better patriot than he was a prognosticator. He predicted July 2 -- not July 4th -- would be celebrated down through the years as America's birthdate.

Adams made that somewhat erroneous prediction in a letter to Abigail Adams July 2, 1776. In the letter sent from Philadelphia to Abigail here in Quincy, he declared:

"The second day of July, 1776 will be the most memorable epoch in the history of America."

The man who would become second President thought this because the Declaration of Independence was adopted by 12 states on July 2. But, it wasn't signed by anyone until July 4.

And, only two of the 55 signers actually affixed their signatures on July 4th. They were Quincy's John Hancock, who as President of the Second Continental Congress, was the first to sign, and Charles Thomson.

HANCOCK

Most of the others signed the precious document on Aug. 2. But six signed after that. And, Thomas McKean, of Delaware, didn't get around to it until five years later.

Moments in time

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On July 4, 1826, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, the second and third presidents of the United States, respectively, die. It is the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

• On July 1, 1867, the autonomous Dominion of Canada, a confederation of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and the future provinces of Ontario and Quebec, is officially recognized by Great Britain with the passage of the British North America Act.

• On July 5, 1916, children under the age of 16 are banned from New York City theaters due to an outbreak of polio. Some 200 theaters shut down throughout the summer.

• On July 2, 1937, the aircraft carrying American aviator Amelia Earhart and navigator Frederick Noonan is reported missing near Howland Island in the Pacific. The pair were attempting to fly around the world when they apparently lost their bearings.

• On July 6, 1944, in Hartford, Conn., a fire breaks out under the big top of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, killing 167 people and injuring 682. In 1950, Robert D. Seeger of Circleville, Ohio, confesses to starting the Hartford circus fire, claiming he had been an arsonist since the age of 6.

• On July 3, 1971, singer Jim Morrison is found dead in a bathtub in Paris. Morrison, 27, was taking a sabbatical from his hit rock band, The Doors, when he died of heart failure. Rumors abounded that Morrison, tired of fame, had faked his own death.

• On July 7, 1976, for the first time in history, women are enrolled into the United States Military Academy at West Point, N.Y. On May 28, 1980, 62 of these female cadets graduated and were commissioned as second lieutenants.

© 2002 King Features Synd., Inc.

Jefferson and Hancock usually get top billing in the history books when it comes to the Declaration of Independence. Jefferson as its author and Hancock as its first signer. Hancock's signature -- bold and with a fancy flourish so "King George III can see it without his spectacles" probably is the most famous autograph in history.

But Adams played a key, if not as glamorous a role in putting the Declaration together.

Jefferson himself acknowledged that when he praised Adams "... the most efficient agent in procuring a public Declaration of Independence."

Ironically, both Jefferson and Adams died on July 4, 1826 -- the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

Adams collapsed here in Quincy in a wing chair in his second floor study in the Adams Mansion on Adams St. -- the home of four generations of the illustrious Adams family and the summer White House for two presidents.

Adams and Jefferson had had a falling out but reconciled in later years through the efforts of Abigail as a peacemaker.

Among Adams' last words as he lay dying were, "Jefferson survives."

He thought Jefferson had outlived him. But actually, Jefferson had died earlier that same day at Monticello, his home in Virginia.

He was 83.

News didn't travel very fast in those days before radio and television. There were no such things as instant news bulletins.

Adams was just three months and 15 days from his 91st birthday. He survived Abigail, his wife of 54 years, by eight years.

ABIGAIL

He had lived to see his son, John Quincy Adams, become the sixth President in 1825. But Abigail, the first woman ever to be the wife of one U.S. President and the mother of a second, never knew the second honor.

Four days before he died, John Adams was asked to give a holiday toast to his fellow Quincy residents. The old man replied:

"I will give you independence forever."

Asked if he would add to that, he declared: "Not a syllable."

"Independence forever" -- those are words to cherish and remember.

By the way, if you've never been to the Adams Mansion, you're missing a visitor's treat.

The Mansion is under the National Parks Services. The late Wilhelmina Harris as superintendent, gave the Old House her personal loving care. Present Supt. Marianne Peak has carried on that tradition.

They have kept the house in a "lived in appearance."

Strolling the beautiful rooms, you get the feeling that John and Abigail are just out for a little walk and will be right back.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS POSTCARD IS A 1920's view of the Quincy Yacht Club near the end of Houghs Neck. The large portion of the clubhouse in the foreground was originally built on land in 1888. In 1910 it was moved to pilings in the water and the two-story addition was built on the back. Norteman's Pavilion, famous for its shore dinners, can be seen on the left. They were the club's kitchen for daily meals and functions. This over-the-water end of the clubhouse was severely damaged in the Blizzard of '78 but has been rebuilt. In the right background the old city water tower looms from the top of Great Hill. From the Collection of Tom Galvin

READERS FORUM

Concerned For Teachers, Bus Drivers And Monitors

The last public hearing on the school layoffs was a false show of concern by committee members. At a previous hearing, many bus drivers and bus monitors begged the committee to spare their jobs. Not one committee member later voted to keep these jobs. If I have to attend a school where so many good programs have been cut, shouldn't I at least be safe getting there?

One lady brought up some of the problems other communities have had without monitors on their buses. She included spitting, fighting and profanity. "Quincy has not had these problems...yet," she said.

I am a sixth-grader. Teachers have already been laid off in my school. During the meeting I asked myself why we were still pleading for our teachers to be kept, when many have already been cut or dismissed. What caught my ear was when Ms. Bragg started to speak.

"There will be some layoffs. Please understand we don't want to make these cuts. Also understand that there have been sleepless nights for us and very difficult decisions to make."

Hardly think Ms. Bragg's sleepless nights can compare to all the soon-to-be unemployed teachers and all the sleepless nights they will be having.

QHS Hockey Boosters Express Thanks For Support

On Tuesday, May 21, the Quincy High School Hockey Booster Club held its annual awards and scholarship banquet.

The Booster Club wishes to express our sincere thanks and appreciation for the donation by the Sons of Italy for the wonderful facility and the support we have received throughout the year.

In attendance at the banquet were Mr. Keuther, principal Quincy High School; Mr. George Peachy, Mr. Christopher Barrett and family, head coach Robert Sylvia, and assistant coaches Ted Walsh, Mike Feury and Jamie Schatz.

A wonderful time was had by both the varsity and junior varsity hockey teams as well as the families and friends of the hockey teams.

The invocation was presided over by Father English, pastor of Most Blessed Sacrament Church in Houghs Neck. We all enjoyed the plentiful feast provided by George from the Cathay Pacific restaurant.

The Quincy High Hockey Booster Club wishes to thank all who supported the teams throughout the year.

Let Brothers Be Brothers

"Dialogue rather than violence is the way to go!" was the advice President Bush offered the other day to two brotherly nations: India and Pakistan.

His Royal Majesty Abdullah, the King of Jordan, gave very recently the same advice on "Meet the Press" to two other brotherly nations: Israel and Palestine.

I am very elated that the present King of Jordan and the present President of the United States share with me the same Weltanschauung—the view of the world—that I have held for almost 100

I raise cheerfully my drink to the King and to the President and I offer my prayers that other leaders—especially NATO leaders—may adopt the same point of view. Should that happen, all wars, all sanctions and all embar-gues would disappear, and mankind would live as one single God's family, in Peace, Harmony and Happiness.

We should stand united as "fellow Americans" and as "fellow citizens of the world."

5,000 View Adams Shore Bonfire

By PAUL HAROLD

An estimated 5,000 people crowded onto the beach at Adams Shore to view the city's largest eve of the Fourth bonfire. It was lighted by state Rep.

William Jenness.

The bonfire was built under the direction of William Reardon with the assistance of Adams Shore Community Club members Henry Verlicco, Bob Hurney, Al Manty, Henry Bornstein, Jack Thorpe, Jack Fellows and Frank Kennedy.

Francis McGinty was general chairman for the festivities which included a full day of pony rides, parades, and races both on the land and in the ocean.

HISTORIC QUINCY DAY DRAWS BIG CROWD

The city's first Historic Quincy Day, on the Fourth, drew crowds of 3,000 people to the historic sites in the city culminating with a large gathering at the Adams Mansion. There they heard speeches from Superintendent Wilhemina Harris, Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa and Adams descendent Thomas Boylston Adams.

In all, there were 24 direct descendants of John Adams in attendance at the mansion event. The youngest was two-year-old John Adams, son of John Quincy Adams of Dover, a great-great-great-grandson of the second president.

The Historic Quincy Day was sponsored by a number of historical organizations as well as the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

LEO HALLORAN DIES

Atty. Leo Halloran of Wilson Ave., husband of Judge Gertrude Halloran, died at age 59 in Maine on the last day of his family vacation. He was an attorney with the National Labor Relations Board.

Long active in Democratic politics he served one term as state representative from South Boston before moving to Quincy. He served two years as secretary of the Democratic State Committee and four years as chairman of the Norfolk County Democratic League. He also ran for attorney general.

In 1936 Governor James Michael Curley nominated him as the judge for the Second District Barnstable court, but the Governor's Council refused to confirm him.

QUINCY-ISMS

The city council was scheduled to meet in a special meeting to elect a new city clerk. Hattienay Thomas submitted her resignation after serving in the post for 40 years. It was expected that assistant clerk Donald Crane would be elected to succeed her. . . By a vote of 4-3, the school committee voted to fire a teacher at Central Junior High School because of his previous membership in the Communist Party. There was evidence of his current active membership. . . Bethany Church and the First Parish Church announced joint summer services for the 11th season. Rev. George Gilchrist, pastor of Bethany Church, was scheduled to give the first two sermons with guest preachers for the rest of the summer. . . The Navy awarded a contract for $3 million to the Quincy Adams Yacht Yard for the construction of three minesweepers. Yard president Edward Whiting said that the new contract would require the hiring of additional employees, bringing the total number of employees to over 200. . . W.W. Wilson Real Estate offered a five bedroom house in North Quincy for $11,900. . . Eugetto DiBona was chairman for the Ave Maria Council's clam bake at the Braintree Rod and Gun Club. . . City Manager William Deegan said eight of the 17 applicants for the newly created post of director of recreation would receive interviews. The salary was $6,000. . . Henry Chmielinski, Jr. announced he was associated in the practice of law with Raymond Barrett at 1359 Hancock St. . . William Ellis was chairman of the "Fiesta" at Star of the Sea Church, to raise funds for the church building fund. . . Mr. and Mrs. George Dick were married at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy chapel. families with children under the age of five. "Cats" will be the subject of that particular Story Hour which will be held in the children's room of the main library.

Other performers in the Summer Storytellers Series are: Guy Peartree on July 16; The Activated Storytellers on July 23; Speakin' and Drums on July 30; Walks in Peace on Aug. 6; and David Mello on Aug. 13.

All programs will begin at 7 p.m. as will the Pajama Time Story Hours scheduled for the same evenings.

The Crane Library also reminds residents that children can still sign up at any branch for the Summer Reading Club which is trying to break last year's total of 2,172 hours read.

Christmas Parade Seeks Past Theme Winners

The Quincy Christmas

Festival Committee is searching for six past parade theme winners for possible participation in the upcoming 50th anniversary parade.

The committee has the names and addresses of most of the past parade theme winners since the practice began in 1982. However, the following past winners are unaccounted for: Marie Luck of Milton, 1985; Robert

Summer Of Classical Music At Landmark Concert Series

The Boston Landmarks Orchestra, Charles Ansbacher conductor, along with State Street and the city of Quincy announce The Quincy Landmarks Concerts, a series of free summer classical performances.

Said Ansbacher: "We are thrilled to work in a city as rich in history as Quincy, and to partner with organizations who so closely share our vision—to celebrate places of historical and architectural significance while broadening the audience for the arts."

Schedule and repertoire is as follows:

All American Concert: Copland and Gershwin, Friday, July 19, 7 p.m. on the lawn of the Beale Estate at the Adams National Historical Park, 135 Adams St. Concert will feature Copland's Appalachian Spring, Gershwin's Lullaby for Strings, and Copland's Old American Songs featuring soloist Robert Honeysucker, baritone.

Concertgoers are encouraged to bring lawn chair and blankets. It should be noted that food and drink are not allowed inside the Adams National Historical Park. In the event of rain, the concert will be held at Quincy High School.

The Landmarks Concerts for Children, Friday, August 16, performances at 10 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater, 1 Merrymount Parkway. The children's concert features Prokofiev's Peter and the Wolf and is geared toward children ages 4-11. Rain date to be announced.

"As the largest employer in the city, we're pleased to partner with Mayor Phelan and the city of Quincy to bring our neighbors these special concerts, particularly the All-American concert at the Adams National Historical Park," said George Russell Jr., executive vice president, State Street Community Affairs. "I'm sure that Maestro Ansbacher and his orchestra will deliver wonderful performances."

The goal of the Landmarks Orchestra is to foster broad appreciation of classical music while bringing together diverse communities. The State Street Concerts are part of a 25-performance summer season taking place all over Eastern Massachusetts.

Founder and Conductor Charles Ansbacher is the principal guest conductor of the Sarajevo Philharmonic. He is the conductor laureate for the Colorado Springs Symphony Orchestra and has guest conducted all over the world, including the Vienna State Opera, the Vienna Chamber Orchestra, members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra at Chicago Symphony Hall, and the Moscow Symphony Orchestra at the Great Hall in Moscow.

For a complete summer season schedule, call (617) 520-2200.

The Boston Landmarks Orchestra receives support from Fleet, The Boston Foundation, State Street, Germeshausen Foundation, Musician's Performance Trust Fund, The Boston Globe, WBZ, Newsradio 1030, WGBH 89.7, and WCVB-TV 5.

The State Street Quincy Concerts are made possible in part by a grant from State Street and the support by the city of Quincy, William Phelan Mayor, the Adams National Historical Park, and the National Park Service.

House Approves $3.25M To Complete Town Brook Flood Control Project

State Rep. Ronald Mariano announces the House of Representatives has passed an environmental bond bill, including up to $3.25 million for the completion of the Town Brook Flood Control Project.

During House debate over the $640 million bond bill, Mariano offered an amendment for the study, design and construction of the Town Brook Flood Control Project in Quincy.

"Having worked on this project since first elected, I am pleased to announce that my colleagues in the House and I have allocated $3.25 million for the final phase of this project," Mariano said. "The residents of Bigelow and Elm Streets, as well as Miller Stile Road and the surrounding area have waited patiently for the completion of this project.

"Over the years, I have had the opportunity to visit residents and witness, firsthand, the severity of the flooding conditions. It is my hope that this will finally bring some relief to these residents."

Severe flooding after storms affects hundreds of homes and has been increasing in severity as the flood zone expands, Mariano said. In 1997, the Army Corps of Engineers opened a 4,000-foot storm water tunnel which helped alleviate some of the conditions, but the final phase of the $55 million project has yet to be completed.

"This funding will go a long way to completing the design upgrades, easements and construction of this much anticipated project," Mariano said.

Differences between the House and Senate versions of the environmental bond bill need to be reconciled before the bill can receive final approval.

8th Annual Food Fest And Auction For Fr. Bill's Place Aug. 6

The eighth annual Food Fest and Auction to benefit Father Bill's Place will take place Tuesday, August 6 from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. at WaterWorks located at Marina Bay.

Scott Wahle, WBZ-TV morning newscaster, will once again serve as honorary chairman for the annual festivities. A South Shore native, Wahle has expressed great interest in being part of the Food Fest and Auction, which last year raised over $200,000.

The Food Fest features delicacies prepared by chefs from many of the finest restaurants on the South Shore. Local wine distributors will be on hand with a selection of wines to sample and enjoy.

Entertainment will be provided by award-winning magician and entertainer Peter O'Malley and the Island Rockers Steel Band.

The auction will feature items donated by many local businesses, including a Club Med vacation, sporting memorabilia, entertainment packages, the services of a wedding planner valued at $5,000, and tickets to popular sporting events.

Tickets are available for $75 per person. All proceeds directly benefit the guests of Father Bill's Place, an interfaith shelter for the homeless.

For tickets, call (617) 376-2255.

The eighth annual Food Fest and Auction Committee includes: Chairman Jim Wells, Abbadessa's

Restaurant; Co-Chairmen Kevin O'Brien, Roche Brothers Supermarkets, and Jean Roche, Raffael's; Lisa Mula, Office Products, Inc.; Michael Marshal, KAF Financial Advisors; Beth Veneto and Kay Norton, Ginger Betty's; Michael Cheney.

SummerFest Concert Series Begins July 10

Mayor William Phelan announces the 20th annual SummerFest concert series which will run Wednesday evenings from July 10 through Aug. 28 at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater in Merry Mount Park.

All concerts will begin at 7 p.m.

This year's schedule is as follows:

July 10: Big Band music with the Roy Scott Big Band.

July 17: Cajun music with Krewe de Roux.

July 24: "The Sunny Skies of Italy" performed by Ruth Harcowitz.

July 31: Varied, lively horn music by Horns in the House.

Aug. 7: Swing music from the 1930's and 1940's by Continental Swing Band.

Aug. 14: New Orleans Dixieland music from

Aug. 21: Lively horn music from The Infractions.

Aug. 28: "Irish Night" featuring the best of live Irish music and dance.

"We are happy to provide a great lineup of fun, eclectic musical groups for this year's SummerFest concert series," said Phelan. "I encourage residents to take advantage of the cultural opportunities that we provide to our citizens. The SummerFest concerts feature great entertainment within one of our most beautiful parks and allow for free, fun, outdoor activities for Quincy families during the summer months."

The SummerFest concert series began in 1983 under the leadership of former Mayor Joseph LaRaia, who ran the concert series for 19 years before turning it over to the city at the end of last year.

"I would like to thank former Mayor LaRaia for putting a great deal of time and effort into this concert series to make it so successful. I hope that we can continue to build on the success of this great summer program," said Phelan.

There is no charge for any of the performances in the SummerFest concert series, which is sponsored by the city of Quincy.

Rain dates for all concerts will be the following evening (Thursdays) at the amphitheater.

For more information on the SummerFest concert series or for a Calendar of Events of summer programs, call the Park Department at (617) 376-1254.

Lions Club Awards $8,000 In Scholarships

The Quincy Lions Club recently awarded $8,000 in college scholarships to graduating seniors from Quincy and North Quincy High School.

Receiving a $2,000 college scholarship was NQHS Senior Class President Alex Gray. Gray, who is blind, also served as president of the combined Quincy/North Quincy High School Leo Club, the youth service group affiliated with Lions Club International.

The Quincy Lions Club also awarded six $1,000 college scholarships. Recipients included QHS seniors Charlene Pascua, Erika Pettinelli, Aline Venturin and Christine Niosi and NQHS seniors Patrick Bregoli and Lauren Sleeth.

"Helping our young people further their education is an important investment in the future of our community," said Quincy Lions Club President John Pickering. "But as we all know, the cost of a college education keeps rising.

"Thanks to the generosity of the many Quincy residents and businesses that supported the Lions Club's fund-raising efforts this year, we were able to double the amount of the scholarships we awarded to graduating seniors."

Founded in 1941, the Quincy Lions Club serves the local community, with a special focus on raising funds to support eye research conducted by the nation's leading research facilities and hospitals.

In addition to providing college scholarships to local students, the club also provides free eye exams and eyeglasses to local residents in need and conducts a variety of community service projects each year.

Svedala-Eastern Site To Become Residential Community

*Flavin & Flavin Real Estate
To Market Townhouse Units*

ARTIST RENDERING of the Village at South Pointe, a residential community to be built by Galvin Construction Co. of Quincy at the site of Svedala-Eastern, formerly Eastern Engineering Company, a longtime Quincy firm located at 25 West Howard St. The property sold for a reported $1 million. Steve Fishman of Flavin & Flavin Real Estate in Quincy represented the seller.

Svedala-Eastern, formerly Eastern Engineering Company, a longtime Quincy firm located at 25 West Howard St. at the Quincy-Braintree line, was recently sold for a reported $1 million.

Steve Fishman of Flavin & Flavin Real Estate in Quincy represented the seller. The buyer, Galvin Development Company of Quincy, purchased the property with plans to create a unique residential community to be known as the Village at South Pointe.

The new townhomes will consist of 21 Cape Cod style townhomes located in seven separate buildings with three units in each building.

The homes will consist of six rooms, two bedrooms, two baths, full basement, private decks and contain 1,365 square feet.

Amenities will include reserve parking, gas heat and cooking, appliances, kitchen, central air conditioning, laundry hook-ups, tiled kitchen and baths, and solid wood cabinets.

Flavin & Flavin, a long established Quincy real estate firm, will be marketing the units. Pre-construction prices are available.

Patrick Mulkern Conway's Top Seller, Lister In Quincy

Jack Conway & Co. recently announced its top producer awards for April, recognizing the agents in each sales office who excelled in listing and selling homes during the month.

In the Quincy office, Patrick Mulkern was the top seller and the top lister.

"We're very proud to recognize these achievers," said Conway President Richard F. Cahill. "The individual agents are the backbone of our company."

Founded in 1957, Norwell-based Jack Conway & Co. is the largest privately owned real estate firm in Massachusetts, with more than 600 associates in 40 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

Last year, the company was ranked among the top 100 real estate firms in the U.S. by REALTOR Magazine, the official publication of the 750,000-member National Association of Realtors.

Realtors Urge Swift To Adopt Proposals Aimed At Reducing Housing Barriers

The Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR) supports a state report that recommends a series of policy actions to reduce the impact state and local land use measures have on housing development in the Bay State.

In a letter to Governor Jane Swift's administration, the leadership of the MAR praised the work of the administration's Commission on Barriers to Housing in identifying overly restrictive zoning regulations and excessive enforcement of local building codes and Title 5 septic requirements, and urged Swift to adopt the commission's recommendations.

"As most recent homebuyers know all too well, there's been a real shortage of housing across most markets and price ranges in Massachusetts for nearly five years," said MAR President David S. Drinkwater. "Significantly, this report demonstrates that the deficiency in housing supply may not be due to economic forces alone, but rather artificial barriers imposed by local government looking to limit development."

"What concerns us most is that the regulatory barriers being used to limit new construction, such as excessive minimum lot size requirements and arbitrarily imposed Title 5 rules that lack scientific data, don't only minimize housing opportunities for consumers, but drive up the cost of housing for all buyers," added MAR Executive Vice President John Fridlington.

MAR officials specifically cite the recommendations in the report dealing with Title 5 as among the most important provisions for homeowners. In particular, Realtors believe creation of a uniform code for Title 5 and adoption of the 60-minute percolation rate, which is standard in 48 other states, will help limit unnecessary expenses for property owners and new homebuyers.

"This report addresses what we have long felt are inconsistent and often inequitable interpretations and enforcement of the septic, zoning and building codes in Massachusetts," Drinkwater said. "For example, there are over 125 communities with their own septic code, yet we have just one plumbing and electrical code. It's time we bring some clarity and uniformity to the process for property owners so that Title 5 is used not for zoning, but for public safety purposes."

Notably, Massachusetts currently issues just 3.03 building permits per 1,000 residents, among the lowest rates of new residential construction for any industrialized or high-tech economy state in the U.S., according to recent MassInc. Policy brief entitled "Home Ownership in Massachusetts: A New Assessment."

"The tradition in this state of allowing local control over most land use decisions has been problematic to the extent that Massachusetts is now creating new housing at a rate far less than that of states of similar size," said MAR Vice President of Government Affairs David Wluka, a Sharon Realtor who served on the commission's Zoning Subcommittee.

"We appreciate the opportunity to contribute to this report and are hopeful that Gov. Swift and the House and Senate leadership review the commission's report with an eye toward creating policies that will keep housing affordable for all residents," Fridlington said.

Aside from Wluka, MAR was represented on the Commission on Barriers to Housing by Realtor Isabel Barbara of Lawrence and on the commission's Title 5 Subcommittee by MAR General Counsel Stephen J. Ryan, Esq.

Daniel Flynn & Co. Agent For Condo Units At Whittier Place

Daniel J. Flynn & Co., Inc., a Quincy-based full-service real estate firm, has been contracted as the exclusive agent for five connected condominium units at 8 Whittier Place in Boston.

The 4,869 square foot space is currently fitted for office space, although the complex is primarily residential. The property was formerly home to the Law Offices of Johnson, Hassett and Hanley. Now doing business as Hanley, Hassett and Fitzsimmons, the firm has relocated to 500 Granite St., East Milton. Flynn & Co. served as the firm's real estate broker during the move.

"This is literally a one-of-a-kind opportunity for a Boston-area office user, especially a law firm or medical professional," Flynn said of the listing, which is situated close to Massachusetts General Hospital. "Given the nature of the building itself, the space could easily be converted back to a residential use."

DANIEL FLYNN

In addition to its proximity to the hospital, the site is immediately accessible to Route 93, Storrow Drive and the FleetCenter.

"With the desirability of this space, we expect to locate a suitable buyer for this property quickly," Flynn said.

Daniel J. Flynn & Co., Inc. specializes in commercial sales and leasing, residential real estate, real estate auctions, property management and construction. For more information call 617-479-9000 or visit its Web site (www.djflynn.com).

Cleaning Tips

(NAPS) -- To ease cleaning, the Institute of Inspection, Cleaning and Restoration Certification (IICRC) offers the following tips:

- Develop a task list.
- Clean carpets, upholstery, draperies and even your mattress.
- Clean oven, refrigerator and other appliances.
- Clean fireplaces.
- Wash inside of windows.
- Wash woodwork.
- Clean out cupboards and closets.
- Change HVAC filters.

- Clean efficiently. Avoid going back and forth around a room. Instead, work using a systematic approach. Think in terms of left and right, top to bottom. Begin with ceilings and walls, and work your way down to windows and furniture, finishing with the floors.
- Hire cleaning service providers. For those tasks that require a specialist (i.e. carpet, upholstery, and hard flooring cleaning) hire only certified professionals.

Adams Inn Wins Second Best Western's Highest Award

The Best Western Adams Inn at 29 Hancock St., North Quincy, has won its second consecutive Best Western Chairman's Award, the hotel chain's highest honor for outstanding quality standards.

The Chairman's Award recognizes those Best Western International hotels with a perfect cleanliness and maintenance score of 1000 points out of 1000.

Hotels must also meet Best Western's requirements for design and high customer service scores to qualify for the award. There are more than 4,100 Best Western Hotels worldwide.

"Receiving our second Chairman's Award on July 1 is a special honor as it is today that the Mayor's Initiative for Tourism is announced," said Innkeeper Robert E. Galligan.

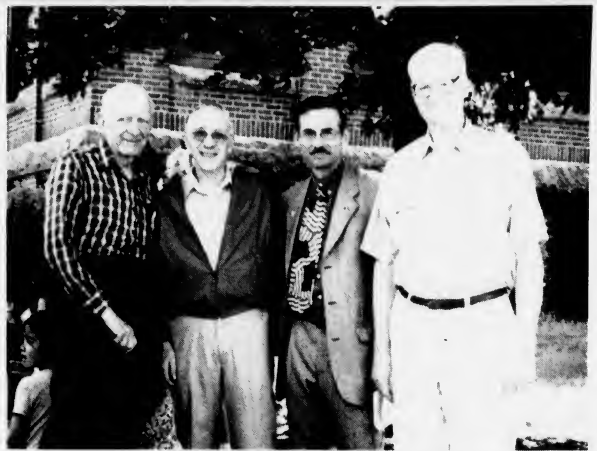

"Mayor Phelan's commitment to tourism is a further encouragement to our staff, guests and the city of Quincy that tourists and tourism are an important part of the city's future.

"This award demonstrates our commitment to providing quality accommodations for our guests. Our housekeeping and maintenance departments have worked hard to achieve this level of excellence."

"Congratulations to you and your staff!" said Ken Smotherman, chairman of the board of Best Western International. "We all know the effort required to achieve and maintain excellence.

"It is not by accident that you and your staff have earned 1000 points twice in the most demanding Quality Assurance program in our industry."

MEMORIAL DAY SERVICES were held recently at the Montclair Elementary School featuring patriotic songs performed by the Montclair School Band and the reading of winning essays from the "What America Means To Me" essay contest sponsored by the Montclair/Wollaston Association, which awarded $50 savings bonds to contest winners and Grade 5 students Teddy Lee, Catherine O'Connell, and Brittany Regal. Spending a moment together at the services were, from left: James Kelly; Matteo Panarelli; Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin, who served as keynote speaker for the annual observance; and Howard Crowley.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

The Long Road To A Safe Independence Day

By NANCY J. LUTHER and

"We were drinking a little earlier, but I didn't think Corey was too drunk to drive."

That quote from one of the five survivors of a crash that killed 16-year-old driver Corey Johnson of Foxborough on June 8 helps explain why drinking and driving continues to be a major public health and public safety threat. Too many people fail to realize how even small amounts of alcohol diminish one's ability to drive safely.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), although driving with a blood alcohol concentration (BAC) of .08 is a crime in the majority of states, including Massachusetts, driving begins to be impaired at levels as low as .02 BAC.

This applies most strongly to young and less experienced drivers. That's why all states have passed a "zero tolerance" law for drivers below the minimum legal drinking age mandating a loss of license for driving with a BAC level of over .02.

Nearly 17,000 Americans lose their lives and thousands more lose friends and family members each year to impaired driving. Nationwide, the summer months are the deadliest for impaired driving. Over the 2000 July 4th holiday, eight people died in crashes on Massachusetts roadways.

Important progress in reducing impaired driving deaths has been made, but recent data showing an increase in alcohol-related crash fatalities highlights the difficult road ahead.

According to NHTSA data, between 1990 and 2000 there was a significant reduction in alcohol-involved motor vehicle crash fatalities, from 50 percent of all crash deaths in 1990 to 40 percent in 2000. Intoxication rates for young drivers ages 16-20 involved in fatal crashes showed a sharp 29 percent decrease between 1990 and 2000.

But the data also shows an increase in impaired driving deaths of more than 4 percent nationally between 1999-2000, while in Massachusetts that increase was an even more alarming 7 percent.

Despite two decades of increasingly stringent regulation of alcohol possession by young people and more serious penalties for operating under the influence (OUI), impaired driving and alcohol abuse by young people remain vexing problems with horrendous consequences.

Motor vehicle crashes are the top killer in America of people of every age between 4 and 33 years and alcohol plays a part in all of the top causes of death for adolescents: crashes and other unintentional injuries, homicide, and suicide, according to a May 2002 study by the Massachusetts Youth Alcohol Prevention Task Force.

Surveys conducted by the Task Force show an alarming number of pre-teens, more than 50 percent of eighth-graders, have tried alcohol. In Massachusetts, a quarter of seventh- and eighth-graders reported drinking alcohol within the past month. Nearly a third of high school students (28 percent) reported binge drinking (five or more drinks in a row) within the past two weeks.

Youth drinking goes hand-in-hand with impaired driving. A recent Children's Hospital survey of more than 500 teens found that 43 percent said they have ridden in a vehicle driven by a drug- or alcohol-impaired driver.

A Harvard School of Public Health study released this spring found that harmful youth drinking patterns persist into college and that nationally two in five college students reported binge drinking in the previous two weeks. That number has not budged since the early 1990s when the study began. Binge drinking has also been linked to excessive risk-taking behavior including impaired driving. Almost one in three college students report driving after drinking.

We know the importance of instilling safe driving habits early-on and we know that the younger a person is when they first try alcohol, the more likely they are to develop alcohol problems later in life.

We also know that in order to bring the number back down on alcohol-involved fatalities and decrease alcohol abuse among young drivers, the alcoholic beverage industry, local businesses that sell alcohol, parents, universities, high schools and the public health and public safety communities need to work in concert. Don't be impressed that 1.5 million people each year are arrested for OUI because that number represents just one in approximately 800 impaired drivers who are on the road.

Show your patriotism this July 4th by supporting the efforts of law enforcement officers across the nation who will be out in force this holiday as part of the national mobilization against impaired driving, titled "You Drink & Drive. You Lose." from July 1-7. In Massachusetts, the State Police and 89 local police departments will use Governor's Highway Safety Bureau (GHSB) grant funding to conduct additional OUI patrols during this mobilization.

Preserve your freedom and those who you share the road with: don't drive if you've been drinking, even a little. Report any dangerous driving behavior you observe to the police, and don't let friends and family who have been drinking get behind the wheel.

Nancy Luther is the executive director of the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau, a state agency responsible for reducing motor vehicle related fatalities and injuries, and the resulting economic loss, in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Dr. Henry Wechsler, Ph.D., is the director of the Harvard School of Public Health College Alcohol Study and the author of "Dying to Drink: confronting binge drinking on college campuses."

HEALTHY GUMS AND PREGNANCY

Only about one out of every three pregnant women visits her dentist despite the fact that they have good reason to do so. New research shows that pregnant women with chronic periodontal disease, a condition that loosens the attachment between the teeth, gums, and bone, are up to seven times more likely to give birth prematurely. Inflammation caused by high levels of bacteria in the gums may produce compounds similar to those that trigger labor and delivery. The good news is that most gum disease can be cleared up safely with cleaning above and below the gum line. Swollen, sensitive, and bleeding gums, which are often caused by pregnancy gingivitis, do not raise pre-term delivery risk.

Early visits to your dentist can help ensure healthy and beautiful teeth. We provide a full range of dental treatments, including preventive, restorative, and cosmetic dentistry. Except in rare cases, gum disease can be prevented by thorough daily plaque removal by brushing, cleaning between teeth with floss or interdental cleaners, eating a balanced diet, and regularly visiting us for professional cleanings. Call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. If you are planning to become pregnant, schedule a visit to check (and treat) gum problems. If you are already pregnant, schedule a visit at the beginning of the second trimester.

Morrisette 'Bounces' Quincy; Eyes Playoffs

By CHRIS POISSON

Following a 7-3 loss to Braintree last Saturday night, Morrisette needed to win Sunday's game against city rival Quincy to keep its confidence high as it prepares for a playoff run over the final two weeks of the season.

Someone or something was looking out after them. After blowing a 2-0 lead in the top of the seventh, Morrisette caught a lucky bounce in the bottom half en route to a 3-2 victory, its second win over Quincy this season.

If it had lost, Morrisette (7-6) would have carried a 6-7 mark into Monday's game at undefeated Braintree before a much-needed five-day break. Now, Morrisette will at least be at the .500 mark when it resumes action this Sunday night at 7:30 against Canton at Adams Field.

"It really was a big game for us," said Morrisette manager Ray Cattaneo. "We're trying to stay one game over .500. We have a nice break coming up and we need it. It seems like we've played every night the last two weeks."

For Quincy (3-9), it unfortunately came out on the short-end of another close game and has lost five of eight games decided by one run. A few breaks here and there and it is in the hunt for the tournament, Quincy headed to Cohasset last night (Tuesday) and will host West Roxbury Friday night at 8 p.m.

In Sunday's showdown, Brian O'Hanley ripped a one-out single in the bottom of the seventh with the game knotted at 2. Neal Gavin followed with a groundball to second that looked like a gift-wrapped double play, but the ball took a wicked bounce and Morrisette had men on the corners. O'Hanley scored the game-winner on a passed ball.

"It was a well-played game," said Quincy coach Mark Jaehning. "Unfortunately, Morrisette benefited from a bad hop. That's the way it goes sometimes. It's baseball."

Morrisette held a 2-0 lead until the top of the seventh when Quincy reached a tired Steve Pizzi for a pair of runs. Chris Lockhead singled and Dennis Thomson blasted an RBI triple off the left field fence. Joe Fitzpatrick brought Thomson home with a sacrifice fly.

Pizzi kept Quincy off-balance all night, allowing just the two runs on six hits. His counterpart and former teammate at North Quincy High, Mike Feetham, also pitched a strong game. Feetham went the distance, too, striking out four and giving up the three runs on four hits. It was the third time Feetham lost a game, 3-2.

Defensively, both teams looked sharp. In the sixth inning, Wayne Moynihan, who singled and stole second, tried to score on a single by John Fidalgo (2 hits), but left fielder Pat Bregoli gunned him down as catcher Joe Priscella blocked the plate well.

For Quincy, Dave Jaehning made a sensational diving catch in the left-center gap to save two runs in the fourth. In the sixth, Fitzpatrick laid out to make an amazing diving catch in right field, robbing Tom Hughes of at least a double.

In previous action for Morrisette, it came out on top, 2-1, in a pitchers' duel with West Roxbury last Thursday at Adams Field. John O'Connell tossed a complete-game gem, scattering eight and one run with five strikeouts and a walk.

Morrisette struck first in the second inning on Ray Marchand's RBI single that scored O'Connell, who had reached on a fielder's choice and advanced to second on a single by Liam Powers.

In the third, Rob Muollo and Gavin (2 for 2) each singled to put runners on first and third. O'Hanley handed his team a two-run lead with a sacrifice fly to right field.

West Roxbury cut the deficit in half in the fifth inning when it loaded the bases with one out and knocked in a run with a fielder's choice. But it left the bases full when O'Connell punched out the next batters to escape the jam.

Last Wednesday, Morrisette snapped a three-game losing streak with a 9-7 victory at Stoughton. Trailing 6-5 after five innings, Morrisette came from behind to score a pair of runs in the sixth and seventh frames.

In the sixth, Priscella ripped an RBI single and Hughes (2 RBI) belted an RBI triple. In the seventh, O'Connell laid down a perfect squeeze bunt for a run and Bregoli added an RBI single for a 9-6 lead.

Stoughton closed out the scoring with a run in the seventh. Gavin picked up the win in relief, giving up one run in 2 1/3 innings. James French started the game and allowed five runs in 4 2/3 innings. Gavin (2 RBI), O'Hanley (2 RBI), Bregoli and Don Cook had two hits apiece.

In previous action for Quincy, it lost to Canton last Friday, 9-3. Trailing 5-0 in the third, Quincy scored three runs on an RBI single by Thomson and a clutch two-out, two-run single by Dave Jaehning. Canton, though, answered with three runs in the fourth on its way to a win.

Last Wednesday, Quincy fell to Weymouth, 7-3, as it played its ninth game in 10 days.

In the second inning, Weymouth scored a run as starting pitcher Bryan Thornton handed out three walks. It could have been worse, but Drew Loud made several outstanding defensive plays at shortstop to save some runs.

In the third, Loud and Thomson hooked up to turn a beautiful 6-4-3 double play to escape a one-out, bases-loaded jam. In the bottom half, Quincy responded with some offense. After Fidalgo singled and Steve Williams walked, Loud moved them into scoring position with a sacrifice bunt. Fitzpatrick then delivered a clutch two-run double to push Quincy on top, 2-1.

Weymouth evened the score in the fourth as Quincy committed three errors and seized the lead in the fifth and never looked back. John Mateu and Patrick Jaehning pitched well in relief and center fielder Jamie Chiochio made a nice diving catch in his first game back from an injury.

Last Tuesday, Quincy traveled to Canton and played its seventh straight one-run game, but unfortunately came out on the short-end, 10-9.

Quincy grabbed a 2-0 lead in the first on Dave Jaehning's RBI double and Lockhead's RBI single.

Trailing 5-2, Quincy bounced back to take a 6-5 lead in the third on Mark Maher's two-run single and back-to-back RBI doubles from Williams and Fitzpatrick.

Canton went ahead 8-6 as it capitalized on three infield errors by Quincy. In the fifth, Quincy responded with back-to-back RBI triples from Feetham and Fidalgo and an RBI double from Maher for a 9-8 lead.

Canton pushed across the tying and winning runs in their half. Quincy had the tying runners on third base in the sixth and seventh innings, but could not move them the final 90 feet.

Dean Sandanton picked up the loss despite tossing three strong innings in relief (4 strikeouts, no walks).

The fourth annual Wollaston Beach Volleyball Challenge will be held Saturday, July 20, at 10 a.m. on the southern end of Wollaston Beach.

Proceeds will go to the Wollaston Beach Clean-up Fund designed to promote educational and recreation events along the beach.

Up to 16 co-ed adult teams can compete. Teams must consist of three men and three women. One male and one female alternate on each team are permissible.

Registration costs $100 per team. Interested teams or individuals should sign up now by calling 617-328-7982 or by visiting Tony's Clam Shop. Every player receives a T-shirt. Winning teams receive prizes.

"This event has grown each year in terms of teams and sponsors," said Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro, co-organizer of the tourney. "This year we will have three nets with constant play in this double-elimination tournament. With the help of our sponsors, we will give away free volleyball challenge T-shirts to all players and terrific prizes for the winners and runners-up."

"When all is said and done, a beach is about recreation — active or passive. We have been working hard to improve water quality, repair the sea wall and shape the upcoming landside and roadway improvements."

Karen Djerf, co-owner of Tony's Clam Shop and co-organizer of the tourney, said: "We have been a proud sponsor of this event since day one. Events like this let people know Wollaston Beach is making a comeback and they bring new life and a real sense of excitement to Wollaston Beach."

ON THE SIDES OF SAFETY

Side air bags now come as standard equipment, or are available as an option, on new cars. This relatively new safety measure was developed in response to the fact that side crashes result in 10,000 driver and passenger fatalities yearly in this country. Side air bags inflate and cushion occupants when a vehicle is hit from the side. They come in various designs that protect the torso and/or the head and neck. There are also inflatable curtains that not only protect the head, but also prevent a person from being thrown from the vehicle. Using dummies, crash tests show that injuries could be prevented and lives saved by side air bags, particularly in collisions between passenger cars and light trucks.

Granite Season Opener July 13

The Quincy Granite semi-professional football team will kick off the 2002 season Saturday, July 13, against the Bay State Thunder, formerly the Mass Havoc, at 2 p.m. in Wakefield.

In their second season in the Eastern Football League last year, the Granite rampaged through the regular season with a perfect 9-0 record.

In the playoffs, they knocked out a tough Middleboro team in the quarterfinals before bowing to Springfield at home in the semifinals. The Marlboro Shamrocks won the championship.

onship for the 11th straight season.

In its inaugural season in the EFL, Quincy finished with a 6-4 record and lost to Middleboro in the first round of the playoffs.

Defensive end Steve Jones, corner back John Murphy and receiver Billy MacDougall have retired. Jones and Murphy will remain with the team as members of the coaching staff.

Quincy will play five home games and five away games and will have a bye the third week of the season, July 27.

Home dates at Veterans Memorial Stadium are: July 20, Marlboro; Aug. 3, Randolph; Aug. 17, Springfield; Aug. 30, Charlestown; and Sept. 21, Middleboro. Children under 10 are admitted free. Season tickets cost $25.

The Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth team improved to 8-3 this season with a 3-1 victory over Parkway last Friday night.

Ryan Conley (3-0) went the distance, allowing just two hits and two walks while striking out 11.

Down 1-0 in the fifth inning, Mike McLaughlin doubled and scored on Chris Dolbeare's single. Dolbeare then stole second and third and crossed home plate for the go-ahead run when Marc Lopez grounded out.

In the seventh, Wollaston added an insurance run on an RBI single by Chris Kirschner that scored Steve Reardon (double).

Defensively, Reardon and Lopez made nice plays in the infield and catcher Mark Dondoro threw out a runner.

Last Wednesday, Wollaston orchestrated a 16-hit attack in a 10-4 victory over Norwood. Rich Zapata, Matt MacNeil, Chris Traietti (3 RBI), Dan Cosgrove and Reardon (3 RBI) each had a pair of hits.

Jeff Tam (2-1) picked up the win, yielding three hits and six walks and striking out 11.

Last Tuesday, Wollaston came up flat in a 9-4 loss to Hingham, as it committed eight errors. Lost in all of this was a well-pitched game by Gary Dalton (1-1), who gave up only six hits and three walks while punching out 11.

In the previous game on June 23, Wollaston pulled out a come-from-behind 4-3 win over South Boston to move into a tie for first place.

Trailing 3-1 in the bottom of the ninth, Steve Reardon ripped a two-run triple scoring James Zapata (single) and Andy McAllister (walk) to tie the game and then scored the game-winner on a passed ball.

Reardon (2-0) also tossed all nine innings, fanning 10

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Be prepared to face some challenges stirred up by an envious colleague. Your best defense is the Arian's innate honesty. Stick with the truth, and you'll come out ahead.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your sensitivity to the needs of others is admirable. But be careful to avoid those who would take unfair advantage of your good nature, especially where money is involved.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 22) Having an optimistic attitude is fine, as far as it goes. But you'll be lulled into a false sense of confidence. There are still problems to deal with before you can totally relax.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might feel somewhat "crabby," as you fuss over plans that don't seem to work out. Maybe you're trying too hard. Ease up and let things happen without forcing them.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Heed that keen Leonine instinct. It's trying to tell you to delay making a decision until you're sure there are no hidden problems that could cause trouble later on.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a good time to reach out to those who might be nursing hurt feelings over recent events. Best advice: Ignore any pettiness that could delay the healing process.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your understanding helps a colleague get through a difficult period. Although you didn't do it for a reward, be assured that your actions will be repaid down the line.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You score some high marks in the workplace, which will count in your favor when you face the possibility of changing direction on your current career path.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your goal lies straight ahead. Stay focused on it and avoid distractions that could throw off your aim and cause potentially detrimental delays.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Keep that burst of exuberance in check and resist pushing through your new project before it's ready. In your personal life, a family member again needs help.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Paying attention to your work is important this week. But so are your relationships with those special people in your life. Make time for them as well.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Good news. Someone is about to repay a long-standing debt. But be warned. That same someone could try to charm you into lending it back unless you say no and mean it.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are sensitive to matters that involve your home and family. You would make a fine social worker or family-court judge.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

The Proclamation of Independence of July 4, 1776, translated our forebears from being subject of a royal majesty into being free citizens of a nation that they themselves had created. . .

Citizenship is an active, not a passive condition. Citizenship carries with it responsibilities, as well as rights and privileges. . . Couldn't it be said that it is the responsibility of the individual, rather than his rights and privileges, that gives him his strength and gives democracy its strength.

Unfortunately, too many Americans today are content to allow others to exercise the responsibilities of citizenship for them, taking but passing interest in the decisions being made locally and nationally for them.

On this Fourth of July, let us all breathe a solemn vow to commit ourselves to active, rather than passive, citizenship.

Let us remember that apathy is democracy's greatest enemy, and can do more to unravel our liberties than whole battalions of invading troops. . .

MASSACHUSETTS WATER RESOURCES AUTHORITY REQUEST FOR LETTERS OF INTEREST
SALE OF INDUSTRIAL SITE

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (the "Authority" or the "MWRA") requests Letters of Interest from parties interested in purchasing an Industrial Site in the City of Quincy from the Authority. MWRA seeks to sell a 12 acre parcel of land and water, including a pier, that is part of the former General Dynamics Shipyard in Quincy and which was used by the Authority as a laydown and staging area during the construction of the now completed Boston Harbor Project.

The Authority will utilize a two stage process in selling the property. Letters of Interest must include information on the proposed use of the site and evidence of the proposer's ability to finance the purchase. Proposals deemed responsive will be invited to submit a second stage price proposal. The Authority intends to select the proposal offering the highest price.

The complete Request for Letters of Interest will be available on or after July 1, 2002. Copies may be obtained from the Authority's Procurement Department Document Distribution Center, Building 39, First Floor, Charlestown Navy Yard, 100 First Avenue, Boston, MA 02129. telephone 617 788-2575. Letters of Interest will be received at the Procurement Department's Document Distribution Center until 11:00 A.M., Friday, September 6, 2002.

Phelan Plans To Create Agency For Tourism

of funding through the tax on the city's hotels and motels," the mayor said. "This provides the city with funds needed to mount an effective promotional campaign at no cost to Quincy residents."

Robert Galligan, innkeeper of the Best Western Adams Inn and a member of the advisory committee, praised the plan for bringing together "a cross-section" of many interests and pledged continued support for the program in a number of ways beside the hotel/motel tax which, by conservative estimates, is expected to generate $108,812 in tourism funds by the year 2005.

Adams National Historical Park Superintendent Marianne Peak said the DMO would allow the Adams NHP, which saw 166,000 visitors last year and is the fourth most popular presidential site according to a July 1 article in USA Today, to partner with other organizations as it tells the story of the Adams family to both national and international visitors.

Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mammario, also an advisory committee member, praised Phelan for taking the lead on tourism and said that the current plan is different from those of past years because of its funding mechanism, adding that Quincy 2000 was one of the advocates for tourism's 15 percent share of hotel/motel tax revenue as opposed to the original proposal of five percent.

"We will work very closely with this new tourism committee, which Quincy 2000 is a member of, because tourism is important for the economic development of this city," Mammario said.

Fellow committee member John Stobierski, communications manager for the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, said the initiative would "show what it is we have to offer" and dovetail with the chamber's regional promotional efforts.

Phelan said that the new DMO could be created within a few months but that the effects of the Action Plan were "already bearing fruit," pointing to plans for the creation of a Quincy tourism web site, an advertising campaign, and the re-establishment of a Visitor Information Kiosk in Quincy Square.

The kick-off event for the city's new tourism initiative, Phelan said, will be the free public concert by the Boston Landmarks Orchestra July 19 on the lawn of the Beale Estate at the Adams National Historical Park, sponsored by State Street.

"It should be a phenomenal night," said Phelan.

City of Quincy, Massachusetts Office of the Mayor

Welcome to Historic Quincy!

We are fortunate to live in a city that is rich in history, culture, and tradition. Home to two Presidents of the United States, John Adams and John Quincy Adams, Quincy is a strong part of America's early heritage. It was here in Quincy that the Massachusetts Constitution was drafted. This document, which is still in use today, was a model for the Constitution of the United States.

Take an afternoon, visit the Adams National Historical Park and the oldest presidential birthplaces in the United States. Stop by the "Old House" and learn how one of America's most prominent families lived. Tour the First Parish Church, which serves as the final resting place for Presidents, John and John Quincy Adams and first ladies, Abigail and Louisa Catherine Adams. Experience the history of our city and our nation.

In addition to our rich history, Quincy is blessed with natural beauty as well. Bike or walk our twenty-seven miles of beautiful seashore and natural salt marshes, explore downtown Quincy, watch an outdoor concert, or eat in one of our many new restaurants. There is something for everyone to enjoy! Honor the rich history of Quincy while celebrating its future and its diversity.

We are so proud of Quincy and hope that you will come out and enjoy all that it has to offer.

Sincerely,

WILLIAM J. PHELAN
MAYOR

He Wanted To Paint It White But John Adams Birthplace Has Original Look

The birthplace of John Adams, second president of the United States, looks like it did when he and his parents, Deacon John and Susanna lived there.

It took on that "as it was" look after a painstaking six-year reconstruction project in the 1980s.

Visitors to the John Adams Birthplace, which peers over the shoulder of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace on Franklin St., South Quincy, can now see more completely how the house looked.

The house is well-furnished and looks like it did when John and Abigail lived in it.

The final renovation touches were to the room where Deacon John Adams made shoes.

The rooms are furnished from the period of Deacon John and his wife and probably reflected her taste. They are furnished, not elaborately, but sufficiently to have a lived-in look.

The birthplace was probably built in the late 17th or early 18th Century for less than $1,000 in the pounds of the day and the clapboards were hand-hewn from trees that grew in its fields.

The pine clapboards of the John Adams Birthplace are unpainted and the U.S. National Park Service, which restored the house, insists that based on research the house will remain that way, despite the fact that John Adams was known to have preferred it white.

For more than 80 years they were the little red farmhouses at the foot of Penn's Hill. But research turned up the fact that Abigail Adams, the wife of the second president, wanted them "stone" and white in color.

Since what Abigail wanted, Abigail usually got, in the summer of 1980, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace was repainted to Abigail's taste, the "stone" color determined to be a sort of off-white, mixed especially for the occasion from a late 18th Century formula.

The John Adams Birthplace was painted white so that both houses would look as they did in 1807, the year the last Adams lived in them, but later research indicated it was unpainted.

The birthplaces, parts of which date back to the 17th Century, were taken over by the National Park Service on May 1, 1979 after years of semi-neglect due to lack of restoration and maintenance funds.

The John Quincy Adams Birthplace reopened in 1982 for the first time in three years after undergoing a $175,000 rehabilitation faithful to the lives of the prominent family that lived there.

If you close your eyes and give your imagination full rein you can see them now as they were more than 200 years ago.

There is Abigail Adams in the new pink gingham dress. There is the curly-haired infant, Thomas Boylston Adams, bouncing on his father's knee. And there is John

JOHN ADAMS BIRTHPLACE

Adams, home from the Continental Congress in Philadelphia for the first time in a year, sitting at the table and drinking a cup of tea.

The setting, right down to the pewter plates and candlesticks, is reproduced faithfully in the corner room of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace.

The furnishings of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace are precise reproductions of those that were in the house when the second president lived there. The originals are at the Old House, the Adams National Historic Site, from which they cannot be removed under the ownership agreement with the Adams family.

The most interesting room in the John Quincy Adams Birthplace is John Adams' old law office, in which the elder Adams, James Bowdoin and Samuel Adams drafted the Massachusetts State Constitution, on which the U.S. Constitution was modeled.

The law office is furnished pretty much as John Adams had it.

There is the hutch table on which he wrote the State Constitution; the bookcase filled with books that probably were there in John Adams' day, judging by an inventory of his law library; his old writing desk and two chairs that were copied from those in his second law office in Boston.

Pastels of Abigail and John, originally done in Salem, were photographically reproduced by photographer George Dow and now hang in Abigail's sitting room. The originals are in the possession of the Massachusetts Historical Society.

Abigail's old kitchen cabinet was discovered serving as a bookcase in the Old House.

The cabinet was reproduced and installed in the kitchen of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace along with copies of the blue china that John purchased when he was emissary to Holland.

The Adams Birthplaces are at 133 and 141 Franklin St. They are open daily, including Sundays and holidays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from April 19 to Nov. 10 with guided tours. Admission is $3 for adults and children over age 16, which also includes admission to the Adams Mansion within seven days. Park passes are available. Tours must be arranged at the Visitors' Center, 1250 Hancock St. Last full tour leaves Visitors' Center at 3:15 p.m. Tours are on a first come, first serve basis.

The Adams Cottages First Father - Son Presidents Born Here

It was the South Precinct of Braintree, then a sprawling tract of woods and farmlands on the gentle rolling hills some 10 miles south of the Boston Stone along the winding Coast Road to Plymouth.

Something less than 1,500 people lived in the North, Middle and South Precincts of Braintree in the year 1735 and two of them were Deacon John Adams, 44, farmer and cordwainer, and his wife, Susanna, 26.

Their home was a weathered gray farmhouse with a high peaked roof and attached lean to kitchen set on seven acres of farmland at roughly Milepost 11 of the Coast Road, just where it turned up the wooded slopes of Penn's Hill toward the Monaquiot River ford.

He was a pillar of his rural community. Mr. Adams was a deacon in the First Parish Church, a lieutenant in the Braintree militia and a town constable with a forceful personality and tact that enabled him to collect taxes from his neighbors.

He was a hard working farmer whose older was a knowledgeable best in town, he worked in leather during the winter months, and he had an eye on an adjoining piece of farmland, 9 1/2 acres owned by the Billings brothers, complete with a farmhouse similar to his own.

Susanna Adams was a Boylston of Brookline, socially a cut above her husband, and perhaps there were moments in the simple house at the foot of Penn's Hill when she thought of the home of her uncle, the noted Dr. Zabiel Boylston of Brookline, whose furniture came all the way from London.

Their first child, a son who was named John for his father, was born in the southeast bedroom of the farmhouse on Oct. 19, 1735. (Old Style). He would become the second president of the United States.

Deacon John purchased the house next door for 500 pounds in 1744 and it was ready 20 years later when young John moved in with his brand new bride, the former Abigail Smith, the preacher's sparkling daughter from the next town of Weymouth.

Their second child, a son who was named John Quincy Adams after his great-grandfather, Col. John Quincy, was born there on July 11, 1767. He would become the sixth president of the United States.

Until George W. Bush was sworn in as the 43rd president in 2001, John Adams and John Quincy Adams were the only father and son combination to achieve that office. George H. W. Bush was the 41st. The Harrisons, William Henry and Benjamin, were grandfather and grandson.

The precise age of the two cottages at 133 and 141 Franklin St. at the foot of Penn's Hill is not known.

When the John Adams Birthplace was restored by the Daughters of the Revolution in 1897, a brick bearing the date 1651 was discovered under the southeast corner, and the house was known to have been occupied by one Joseph Penniman in that year.

And a man named Samuel Belcher was living in the John Quincy Adams Birthplace as early as 1663, when it was little more than a one-room shack with fireplace. It was built to its present size in 1716, as evidenced by a date brick found in the new fireplace.

According to Henry Adams, grandson of President John Quincy Adams, no member of the family lived in the cottages after 1818, although ownership remained in the Adams family until 1940.

Both houses were restored by the Adams Realty Trust, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace in 1896 at a cost of $1,650 and the John Adams Birthplace a year later at an expense of $515.49.

They were presented to the city of Quincy in 1940 and supervised by the Quincy Historical Society until they were turned over to the U.S. National Park Service in 1979.

The Adams Birthplaces at 133 and 141 Franklin St. are open daily, including Sundays and holidays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from April 19 to Nov. 10 with guided tours. Last full tour is at 4:15 p.m. Admission is $3 for adults and children over 16, which also includes admission to the Adams Mansion within seven days. Park passes are available. Tours must be arranged at the Visitors' Center, 1250 Hancock St. The last full tour leaves the Visitors' Center at 3:15 p.m. Tours are on a first come, first serve basis.

Ward 1 Councillor

From our origins as a town that was home to great American Patriots like John Hancock, Abigail Adams, John and John Quincy Adams, to the promise of our youngest citizens today, Quincy be proud of its contributions to America. Nearly every period of American History bears the mark of Quincy. Distinguished public servants in government, the military, education and business have called Quincy their home.

Names like Actresses Lee Remick and Ruth Gordon; entrepreneur Howard Johnson; and the exceptional men and women of the Fore River Shipyard are found among the pages of history books. Quincy granite cuts and carved by immigrants to our city bear testimony to the richness of the American Dream.

All who visit our city take pleasure in our vast coastline, our immense historical and cultural resources, and the beauty of our neighborhoods. Close enough to Boston to make a commute reasonable... far enough away to preserve the suburban charm; Quincy is a memorable stop for any traveler.

Realizing the great promise of the future is the primary concern of the Quincy City Council. Together, representing every neighborhood and constituency, our council deliberates the important issues of the day and strives to enhance and sustain the quality of life for all Quincy residents.

Welcome to our great city.

'The Old House'

Summer White House And Home Of 2 Presidents

Josh Quincy, the one who built railroads around New England and founded the cooperative bank movement in Massachusetts, was in his childhood a frequent visitor to the mansion where John Adams, the second president of the United States, lived in retirement.

Later, he wrote with wry amusement about Sunday dinner with the aging patriarch of the Adams clan and his wife, Abigail, a dinner that inevitably began with a thick pudding made from boiled corn meal.

It being thought desirable to take the edge off one's hunger before reaching the joint," wrote Quincy.

Indeed, it was considered wise to stimulate the young to fill themselves with pudding, be the assurance that the boy who managed to eat the most of it should be helped most abundantly to the meat, which was to follow.

It need not be said that neither the winner nor his competitors found much room for meat at the close of their contest, and so the domestic economy of the arrangement was very apparent.

Quincy, as a young Harvard law student, stopped by several times a week in summer to talk and read to the former President. He found the visits delightful. Indeed, the Adams of the cold and austere public mien was never more relaxed than he was at his country home in Quincy.

The original house, a small part of the present building, was built probably in 1731 by Major Leonard Vassall, a wealthy West Indian sugar planter who lived in Cambridge and apparently used it for a summer place.

His daughter, Mrs. Anna Borland, who was a Loyalist during the Revolution, abandoned the house to leave with the British forces when they evacuated Boston in 1776. For a while it was used as a haven for rebel refugees fleeing the war zones.

Mrs. Borland returned to reclaim the house after the Revolution and John Adams, then in Europe as the first American ambassador to London, purchased it for 600 pounds through the good offices of the Cotton Tufts of Weymouth, his wife Abigail's cousin.

The Adamses were about to return to the United States after seven years abroad and Abigail was concerned that John's books and papers and the furnishings they had acquired in Europe would not fit into their old farmhouse at the foot of Penn's Hill where they lived before.

The deal was closed on Sept. 26, 1787, and the deed is still on file in the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds in which the Adams purchase is specified as a house, born and other buildings on seven acres of land with some 76 acres more scattered around the North Precinct of Braintree.

There are indications that Abigail was a bit disappointed with her purchase. It was a lot smaller than she remembered it.

"In height and breadth it feels like a wren's house," she wrote to her daughter, Abigail, the wife of Col. William S. Smith. "Let Col. Smith come without heels to his shoes or he will not be able to walk upright."

Abigail and John Adams moved into the house, which they named "Peacefield," after his retirement from the presidency in 1801 and lived there until they died.

It was from the "Old House," as the family called it, that John Adams carried on his long and increasingly warm correspondence with his old rival, Thomas Jefferson of Virginia, who had succeeded him in the presidency. In retirement, they became firm friends as they outlasted their contemporaries.

"Thomas Jefferson lives," whispered John Adams as he lay dying in the Old House. He was wrong. Jefferson, in far away Monticello, Va., had preceded him in death by a few hours on the same day.

It was July 4, 1826, the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

The Old House which served as summer White House for two presidents, was home to four generations of the Adams family, the last, Brooks Adams, dying in February, 1927. It was taken over by the U.S. National Park Service in 1946 to become the Adams Mansion National Historic Site.

The site at 135 Adams St. is open from April 19 to Nov. 10 daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The last full tour is at 4 p.m. Admission is $3 for adults and children over 16, and includes admission to the Adams Birthplaces within seven days. Tours must be arranged at the Visitors' Center, 1250 Hancock St. The last full tour leaves the Visitors' Center at 3:15 p.m. Tours are on a first come, first serve basis.

TOMBS OF PRESIDENTS John and John Quincy Adams and their wives, Abigail and Louisa in First Parish Church.

United First Parish Church, 'Church Of The Presidents' Where 2 Presidents, Their Wives Are Entombed

In 1949 when the present First Parish Church building, the Old Stone Temple, was 121 years old, it was ruled officially that the church is older than the city itself, and the town before it.

It was then that the late historian William Churchill Edwards was called upon to resolve a minor dispute that involved the rounding of the corners of the church lot in downtown Quincy.

Almost the first subject to which the minds of the early settlers of our country were turned after they landed here was the formation of a church," said Edwards.

The first church in these parts was established as a branch of the Church of Boston in 1636. It became a church in its own right in 1639. The Mount Wollaston section of Boston was incorporated as the town of Braintree on May 23, 1640. Ergo, the church came first!

Quincy's first house of worship, the branch of the Church of Boston, was called the "Chapel of Ease," and if it was neglected by early historians it was because its first pastor, the Rev. John Wheelwright, his sister-in-law, Anne Hutchinson, and others were banished from the Massachusetts Bay Colony for heresy.

The new church, the one that lasted, was gathered by covenant on Sept. 26, 1639, and it was holding services in its third meeting house in 1732 when its pastor was the Rev. John Hancock, father of the bold first signer of the Declaration of Independence. Son John also was a member.

The affairs of the church and the town of Quincy were one and the same until 1824 when church and state were separated in Massachusetts and the Congregational Society was established to handle parochial matters.

The old Hancock meeting house was still standing, although a little run down, on the south lawn of the present church lot in 1822 when former President John Adams deeded the interest from certain of his lands and granite from his pastures to build a stone temple.

It was completed in Greek revival style at a cost of $30,488.56 which was some $3,000 less than architect Alexander Parrish's estimate and dedicated Nov. 12, 1828, with John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States holding Pew No. 1.

Even before the church was dedicated, the mortal remains of his benefactors, John and Abigail Adams, were transferred to tombs in the crypt of the church and, in 1852, the bodies of John Quincy Adams and his wife, Louisa, joined them.

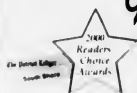

It is the only church in the United States in which two Presidents are buried. The only other church in which a President is buried is the Episcopal Cathedral in Washington, D.C., where President Woodrow Wilson is entombed.

An active Unitarian Universalist Church, it is open to the public for tours daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, Sunday from 12 noon to 5 p.m., mid-April to mid-November. Admission is $2; under 16 are admitted free. For further information, call 773-0062 or the church office at 773-1290.

Why We Pronounce It 'Quin-zee'

Why do we pronounce Quincy "Quin-zee" when just about everyone else in the country refers to it as "Quincy?"

There are 19 other Quincys in the U.S., but they pronounce it "Quin-see."

Can they be right and we be wrong? Not according to Quincy's late city historian, William C. Edwards, who never budged an inch whenever the argument ever came up. And it still comes up.

The reason we pronounce it "Quin-zee" is very simple.

"That's the way the Quincy family pronounced it," he used to explain.

"The original Quincy family which settled here at Mount Wollaston pronounced it 'Quin-zee,' including Col. John Quincy after whom Quincy, Mass.—the first Quincy—was named in 1792."

Colonel Quincy was the great grandfather of sixth President John Quincy Adams.

Apparently, all 19 other Quincys in the U.S. were named after John Quincy Adams.

And, apparently the early settlers of those communities thought John Quincy pronounced it John "Quin-see."

Anyway, that is how Edwards explained it.

Seems like a sound argument.

At Dorothy Quincy Homestead

John Hancock's Declaration Of Love

An aura of romance surrounds the stately old house that is set back in the trees from the corner of Hancock Street and Butler Road, on the banks of Furnace Brook.

There is the wallpaper with its blue cupids and pink flowers that was imported from France for the wedding of Dorothy Quincy, the vivacious daughter of the house, to Quincy-born John Hancock, a patriot on the run with a price on his head.

There are the words "You I Love and You alone," addressed by Hancock to his beloved Dorothy and scratched on a window pane with his diamond ring just before he fled to Lexington on the eve of the Revolution.

And there are the secret chambers and passageways, used, it was said, to hide fugitive patriots during the Revolution and, at an earlier date, even certain Englishmen fleeing a charge of regicide in the death of King Charles I.

Parts of the house were built in 1685 by Col. Edmund Quincy, the second of the name, on land that was granted to an earlier Edmund in 1638. The major part was built in 1706 by Edmund the third. (There were six Edmunds in all, four in a direct line; two nephews.)

The house was the social center of old Braintree during the regime of the fourth

Edmund, largely because he sired five beautiful daughters around whom swirled a whole future generation of judges, generals and merchant kings.

The undisputed belle of the household was Dorothy, the coquettish youngest of the eight Quincy children, whose troth was soon plighted to John Hancock, the wealthy young businessman from Boston who was already becoming known as a leader of the rebels.

Tradition has it that they were to have been married in the north parlor of the Quincy homestead with its French cupid wallpaper when Revolution intervened and John had to flee with the British regulars on his heels.

Eventually, they were wed Aug. 28, 1775, at the home of Thaddeus Burr, uncle of Aaron Burr (later Vice President of the United States) in Fairfield, Conn.

After the Revolution and the death of Edmund the fourth in 1788 the old house passed from the Quincy family. The Hancocks wanted nothing to do with it. Their only son, John George Washington Hancock, was killed in a skating accident at age 9 while on a visit in 1787.

The house was acquired in 1904 by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames, who restored it with vintage furniture, utensils and clothing, and gave it to the state with the proviso that the Dames continue to run it.

First Wife, Mother Of Two Presidents

Abigail Adams: A Woman Ahead Of Her Time

Until January in the year 2001, Abigail Adams enjoyed a unique place in history as the only woman to be the wife of one president and the mother of another. Then came Barbara Bush, wife of George H.W. (41st President) and mother of George W. (43rd President).

Abigail's husband, John, was the second president from 1797 to 1801 and her son, John Quincy, the sixth from 1825 to 1829.

And her grandson, Charles Francis Adams, ran unsuccessfully for vice president on the Free Soil ticket in 1848.

An early advocate of women's rights, the former Abigail Smith wrote to her husband, John, who was in Philadelphia helping the Founding Fathers hammer out a Constitution for the new republic.

In the new code of laws which I suppose it will be necessary for you to make, I desire you would remember the ladies and be more generous and favorable to them than your ancestors.

ABIGAIL ADAMS

"Do not put such unlimited power into the hands of the husbands. Remember, all men would be tyrants if they could."

Sadly, unlike Barbara Bush, Abigail Adams did not live to see her son become president. She died in her 74th year, Oct. 28, 1818, seven years before he entered the White House.

Although she is traditionally remembered as the wife of one president and the mother of another, Abigail was more than that.

She was a remarkable woman in her own right and one ahead of her time.

Born in neighboring Weymouth Nov. 11, 1744, the daughter of the Rev. William Smith, a Congregational minister, and his wife, Elizabeth Quincy Smith, she had no formal schooling.

But through tutoring by her father and mother and reading, she became a well-known writer of letters that have served to chronicle American history.

She was a brave and resourceful woman, too. She was often left alone for long periods of time to care for her children and run the farm at the foot of Penn's Hill while her husband was away in the service of their fledgling country.

Early in their marriage, he was in France trying to develop strong ties with that country and she sailed to meet him in Paris. They had not seen one another in five years.

John and Abigail Adams were the first president and first lady to occupy the White House. When Adams took office, succeeding George Washington on March 4, 1797, Philadelphia was the nation's capital. John and Abigail moved into the White House in November, 1800. It was called the President's Palace at the time.

No fancy airs about her. She won a special spot in White House folklore by hanging her laundry in the East Room. She was just being practical. Many of the rooms had not been finished when they moved in and the East Room was one of the warmer ones, better for drying wet clothing.

John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, the man who succeeded him as president, were close friends who worked together to produce the precious Declaration of Independence. But they had a falling out and became political enemies.

When Jefferson defeated Adams in his bid for reelection to a second term, Adams was so bitter that he refused to stay in Washington for Jefferson's inauguration in 1801 and came home to Quincy.

Abigail became a peacemaker through letters to Jefferson and, thanks to her efforts, the two former presidents reconciled in their later years.

Both succumbed July 4, 1826, the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence. Jefferson a few hours before Adams.

John and Abigail were married 54 years and it was a happy reunion despite frequent and long separations in the early years.

Abigail was the woman behind two men — a husband and son — who encouraged and helped them in their distinguished service to their country on their way to the Presidency.

She and her husband, son and daughter-in-law, Louisa Catherine, are entombed in the crypt in the United First Parish Church.

A bronze statue depicting Abigail at about age 32 and John Quincy at age 10 with her hand on his shoulder in a motherly touch, was erected in 1997 just a few feet away.

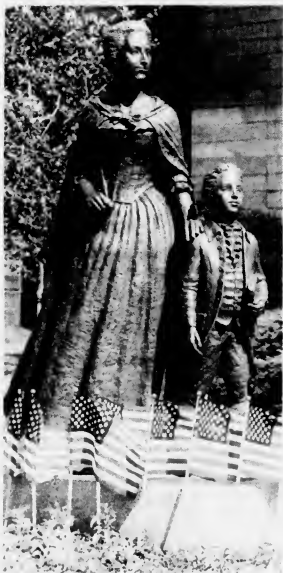

The very spot from which she now looks out onto Quincy Square is where she walked when the area was an open field.

A Mother's Advice

Abigail Adams had this motherly advice for her son, John Quincy Adams, the future sixth president, in a letter written to him when he was 10 years old and in Europe with his father, John Adams, who was on a diplomatic mission:

Improve your understanding for acquiring useful (sic) knowledge and virtue, such as will render you an ornament to society, an Honour to your Country, and a Blessing to Your parents.

Your affectionate Mother
AA"

ABIGAIL ADAMS and her son, John Quincy Adams -- the future sixth President of the United States -- look out over Quincy Square from beside historic First Parish Church. The handsome bronze statue depicts her at about age 32 and him as a 10-year-old boy. It was commissioned by the Quincy Partnership and created by noted sculptor Lloyd Lillie.

Thomas Crane Public Library A Romanesque Architectural Beauty

He came to Quincy as a boy of 7, grew to young manhood on a farm in Quincy Point, learned the granite cutters' trade, and left at the age of 26 to win fame and fortune in stone in New York City.

That was the last Quincy heard of Thomas Crane for half a century until one February day in 1880, five years after his death, when his son, Albert, appeared with $20,000 with which to build a memorial — preferably a library — to his father.

Mr. father, always retained a strong feeling for the town of Quincy, was his only explanation.

Albert Crane himself chose the man to design the building, Henry Hobson Richardson, grandson of the English searist Dr. Joseph Priestley, and the foremost architect of the day.

His reputation was so formidable that he was able to tell Crane, "I cannot guarantee that the building, when completed, shall conform to (your) ideas of beauty and taste," and still get the job.

Richardson's Romanesque building, which now houses the reference section of the library, was dedicated on May 30, 1882, with the principal oration delivered by Charles Francis Adams, Jr., chairman of the Board of Trustees.

It was Adams who gave the library its name. "Albert Crane wanted it to be 'The Quincy Free Public Library,'" Adams insisted on "The Thomas Crane Public Library."

"Who's giving the building?" asked Albert Crane.

"You are, but you wouldn't have if it hadn't been for me," said Adams, who was used to having his way around Quincy, and that was that.

President John Adams' modest collection of books was housed in the library until 1893, when it was discovered that in 11 years only two persons, one of them Charles Francis Adams, Jr., had asked to see them. They were then transferred to the Boston Public Library.

At the start, Richardson's magnificent building was all but hidden behind a grain store, a hotel, an office building and four homes that lined Washington St.

Albert Crane, however, was a persistent man and, by the time he died in 1917, he had purchased and torn down all the buildings, leaving a broad expanse of open space to enhance the library.

But before the lawn could be seeded, World War I intervened and, in a burst of patriotism — "Food will win the war," they said — the area was planted with potatoes, tended by an expert brought in from Maine. The experiment failed.

"There wasn't a potato in the lot that was anywhere near as large as a golf ball," said Mayor Joseph L. Whiton. The harvest was donated to the poor farm.

Albert Crane also put up $64,000 to build the Spear St. wing of the library in 1907-08 and the Crane family gave yet another $164,000 for the free standing addition, built in 1938.

A new $18 million addition that almost doubled the size of the existing library was completed in the spring of 2001 with money from the Crane endowment used to purchase the property and the rest paid for with a city bond issue.

The Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., is open to the public, free of charge, Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Friday and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. It is closed on Saturdays and Sundays during July and August.

Quincy's Granite Was Famed The World Over

Three just holes in the ground now attractive and perilous nuisances that, over the years, have filled with water and lured swimmers to their dooms unaware of the dangers that lie in the cool green depths.

But there was a time, more than 100 years ago, when the Quincy granite quarries swarmed with workmen hacking out stone that was sought as prime building material around the world.

Like Topse, the granite industry in Quincy just grewed.

The earliest settlers used the surface boulders found on the North and South Commons to build the foundations of their homes and the fences that separated them from their neighbors.

At the industry's height in the late 1800s, there were more than 30 operating quarries and in one of them, Jonathan Swingle's quarry, men dug for granite at a depth of 345 feet below the surface.

The first known use of Quincy granite as a building material was the town's second meeting house in 1666, a scant 41 years after the first settlement at Mount Wollaston.

The stone building served a dual purpose. Sometimes it was a church where the community worshipped, other times it served as a fort in case of an Indian attack.

Quarrying in general was in its infancy, an inexact science in those days.

The process of cutting a rock to size was simple — build a fire around it, then drop an iron ball or cold water on the rock, which would break at approximately the desired spot.

Later, the quarrymen used wooden wedges which expanded when wet to split the stone, then sledges and hammers introduced by German immigrants, finally iron wedges.

These were the methods used to obtain granite to build King's Chapel in Boston (1753), the State Prison in Charlestown (1815), the Dedham jail (1817) and St. Paul's Church in Boston (1820).

That was the situation when Solomon Willard decided to commemorate the Battle of Bunker Hill (actually Breed's Hill) by building a monument out of Quincy granite.

SWINGLE'S QUARRY in West Quincy, which eventually reached a depth of 345 feet below ground, was one of more than 30 in operation at the height of the Quincy granite boom some 100 years ago.

(From the Collection of Tom Galvin)

The problem was that no one had ever built with such large pieces of stone before and no one knew how to quarry it or work it or transport it to the building location.

Willard, who quit his job as an architect and moved to Quincy to direct quarrying operations for the Bunker Hill Monument, had to devise new methods for obtaining and working the stone.

The new method of transportation, devised by Gridley Bryant, involved the construction of the first commercial railroad in the United States to carry stone from the quarry to the Neponset River.

Willard's inventions and new methods inaugurated what is known as "the Stone Age" of American architecture and the Quincy granite industry flourished along with it.

Quincy granite, known for its durability and its ability to take a high polish, was shipped all over the world under the trade names "Quincy Light," "Quincy Dark," and "Quincy Extra Dark."

The demise of the granite industry started after World War I when lighter and more malleable building materials were developed with which to construct stronger and less costly buildings.

The last operating quarry, Swingle's, went out of business in 1963.

Quincy Was Almost Hancock

If some of the early settlers had their way, you would be living in the city of Hancock today instead of the city of Quincy.

Quincy, like George Washington, was born on Feb. 22.

On Feb. 22, 1792, the General Court of Massachusetts passed an act incorporating the North Precinct of Old Braintree as the separate town of Quincy.

But, just before that, quite a few of the residents wanted the new town named after native son John Hancock instead of Boston born Colonel John Quincy.

Colonel Quincy, who had represented Old Braintree in the General Court, was the great grandfather of President John Quincy Adams.

Many people today think Quincy was named after the sixth President but the honor actually goes to his great-grandfather.

John Hancock, who was born in the North Precinct, was governor of Massachusetts when the General Court passed the act incorporating the new town as Quincy. He signed the act the following day.

But at the first town meeting of the new town in May, a petition was presented to change the name from Quincy to Hancock in honor of the patriot and first signer of the Declaration of Independence. The move was finally defeated after a stormy verbal battle.

JOHN HANCOCK

Opponents argued that Hancock was still alive and that the honor should go to a distinguished but deceased person.

Colonel Quincy met those requirements. He was both distinguished and deceased.

He had represented Old Braintree in the General Court from 1717 to 1741, 12 of those years as Speaker of the House. He died in 1767 at age 77, two days after John Quincy Adams was born.

Quincy became a city June 11, 1888. But a lot of people will go right on thinking Quincy was named after John Quincy Adams.

Josiah Quincy House

Lookout For Spying On British Ships

Abigail Adams stood with her great uncle, Col. Josiah Quincy, in a window of his mansion overlooking Wollaston Beach and watched the tall masts of 170 ships stand slowly out to sea. It was March 17, 1776. The British were evacuating Boston.

But even as naturally there was tranquility.

Above the departing ships were more than 1,000 British soldiers who had chosen King above country, and one of them was Abigail's cousin, Samuel Quincy, the Colonel's only remaining son, an avowed Tory.

I take a long farewell, his sister, Hannah, wrote to him for one last time.

Let it not be published that a brother of such brothers fled from his country. Can you expect to walk uprightly now? Can you take fire in your bosom and not be burned?

Two of Col. Josiah Quincy's sons had died young. Now he had no more.

But there was no time for regrets. The work of revolution had begun. The second floor of the house at what is now 20 Muirhead St., Wollaston, was a lookout from which the 60-year-old Colonel spied on British ship movements for his friend, Gen. George Washington.

A few months before, Col. Quincy watched the Royal Governor, Gen. Thomas Gage, depart and he scratched on a pane of window glass the reminder, "Oct.

10, 1775. General Gage sailed for England with a fair wind."

This time he remained in the window for three days as the British tall ships moved restlessly about the Harbor as it reluctant to leave. Finally, on March 20, the last, it then passed through the roadstead and out to sea.

The mansion in Wollaston, a two-story brown tower under the eaves of the Governor's grandson, the third Josiah, the "Great Major" of Boston, president of Harvard and Congressman, who called it "Tranquilla" and used it as his summer home.

It was there that the Marquis de Lafayette visited one Sunday afternoon after dinner with his friend, ex President John Adams at the Adams Mansion. He carried flowers from the Adams garden for Mrs. Eliza Susan Quincy and her five attractive daughters.

The house was built in 1770 by the old Colonel himself, the first in a line of six Josiahs. It was said that, while most families passed their line from sire to son, the Quincys went from 'Siah to 'Siah.

But, while there were six Josiahs and innumerable Edmunds, the city was named for yet another member of the prolific family — Col. John Quincy, the great-grandfather of John Quincy Adams, sixth president of the United States.

The house, which was painted yellow for many years, recently underwent a conversion to beige to more accurately re-

Abigail Adams Cairn

The Smoke Could Be Seen Over Bunker Hill

Abigail Adams was awakened at dawn in the farmhouse at the foot of Penn's Hill by the sound of far-off guns. All through the sweltering morning of June 17, 1775, as she hustled about with the chores, the dull boom of cannon intruded on her consciousness.

Riders on the Coast Road to Plymouth, stopping at the farmhouse for a drink of water, told her of a great battle underway on Breed's Hill in Charlestown.

One of them brought word that Dr. Joseph Warren had been killed in the fighting and little Abby, age 10, burst into tears, and John Quincy, nearly 8, felt bewildered and sad, for Dr. Warren was the Adams family doctor in Boston.

In the afternoon, Abigail could stand it no longer. Taking Abby and John Quincy by the hand, she walked up the Coast Road to the top of Penn's Hill and climbed up on the rocks for a better view.

The panorama of the Bay, a shimmering blue in the sunshine, spread out before them, the tiny houses on the three hills of Boston and, beyond, the black smoke rising in billows.

"Good God," exclaimed Abigail, "they are burning Charlestown!"

The scene etched itself forever in John Quincy's memory.

The early days of the Revolution were times of turmoil in Old Braintree and its North Precinct, which was later called Quincy.

Abigail's husband, John, was away most of the time at the Continental Congress in Philadelphia, leaving 31-year-old Abigail to manage the farm and look to the needs of four small children: Abigail, John Quincy, Charles, 5, and Thomas Boylston, 3.

There were days of alarm as the British, penned up in Boston by the brand new Continental Army, foraged up and down the coast for supplies. Refugees from occupied Boston and the inner towns of Dorchester and Roxbury sometimes slept in the kitchen and in the fields.

As the wife of a member of Congress, Abigail was a center of attention. The house on the Coast Road was a favorite stopping place for travelers to Plymouth. Politicians up from Philadelphia made it a point to stop by for a visit with John Adams' wife.

Abigail was invited to visit Gen. George Washington's headquarters at Winter Hill. The aristocratic Washington was suspect among New Englanders. He was a Virginian; he was an Anglican; and, it was said, he held slaves. But John Adams liked him and Abigail was soon charmed.

One day, young John Quincy came home to find his Uncle Elihu melting down Abigail's pewter spoons in the kitchen to make bullet molds. He looked at his mother and she looked back at him and something indefinable passed between them.

"Do you wonder," wrote the sixth President of the United States some 68 years later, "that a boy of 7 who witnessed this scene should be a patriot."

In 1896, where the old Coast Road (now Franklin Street) meets Viden Road atop Penn's Hill, a stone cairn was built to mark the spot where Abigail and young John Quincy watched the Battle of Bunker Hill. It is open to the public and free of charge.

City Named For Him But: Col. John Quincy Something Of A Mystery Man

Few men have served the public good longer or as well as Col. John Quincy.

He was Speaker of the Massachusetts House, a governor's councillor, a selectman and perennial moderator of the town meeting in Old Braintree, commander of the local militia regiment and guardian of the rights of the few Ponkapoag Indians who survived the plague.

And through his granddaughter, Abigail Adams, nee Smith, he was the grandfather in law of the second president of the United States and the great grandfather of the sixth.

Small wonder then, that when the North Precinct broke away from Old Braintree in 1792 they named the new town Quincy.

Col. John Quincy is something of a mystery man, even in the city that bears his name. It is not known for sure when he came to Old Braintree. Nor is there a picture of him extant or even a physical description of him in the words that have been left to us by his contemporaries.

During celebration in Quincy in 1908, the main speaker, the Rev. Daniel Munro

COL. JOHN QUINCY tankard, part of the Colonel's bequest to the First Parish Church in Quincy in 1767, is one of the few remaining relics of the man for whom the city is named. It was purchased at auction by former City Councillor George Burke when the church decided to sell its silver to pay for repairs.

Wilson, noted that "in his day, he was one of the most trusted and influential public characters of the province; but for a hundred years or more, he has now been buried in oblivion.

"For example, I once mentioned John Quincy to a lifelong resident, a man of affairs and influence in the town. The response was: 'John Quincy? John Quincy? I never heard of him before!' Another in the group then exclaimed: 'You mean John Quincy Adams, don't you?'"

John Quincy was born in Boston. His father, Daniel, died when he was a year old and his widowed mother, Anna, married the Rev. Moses Fiske, minister of the First Parish Church in Braintree.

He graduated from Harvard in 1708, obtained a master's degree in 1711 and inherited, through his mother, a good-sized farm in Mount Wollaston and lived there for the rest of his life.

John Quincy's rise in public life was meteoric.

He married Elizabeth Norton, the daughter of a Hingham minister, in 1715 and was named justice of the peace the same year, moderator of the town meeting a year later and began 22 years of service in the House a year after that. He was Speaker of the House for 12 years, starting in 1729.

In 1741, he was manipulated out of his posts as commander of the Suffolk militia regiment by a wealthy Boston lawyer named Joseph Gooch, who is described by some as an "opportunist," and by others as an "unsavory demagogue."

Gooch tried and failed to launch a legal and political career in Boston so he renounced his old home town and retreated to Old Braintree where he rented a house, joined the church — he pledged to build a new steeple — and set about ingratiating himself to the populace in order to advance his political and military career.

"It was at this time," wrote President John Adams himself, "the corrupt practice of treating, as they called it, at training and at elections was introduced, which so long prevailed in the town of Braintree."

In other words, beer and cider, supplied by Gooch, flowed freely on the training field and, in the taverns, he was always around to buy a round in the name of good fellowship. The strategy prevailed and Quincy was dismissed as militia commander.

His banishment was short-lived, however.

"Application was made to all the captains, lieutenants and ensigns . . . to see if they would accept commissions under Colonel Gooch," wrote Adams.

"The then present officers . . . rejected the proposition with scorn. My father was among them. He was offered a captain's commission. He spurned the offer with disdain: would serve in the militia under no colonel but Quincy."

All of which demoralized the people of Braintree and they turned Gooch out at the first opportunity, "which so enraged him that he swore he would no longer live in Braintree, renounced the church, refused to build their steeple, built himself a house on Milton Hill, and there passed the remainder of his days."

Quincy's reputation was such that he was named by the legislature to be trustee of the funds of the Ponkapoag Indians, survivors of a devastating plague. He held the post for 20 years at the insistence of the Indians themselves.

He befriended the Indians and they visited his Mount Wollaston estate frequently to be entertained with beer and cider. Indians camped near his home during fishing season, sometimes remaining for weeks.

He quit as trustee of the Ponkapoags, who lived in what is now Stoughton, because, as his report stated, "several of the Indians who survive are aged and infirm and so unable to come to your Memorialist for supplies as formerly, by reason of their distance from him."

Whenever there was a civic job to be done, it was the practice of the people of Old Braintree to appoint Col. John Quincy to do it. Thus it was that he was called on to chair the committee that first recommended the North Precinct become a separate town. That was in 1728.

It took 64 years but finally it was done and, when it was, they named it for John Quincy.

Adams Academy On Site Of John Hancock's Birthplace

By modern standards, the boarding house at the corner of Hancock and Depot Sts. had all the aspects of a genteel prison.

Residents were forbidden to leave between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m. They could not enter or leave at any time except by the hall door. They were banned from pool halls and bars. Smoking materials also were forbidden to them.

In exchange for good behavior, plus tuition ranging from $75 to $150 a year, they were given the best prep school education of the day, for they were students at Adams Academy, which flourished from 1872 to 1907 in Quincy.

The academy was a gift of John Adams, the second President of the United States, who always had his checkbook ready to fill the spiritual and educational needs of the citizens of his beloved Quincy.

The trust fund, nourished by "rents, profits and emoluments" from certain Adams-owned properties, was set up in the Adams will of 1822, but it was not until 1869 that the fund was deemed large enough to start construction.

The location was specified by Adams himself as the corner of Adams and Hancock Streets, site of the birthplace of his childhood friend, John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence.

The doors opened to the first students, 24 of them, on Sept. 4, 1872. Five years later, the academy reached a peak enrollment of 154 with an international student body—25 from Quincy, four from Washington, D.C., 125 from 14 states, two from England and one from Chile.

It had one of the earliest prep school football teams, too, recording a tie with the Resolutes of Boston on Oct. 21, 1876, a scant seven years after Princeton and Rutgers played the first college game. It whipped Andover three times from 1877-79.

The admissions catalogue specified that applicants be "well prepared in the usual studies of good grammar school" and warned that "no pupils are desired to give them a collegiate education."

The best known headmaster was Dr. William Everett, once acclaimed as one of the seven smartest men in the world. He ran the academy with a firm hand from 1878 to 1893 and again from 1897 to 1907. From 1893 to 1897, he was a U.S. congressman from Lynn.

Dr. Everett, an amiable if sometimes waspish eccentric, was widely known as the man who hated Abraham Lincoln. He had reason. His father was Edward Everett, whose masterful oration at Gettysburg was over-shadowed by Lincoln's notes scribbled on the back of an envelope.

It was Dr. Everett, who signaled the passing of Adams Academy—and many other 19th Century classical prep schools—at graduation exercises in 1907 when he said that "unless someone comes forward and planks down $50,000, the academy will be closed."

Nobody did. On June 22, 1907, the Adams Academy officially closed its doors.

The building today is occupied by the Quincy Historical Society, which maintains a museum and research library in the old classrooms as well as an expanded gift shop.

The museum and gift shop are open all year, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Call 617-773-1144 for weekend hours. The library is open Monday and Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 12 noon, Friday from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Other times by appointment. It is closed Sunday and holidays.

Patriots, Early Settlers, Intrigue Buried Here

Henry, the first Adams in Quincy, is buried there. So is the Rev. John Hancock, father of the first signer of the Declaration of Independence. And Colonel John Quincy, for whom the city is named.

But of all the 800 graves in the Hancock Cemetery, the Old Burying Ground of Colonial Quincy, most intriguing is one marked by a tombstone bearing this cryptic epitaph:

Erected to the memory of John R. Grieve. Died Nov. 12, 1850, age 22 years, and Hannah Banks, his wife, died Nov. 12, 1850, age 15 years. Both of Zanesville, Ohio. Deluded by the writings of A. J. Davis.

The mystery of John and Hannah has never been fully solved.

They came to Quincy in 1850, not as man and wife, but as male cousins, John Green and George Sands. They obtained work in a shoe factory, but rarely left their lodgings on Elm St., spending long hours reading books on spiritualism.

Co-Workers thought that George Sands looked frail, almost effeminate. It was widely suspected that "he" was a girl. A scheme was devised to test the theory.

One day at lunch one of the shoe workers tossed George an apple. A man would catch it by closing his legs, a woman by spreading her skirt. Guess what "George" did!

HANCOCK CEMETERY
(Quincy Heritage Photo)

Humiliated, John and Hannah never went back to the factory. Nor did they ever return to the house on Elm St. Their frozen bodies were found next spring by rabbit hunters on Penn's Hill, locked in a loving embrace.

Several months later, the father of John Grieve arrived from Ohio to bury the young couple. It was he who directed the words to be chiselled on the headstone. He explained no further.

A.J. Davis was never identified for sure. But Andrew Jackson Davis, a spiritualist, hypnotist and faith healer, was then practicing in Boston.

Among the belongings found in the Elm. St. lodgings were these words, written by 15-year-old Hannah Banks:

"To the oppressed and downtrodden, to the suffering and afflicted, I would cry out...Death is only an event, only a circumstance in the eternal life experience of the human soul. Death is simply a birth into a new and perfect state of existence."

Not far from the grave of John and Hannah is a tomb bearing words that cry out of an earlier injustice:

"Three precious friends under this tombstone lie

"Patterns to aged, youth and infancy.

"A great mother, her learned son, with child.

"The first and least went free. He was exiled.

"In love to Christ, this country, and dear friends.

"He left his own, cross'd seas and for amends

"Was here extoll'd, and envy'd all in a breath.

"His noble consort leaves, is drawn to death.

"Stranger changes may befall us ere we die,

"Blest they who will arrive eternally.

"God grant some names, O thou New England's friend.

"Don't sooner fade than thine, if times don't mend."

The tomb with its hidden message contains the family of the Rev. Leonard Hoar, third president of Harvard College, a man too liberal for his times.

He was forced by the General Court of the Massachusetts Bay Colony to resign at the instigation of religious opponents and jealous colleagues for permitting Harvard to "languish and decay." Eight months later, in November 1675, he was dead at 45.

In 1975, the same General Court, now of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, righted the 300-year-old wrong done to the Rev. Mr. Hoar by "proclaiming and confirming his innocence of any misdeeds while president of Harvard College."

The cemetery, on Hancock St., Quincy Sq., next to City Hall, is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

John Quincy Adams:

The Old Flame Still Burned

The old man's bitterness glowed from every word as he penned them in his diary on June 17, 1843, the day the Bunker Hill Monument was dedicated.

"What a name in the annals of mankind is Bunker Hill! What a day was the 17th of June, 1775! And what a burlesque upon them both is an oration upon them by Daniel Webster!"

The old man despised Webster as a turncoat to his own heritage, one whose compromises had sold out to slavery.

"The ideal associations thundering cannon, which I heard, and the smoke of burning Charlestown, which I saw, on that awful day... How could I have witnessed all this at once, without an unbecoming burst of indignation."

"Daniel Webster is a heartless traitor to the cause of freedom: John Tyler [the President] is a slave monger. What have these to do with the Quincy granite pyramid on the brow of Bunker Hill?"

"I stayed home..."

The old flame still burned in John Quincy Adams at 75.

John Adams 'Father'

U.S., State Constitution Both Born Here

Quincy Birthplace of John Adams, John Quincy Adams and John Hancock also has claim to the birth of the U.S. Constitution.

The seat for this historic document was painted here.

The U.S. Constitution was modeled after the Massachusetts Constitution which was written by John Adams, Samuel Adams and James Bowdoin in Adams' law office of the John Quincy Adams birthplace in Quincy.

There is every reason to believe that John Adams did not want to go the Massachusetts Constitution Convention in Cambridge in 1779.

He had arrived home only seven days before on the French frigate La Sensible after nearly 18 months in Paris helping to negotiate a commercial and military alliance with France. He was in such a rush to get home that he apparently landed the day before La Sensible reached Boston by rowing ashore from Nantasket Roads.

He missed his wife, Abigail, terribly, and she him.

"One was angry, another was full of Grief, and the third with Melancholy, so that I burnt them all," he wrote to her from Passy on Dec. 18, 1778, listing his complaints with her most recent letters. "If you write me in this style I shall leave of writing intirely, it kills me.

"Am I not wretched Enough, in this Banishment, without this? What Course shall I take to convince you that my Heart is warm? I beg you would never more write to me in such a strain for it really makes me unhappy."

"How lonely are my days?" she wrote on a Sunday evening, Dec. 27. "How solitary are my Nights? How insupportable the Idea that 3000 leagues, and the vast ocean now divide us—but divide only our persons for the Heart of my Friend is in the Bosom of his partner."

Somewhere on the vast ocean the two letters passed each other.

Paris and the dissolute court of Louis XVI held small appeal to the Puritan in John Adams, even when his closest everyday companions were Dr. Benjamin Franklin, still with an eye for the ladies at age 73, and the swashbuckling Capt. John Paul Jones, half patriot, half pirate, who had just taken command of the leaky old East Indiaman he had renamed Bon Homme Richard.

The American colonies, newly reborn as the United States of America, were going through the most dismal period of the War for Independence. Inflation was rampant, butcher's meat, a dollar to eight shillings a pound; flour, fifty dollars a hundredweight. The news from the fighting front was of death, privation and horror.

Like many Braintree wives whose husbands were away at war, Abigail Adams was forced into the unaccustomed role of head of the household, a function she filled with determination.

"I cannot avoid sometimes repining that the gifts of fortune were not bestowed upon us, that I might have enjoyed the happiness of spending my days with my partner," she wrote, "but as it is, I think it my duty to attend with frugality and economy to our own private affairs; and if I cannot add to our little substance, yet see to it that it is not diminished."

She abstained from drinking black market tea, allowing herself one tiny complaint: "I should like a little green (tea), but they say there is none to be had here. I only wish it for a medicine, as a relief to a nervous pain in my head to which I am sometimes subject."

John Adams attended the opening session of the Constitutional Convention in Cambridge on Wednesday, June 1, 1779. On Saturday, he was named to a committee of 30 to prepare the declaration of rights and the constitution. On Monday, the committee delegated the task to a subcommittee of three, John and Samuel Adams, and James Bowdoin.

Thus it was that John Adams would up in the law office of his home at the foot of Penn's Hill, paired with his firebrand cousin, Sam, and his ailing friend, James Bowdoin, to write a Constitution for Massachusetts.

The patient, hard-working John Adams, of course, did most of the work.

"I was by the Convention put upon the Committee—by the Committee upon the subcommittee—and by the subcommittee appointed a sub subcommittee—so that I had the honor to be principal Engineer," he wrote to his friend, Edmund Jennings. Payroll records indicate that he was paid 90 pounds for his work.

The so-called "Adams draft" of the Massachusetts Constitution was accepted by the Convention with a few alterations but by that time John Adams was long gone back to Europe, this time to help negotiate a treaty of peace with Britain and serve as America's first minister to London. He did not see the farm at the foot of Penn's Hill again for another eight years.

But he was immensely heartened by these words from the pen of his ever-loving Abigail, written on Oct. 15, 1780:

"Our Massachusetts Constitution is read with admission in New York and pronounced by the Royal Governor as the best republican form he ever saw."

Seat Of Government For 158 Years

Daniel and Hannah French deeded the land to the town of Quincy for $1,000 with the stipulation that it "shall not be used for any other purpose than as a place for a Town House and for the said Inhabitants."

And, with a few minor transgressions of that vow, the solid structure of Quincy granite on Quincy Square has been just that for the past 158 years, the nerve center of government for the town and then the city.

It was the great hall on the second floor that the popular John Quincy Adams II, grandson of a President of the United States, held forth as town moderator for many years and, with his brother, Charles Francis Adams Jr., gave informal direction to town affairs.

One of the earliest ordinances passed by the first City Council on March 8, 1889 was the adoption of the City Seal emblazoned with the four most significant dates in Quincy's history:

1625, for the first settlement on Mount Wollaston; 1640, for its separation from Boston as the town of Braintree; 1792, for its separation from Braintree as the town of Quincy; and 1888, for its incorporation as a city.

CITY HALL

Designed by the architect Solomon Willard — who received $280 for drawing up the plans and superintending construction for five months — the City Hall was completed and occupied for the first time on Nov. 1, 1844.

It cost exactly $19,115.93 to build, including 88 cents to John Briesler for lead to seal the chimney.

In 1979, when a three and a half story reflective glass addition was built behind the old City Hall, the cost was $1.9 million.

THE GRANITE RAILWAY

The Granite Railway First Commerical Railroad In U.S.

It was the damdest looking contraption that many among the distinguished gathering had ever seen.

Each of the three wagons had four wheels, six and one half feet in diameter, surmounted by a smaller gear wheel which was used to raise and lower the cargo platform that was slung low between the wheels.

It rode on foot-high wooden rails, topped by iron plate, which rested on stone sleepers or cross ties, placed eight feet apart and firmly supported on crushed granite to a depth beyond the frost line.

On Saturday, Oct. 7, 1826, the wagons were laden with 16 tons of the finest Quincy granite and the opening day guests were properly amazed when a single horse moved the whole thing with ease more than three miles to a special wharf on the Neponset River.

The granite blocks, a particularly hard and weather-resistant stone capable of taking a brilliant polish, were en route to Charlestown, where they were building a monument to the Battle of Bunker Hill.

The Granite Railway, the first such commercial venture in the United States, was built specifically to transport stone for the Bunker Hill Monument.

That it became successful, and a model for others around the country, is a tribute to three vastly dissimilar men, the engineer Gridley Bryant, the architect Solomon Willard and the financier, Colonel Thomas Handasyd Perkins.

Bryant was 27 at the time but already an engineer of note. He invented the eight wheeled railroad car and, when a fellow named Ross Winans of Baltimore sued to establish a patent on it, Bryant was able to prove his claim to the satisfaction of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Willard, then 43, was a great bear of a man, gentle, obliging, industrious. Frivolity, it was said, was alien to him and he was never known to run. He could be crotchety, too. He was a carpenter turned wood-carver, turned stone-carver and, finally architect.

Perkins was the autocratic, 52-year-old merchant king of Boston who was said to have been offered the post of Secretary of the Navy by President Washington and turned it down with the observation that he owned more ships than the Navy.

It was Perkins who lobbied the Railway's charter through a puzzled and obstinate State Legislature, which had never been called upon to incorporate a commercial railroad before. It was Perkins who financed it, too, largely with his own money.

Even in its early days, the Granite Railway was a tourist attraction of some magnitude.

Daniel Webster, who used to stop off for a pick-me-up in Quincy en route from Boston and Washington to his home in Marshfield, viewed it and decided that it would never succeed because of the frost that would form on the rails in the winter.

The President of the United States, a local boy named John Quincy Adams, visited in August, 1827, got caught in a thunderstorm and took shelter in a shed where Willard's stone-cutters were hacking away at monument granite.

A group of visitors were riding up the Railway's incline in an empty car on July 25, 1832, when the chain broke and catapulted them over a 40-foot cliff. One was killed in what may have been the first railroad fatality in the United States.

The Granite Railway Co. survived until 1870, some 27 years after the Bunker Hill Monument was finished, when most of its track was taken over by the Old Colony Railroad, which in turn became a division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford.

Today much of the roadbed, over which freight moved commercially on rails for the first time in America, is buried under the macadam of the Southeast Expressway.

The incline of the old Railway has been restored and is located at the dead end of Mullin Ave. in West Quincy. It is open to the public year around, 24 hours a day. There is no admission charge.

Dedication, Growth Hallmarks Since 1888

Quincy Medical Center Has Proud History

Less than two months after the City Hospital of Quincy was dedicated, the mettle of its staff of 12 doctors and a like number of nurses was tested to the limit and beyond.

It passed with flying colors.

A passenger train from Woods Hole to Boston with 391 aboard, most of them summer tourists, was derailed at the Dimmock Street bridge behind Adams Academy on the hospital's very doorstep.

A total of 23 passengers were killed and 30 injured.

All the doctors and nurses at the hospital responded and, by the time requested medical aid arrived from Boston and Cambridge, the local medics had things under control.

The hospital was founded by a group of doctors led by Dr. John A. Gordon, who was concerned about lung ailments among granite stonemasons who inhaled dust particles while at their work.

It was a private cottage hospital at first, founded in 1888 with 25 beds, incorporated a year later, and dedicated June 17, 1890 on three and a half acres of land donated by William B. Rice.

From that inauspicious start, like Topsy, it just grew.

A two-year training program for nurses was started as well as an emergency room and an ambulance service. Beds for pediatric and maternity patients and departments of social services and physical therapy were added.

Demands on the hospital proved to be so great during World War I that it had to be taken over by the city and, on March 1, 1919, it became Quincy City Hospital.

A medical/surgical building was added and it became the first hospital south of Boston to have an EKG machine and the first community hospital to receive approval for magnetic resonance imaging

TODAY'S QUINCY MEDICAL Center began as a private cottage hospital in 1888 with 25 beds. It is now a 282-bed community-teaching hospital.

Adams's Crucial Nominations

John Adams, the farmer's son from Old Braintree, not only had a hand in writing the U. S. Constitution, but he made two nominations to posts that proved to be critical to the future of the new republic.

As a member of the Continental Congress, he eschewed intercolonial rivalries and nominated George Washington, a Virginia planter, as commander in chief of the Continental army.

As president, he nominated John Marshall as chief justice of the Supreme Court, where he served 34 years and established the basic principle that the court can invalidate an act of Congress.

(MRI).

Today, the hospital is the Quincy Medical Center, a 282-bed community-teaching hospital, allied with the Boston Medical Center and clinically affiliated with the Boston University School of Medicine.

The Meaning Of 'Manet'

The word "Manet" on the official seal of the city of Quincy means "It Remains" in Latin.

First Iron Works

Steel Industry Born Here In 1644

It failed after nine years of effort and since failure was anathema in a growing America, perhaps that is why the site and even the memory of the first commercial iron blast furnace in the United States was lost for so long.

It flourished if that is the word, from 1644 to 1653 on the banks of the Mount Wollaston River in a section of Old Braintree called "the Woods." It left its name on the river, now Furnace Brook in West Quincy.

Iron was an important commodity in Colonial Massachusetts, particularly for nails and pots and pans. Unfortunately, iron utensils had to be imported from England, a costly process for the penniless colonists.

With this in mind, John Winthrop Jr., son of the governor of the Massachusetts Bay Colony (Did someone cry nepotism?), went to London and formed the "Company of Undertakers for the Ironworks in New England." He, of course, became the local agent.

The Company gave Winthrop a thousand pounds of capital and a work crew of indentured servants, many of whom ran away when they heard they were going to the wilds of America. Jail was better than that!

When, after a search from Maine to Plymouth, he decided to locate in Quincy, Winthrop was also granted 3,000 acres of land, with subsidiary land rights elsewhere in the colony, and a 21-year monopoly.

The operation was deemed of such importance that the iron workers were given exemption from militia duty, this at a time when war was imminent with the Narragansett Indians and with Ninigret, the sachem of the Niantics.

The first iron was turned out in 1644.

but young Winthrop was fired the next year to be succeeded by Richard Leader. It is interesting to note that one of America's earliest magnates toiled for a salary of 100 pounds a year.

The ore from which iron was blasted on the banks of Furnace Brook came from the swamps and bogs. It was not a high quality product. Water power from a dam thrown across the brook was inadequate. Quincy iron ore proved to be more expensive than the imported kind.

The Company of Undertakers appealed for fresh money in 1646 and apparently there were enough investors ready to send good money after bad because the furnace was still in operation in 1650 when the Scotch Prisoners arrived.

The Scots were rugged Highlanders, soldiers in the army of the future King Charles II, who were captured in the Battle of Dunbar. They suffered the fate common to most 17th Century prisoners of war.

Cromwell shipped 272 of them to New England, cheap labor in an effort to make Quincy's iron works a paying proposition. It didn't work. The Company of Undertakers went bankrupt in 1653 and "the Woods" went back to the bear and the deer.

Meanwhile, with the same Richard Leader as agent, construction began on a second iron works in Saugus on the North Shore of Boston in 1646. When it was completed in 1650 it was recognized as the first integrated iron industry in America.

The remains of the John Winthrop Jr. Blast Furnace are located in Hall Cemetery on Crescent Street, West Quincy. The site is open free to the public.

'First Ladies Of The Skies' Amelia Earhart, Harriet Quimby Had Quincy Ties

Abigail Adams is not Quincy's only "First Lady." The city has claim to two "first ladies" of the skies, Amelia Earhart and Harriet Quimby.

Earhart, then country's most famous aviatrix who disappeared in the Pacific on an around-the-world flight in 1937, learned to fly at Dennison Airport in North Quincy in the 1920s.

Quimby, although not as well known, actually was the first woman to earn a pilot's license. She flew out of the Harvard Aviation Field on East Squantum Street and died in a tragic Aeromeet crash.

Earhart, though a resident of Medford at the time, was one of five financial backers of the Dennison Airport established on a nine-acre marshland tract at Quincy Shore Drive and East Squantum Street.

The Beechwood Community Life Center is now located on part of the site across from historic Moswetuset Hummock where the Moswetuset Indians settled and from which the name Massachusetts is derived.

Earhart was one of the passengers on the first official flight from the airport Sept. 3, 1927. She must have liked it because a short while later she started taking flying lessons at Dennison.

She later bought a Fokker monoplane from Commander Richard E. Byrd, who would become the famed North Pole explorer. She tested the plane at Dennison and flew it across the Atlantic Ocean, the first woman to accomplish the feat.

Byrd was stationed at the Squantum Naval Air Station which adjoined Dennison Airport in what is now the Marina Bay area of Squantum.

Quincy's first Aeromeet was, held in 1910, marked the beginning of New England's aviation history. The 1910 meet coincided with the country's first air show held in California. Other Quincy meets followed in 1911 and 1912.

Harriet Quimby, the first woman to fly the English Channel in 1911, came to Squantum to compete in the third Aeromeet in 1912.

On July 1, she took off from the Harvard Aviation Field for a 27-mile demonstration flight out to Boston Light. As her Bleriot turned around the Light and headed back, the plane nosed down and plummeted into Dorchester Bay.

As the horrified crowd of 5,000 watched, Quimby's passenger, William Willard, manager of the Aeromeet, fell from the plane into the mudflats. Harriet followed. The plane nosed over on impact. It was undamaged. Both Quimby and Willard died.

Fifteen years later, in 1927, the Dennison Airport, Quincy's first and only commercial airport was founded with two 1,800-foot landing strips. It had a brief life span of 14 years on marshland leased from the U.S. government by Harold T. Dennison, a Quincy architect.

The airport's stucco hangar and office building became a landmark until it closed in 1941. It is now the site of the Aviation History Info Center at Beechwood on the Bay.

HARRIET QUIMBY

In an era when most women were not employed or career-oriented, Earhart and Quimby were unique.

Both were educated, employed and self-sufficient with multiple community, career and public roles. Neither were suffragettes or active feminists, but both were gifted, courageous and tireless women — promoting and demonstrating equal rights for women. Both were published journalists and photographers. Both met untimely and tragic deaths.

The historical significance of the Squantum site has prompted study, information gathering, research and collections of early aviation photographs and artifacts. Quincy's Aviation History Info Center evolved from three years of community meetings and help from aviation history buffs, journalists, historians and interested folks from the community.

THE MYLES STANDISH Cairn, erected in 1895, in the Squaw Rock area of Squantum commemorates his visit here Sept. 30, 1621. He was guided across the bay by Tisquantum or Squanto who became the early settlers' friend. Squantum was named after him.

Neighbors Had A Nickname Duchess Of Windsor A Former Resident

No, the Duchess of Windsor was not a Quincy girl but she lived here for a time long before King Edward VIII gave up the British throne "for the woman I love."

She lived in Wollaston in 1917 while she was married to her first husband, a young lieutenant stationed at a Naval Air school in Squantum, which later became the Squantum Naval Air Station.

The Massachusetts Naval Militia maintained a training field in what is now the Marina Bay area which was taken over by the First Naval District as a school to train young aviators to fly the new fangled air planes.

Assigned as head of the school was Lt. Larle W. Spencer.

He was married to the former Wallis Warfield, the Baltimore belle who later, as a twice-divorced woman, became the Duchess of Windsor when she wed the king who abdicated his throne for her love.

The match touched off a crisis in English royalty. Some thought the king should be allowed to marry her and keep his title as long as she did not become queen. But stronger opposition prevailed and he stepped down.

They were married on June 3, 1937.

DUCHESS OF WINDSOR

While living in Quincy, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer resided in a second floor apartment on Davis Street in Wollaston.

Legend has it that her neighbors in 1917 thought she was somewhat stuck up and snobbish.

In fact, they nicknamed her "the Duchess."

World War II Naval Heroes Nimitz, Burke Had Local Connection

Long before they became famous as Naval heroes of World War II, Chester Nimitz and Arleigh Burke were briefly residents of Quincy.

Fleet Admiral Nimitz, who directed U.S. Naval operations against the Japanese in the Pacific, even married a Quincy girl while waiting for a submarine to which he had been assigned to be outfitted at the Fore River Shipyard in 1913.

Burke, nicknamed "31 knot Burke" as the Navy's most celebrated destroyer squadron commander, lived in Squantum while his 1,500-ton destroyer USS Craven was being outfitted in the 1930s.

Nimitz and Catherine Vance Freeman were wed April 9, 1913 at her family's home at 40 Grand View Ave., Wollaston. Her father, Richard, was a former city council president.

Rev. Carl G. Horst, minister of the Wollaston Unitarian Church on Winthrop Avenue, performed the ceremony. The bride was 21 and the groom 28 on the day he later recalled as "the happiest day of my life."

CHESTER NIMITZ

He was aboard the USS Missouri with General Douglas MacArthur as a signer for the United States in the Japanese surrender ceremonies in Tokyo Bay Sept. 1, 1945.

He died in February, 1966, after suffering a stroke just before his 81st birthday. His wife, Catherine, was at his bedside.

Burke was an inspector at a naval gun factory in Washington when World War II broke out. He quickly applied for sea duty but his request was not granted until 1943, when he was sent to command destroyers in the Solomons.

He earned the nickname "31 Knot Burke" from Admiral William "Bull" Halsey for his exploits in the Solomons as commander of Squadron 23, a pack of eight destroyers whose high-speed torpedo attacks devastated Japanese warships.

"Stand aside! Stand aside! I'm coming through at 31 knots," Burke radioed to darkened American troop transports as he began his attacks.

In 22 engagements in four months, Burke's squadron was credited with sinking one cruiser, nine destroyers, one submarine and nine smaller vessels as well as downing some 30 Japanese airplanes.

Burke was named Chief of Naval Operations over 92 more senior officers by President Eisenhower in 1955 and was offered a fourth two-year term by President Kennedy in 1961 but chose to retire instead. He died in 1996 at the age of 94.

A Third Generation Continues Our Traditions.

Quincy has changed a great deal since Sweeney Funeral Home was established in 1917. But, it's nice to know some things will never change. Like the observance of traditional values and customs.

At Sweeney Funeral Homes, older residents are quick to notice the subtle reminders of yesteryear, such as the grey gloves our funeral director still wears. Like the characteristic top hat and tails that our founder, Dennis Sweeney, wore over 30 years ago, they reflect our Tradition. One that has been built on a dignified and instinctive concern for the city's bereaved families for three generations.

Today, our founder's grand nephew, Dennis S. Sweeney has continued the family's philosophy of maintaining a beautiful, home-like atmosphere.

And like his namesake, who started pre-arrangements in the 1940s, Dennis believes in helping residents to plan for the future. Pre-planning means that this financial decision is not left for a family to decide while they are attempting to cope with a major personal loss. It's a difficult time, a time when family members are least able to make the wisest choice.

Sweeney Funeral Homes has been helping South Shore residents with difficult decisions for over 70 years. Call Dennis Sweeney at (617) 773-2728 for a free consultation. There's no time like the present.

Germantown Glass Works

The Germantown section of Quincy was named for the German workers who were imported to work in a glass factory founded by Joseph Crellius in 1750 and operated by Joseph Palmer.

The glass works was struck by lightning and destroyed five years later after turning out light green, dark green and black bottles as well as the window glass for King's Chapel in Boston.

Only two complete bottles made of Quincy glass are known to survive in the possession of the Quincy Historical Society.

Moswetuset Hummock

'Birthplace Of Massachusetts'

The Indians saw it as a hill (wetuset) shaped like an arrow head (mos) so they called it "Moswetuset" and when English tongues got through mangling the word it came out "Massachusetts," which became the name of the bay and then the state.

The little wooded hillock near the junction of East Squantum Street and Quincy Shore Drive was once the seat of the sachem Chickatabot, who comes down through the pages of Quincy history as a rather pathetic figure.

He was the chief of the Moswetuset Indians, a once great tribe that occupied the coast north of Plymouth.

A few years before, under the great sachem Nanepashemet, the Moswetuset had been able to field some 3,000 warriors for a war with a neighboring tribe. Nanepashemet was killed.

Then came the plague.

In two years the mighty Moswetuset were all but wiped out. No more than 60 of them were left to till their fields on the banks of the Neponset River. Sachem Chickatabot fled his home on the hill in Wollaston and took refuge on Moswetuset Hummock.

That was the situation in 1621 when Capt. Myles Standish landed from a shallop with an exploring party of Plymouth Pilgrims that included the Indian guide Squanto (or Tsquantum), whose name was given to the peninsula that stuck out in the bay. They called it Squantum.

The tragic Chickatabot died not long after the Pilgrims' visit and he was succeeded as sachem by his son, Josiah

Wampatuck, a boy who knew a good deal when he saw one.

Wampatuck sold what was left of his virtually deserted tribal lands to a group of whites for 12 pounds, 10 shillings. The lands included most of what is today the city of Quincy and the towns of Braintree, Randolph and Holbrook.

Moswetuset Hummock, identified by a marker stone and maintained in its natural state, is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

Anne Hutchinson, Husband Spent Summers, Weekends Here

In a day when the shortest of journeys was measured in hours, the North Precinct of Old Braintree, now Quincy, was regarded by many Bostonians as a place of refuge from the cares of the big town.

Such a pair was William Hutchinson and his wife, Anne, who made their home at the corner of School and King (now Washington) Streets in Boston but maintained a farm in the Mount Wollaston section of the North Precinct.

Anne Hutchinson was not your prototype colonial wife.

She held weekly meetings in her Boston home, at which she openly criticized the sermons delivered on the previous Sunday by Boston's ministers, notably the Rev. John Wilson, the minister of her church.

Her theology was more personal, more liberal than the fire and brimstone preached by the establishment ministers, who were disciples of the strict Calvinism of the day.

Soon her informal "congregation" included more than 80 women and then men started coming, too, a development that alarmed the established churchmen of the colony.

A contemporary described her unflatteringly as "a woman of haughty and fierce carriage, of a nimble wit and active spirit, a very voluble tongue, more bold than a man . . ."

As her criticisms became sharper and she began walking out on sermons with which she disagreed, it was clear that something had to be done and done quickly.

Anne was brought to trial before the General Court of Massachusetts and convicted of heresy, a woman "not fit for our society" and banished from the colony. The Rev. Wilson pronounced her "delivered up to Satan" and she was excommunicated by the church.

The Distance To Boston

Stone mile markers across Hancock Street from each other indicate that the traveler is both 7 1/4 and 10 miles from Boston. And both are correct.

The 10-mile marker was placed on the Old Coast Road, one of the oldest highways in the United States still in existence, which went from Boston to Plymouth in 1639 by way of inland Milton.

The 7 1/4-mile marker was raised after the first bridge over the Neponset River was built in 1803, creating the Neponset Turnpike, which is today Hancock Street in North Quincy and Wollaston.

WOLLASTON FIRE STATION forms a backdrop for this 1930 sign that notes where Anne Hutchinson spent her last night in Massachusetts before exile in Rhode Island.

Later, after the death of her husband, she moved to New York, in the area of New Rochelle, where she and all but one member of her family were slain by Indians.

About 338 years later, the Massachusetts General Court revoked her banishment and, after some 350 years, the United Church of Christ, lineal descendant of the old Boston church, rescinded her excommunication and burned the writ that made her an outcast.

A symposium in Newport, Rhode Island, celebrated her as "America's first female theologian."

She is remembered today in Quincy by Anne Hutchinson Square, the intersection of Beale Street and Newport Avenue; by a tablet attached to a block of Roxbury puddingstone (the official state rock); and by a sign at the corner that proclaims:

"WILLIAM HUTCHINSON'S GRANT"

"In William Hutchinson's house near this spot his wife Anne tarried on her way to Rhode Island, exiled from Massachusetts by the General Court in April, 1638."

RUTH GORDON

BILLY DeWOLFE

HOWARD JOHNSON

WILLIAM ROSENBERG

William Rosenberg Founded Dunkin' Donuts Here

Ruth Gordon, Howard Johnson, Billy DeWolfe Had Proud Quincy Roots

Teachers dubbed the Class of 1914 the "worst class" ever at Quincy High School because no one made the honor roll. Too bad they couldn't have looked ahead to the future of Ruth G. Jones.

A year later, armed with a new name, Ruth Gordon, she was on a train bound for New York with a year's tuition to the American Academy of Dramatic Arts and $50 in spending money pinned to her corset.

Ruth Gordon went on to fame and fortune as an actress on the Broadway stage and the Hollywood movie studios and as a writer of short stories and plays with her husband, Garson Kanin.

She won an Academy Award as best supporting actress in 1969 for her role as a Satanist in "Rosemary's Baby," and an Emmy in 1979 for her one-time role in the sitcom "Taxi."

Ruth Gordon never forgot her roots in Quincy, returning frequently to attend class reunions. Her last visit was in 1984 for the dedication of the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater in Merrymount Park.

She died in 1985 at the age of 88.

His name too was Jones, William Andrew Jones, and, as a teen-aged usher in the old Quincy Theater, where vaudeville persisted into the 1920s, he used to dream of performing himself.

But Billy Jones was such a common name, he thought, so he borrowed the name of the Quincy Theater manager and as Billy DeWolfe he became a dancer and comic.

He appeared with Doris Day, his close friend, in "Lullaby of Broadway" and "Tea for Two," and the character he created, "Mrs. Murgatroyd," became a comedy classic.

He visited his old home town almost yearly and when he died in 1974 at the age of 67, he was buried in the Jones family plot in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

The year was 1925 when 27-year-old Howard Johnson, a failure as a cigar salesman, took over a rundown drug store with a newspaper franchise and a marble soda fountain on Beale Street in Wollaston.

Soon he began making his own ice cream — 28 flavors eventually — and then he had a seaside snack shack on Wollaston Beach Boulevard and a restaurant in the tallest building in downtown Quincy.

Just then, by coincidence, Eugene O'Neill's latest play, "Strange Interlude," was banned in Boston so the producers moved it to the Quincy Theater, across the street from the Howard Johnson restaurant.

It was a long play, so the sellout audiences were given an hour and a half dinner break at intermission so the place to go was Johnson's restaurant where the special, chicken pies, were $1 apiece.

Eventually, Howard Johnson-franchised restaurants and motels, with their familiar orange roofs, spanned the continent, truly, in their own words, "a landmark for hungry Americans."

Bill Rosenberg was just shy of his 30th birthday when he bought a used delivery truck, invested $5,000 in a modest kitchen in an old butcher shop and opened the Industrial Luncheon Service.

He stocked the truck with coffee, sandwiches and doughnuts and made his first stop at the Boston Gear Works in North Quincy, where he sold his first cup of coffee for a nickel.

He had 144 canteen trucks by 1950 when he decided a retail store would be more profitable so he started a shop called the "Open Kettle" on Southern Artery in Quincy.

That name didn't catch on so Rosenberg called a brainstorming session. "What do you do with a doughnut?" asked the architect, Bernard Healy, rhetorically. "You dunk it."

And the name "Dunkin' Donuts" was born.

In 1963, when the operation was franchised, Rosenberg opened his own Dunkin' Donuts University, where six fulltime instructors and a dean taught franchise owners the intricacies of operating their own store.

For years, her father, Frank, ran an upscale men's clothing store in downtown Quincy but it remained for his daughter, Lee Remick, to spread the family name far and wide.

She burst into Hollywood as the nubile drum majorette with Andy Griffith in "A Face in the Crowd," and followed it up as the alcoholic wife with Jack Lemmon in "Days of Wine and Roses."

She died in 1991 at the age of 55.

His real name, William Szathmary, was a little too much for the average TV-viewer's tongue to handle so he became simply Bill Dana when he burst on the scene as a writer and sometime performer on the old Steve Allen Show.

The 1942 graduate of Quincy High School later gained a measure of fame in the entertainment world as the comic with the thick Spanish accent, "Jose Jimenez."

When the touring cast of Saturday Night Fever visited Boston, one of its stars, Rich Hebert, took the opportunity to visit the Snug Harbor School in Germantown, the working class section of Quincy where he grew up.

He has appeared on such TV shows as "Law & Order SVU" and "21 Jump Street," and Broadway productions like The Life, Sunset Boulevard and Les Miserables, in which he had the lead role as Jean Valjean.

'Kilroy Was Here' And Everywhere

The words greeted the first American GIs to arrive at the Imperial Palace in war torn Tokyo in the late summer of 1945 — "Kilroy was here!" He really wasn't but in a way he was.

It began in 1942 in Bethlehem Steel's Fore River Shipyard in Quincy where James J. Kilroy was employed as a checker whose job was to count the number of holes filled by a riveter.

Kilroy's job was important to the riveters since they were paid by the number of rivets they drove. Kilroy would go around and count them and check each with a chalk mark.

Some riveters would wait until the checker had gone and then erase the last chalk mark. Another checker would count the rivet a second time and the riveter would get paid twice for the same work.

One day, Kilroy overheard his boss ask a riveter if Kilroy had checked a certain rivet. No, said the riveter. That made Kilroy mad because he knew he had checked that particular rivet.

He grabbed a piece of chalk, went over to where the two men were standing and scribbled "Kilroy was here!" in large, bold letters right next to the check mark. It soon became his standard practice.

Ordinarily, the chalk marks would be covered up by paint. But this was wartime and some ships left the yard too fast to be painted. The enigmatic "Kilroy was here!" began appearing all over the world.

The mysterious message fascinated GIs. Soon, they began writing it themselves on walls in the most unlikely places, like the Imperial Palace in Tokyo.

Eventually, as "Remember Pearl Harbor" stood for America's fighting men in World War II and the men and women who built the war machines for them, so did "Kilroy was here!" come to stand for them too.

And the name "Kilroy" persists in Quincy, perpetuated in Kilroy's Pub at the city's new hotel, the Boston Marriott Quincy.

USS Salem: Newest Tourist Attraction

The heavy cruiser USS Salem, ordered during World War II but built after hostilities had ceased at Bethlehem's Fore River Shipyard, is Quincy's newest attraction for visitors and residents alike.

Launched in 1947 and commissioned two years later, she became the flagship of the U. S. Navy's Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean during the Cold War years in the 1950s.

At more than 700 feet in length and carrying the heaviest automatic main battery guns in any warship of any navy, she was a bulwark of democracy in the Mediterranean and the Caribbean Seas.

Although she never faced enemy action, Salem earned the praise of the king and queen of Greece for its work as the first ship on the scene after an earthquake ravaged the Greek islands.

And she was on hand at the Suez Canal when fighting broke out between Israel and Egypt to assure the safe passage of American and other ships through the canal.

She carried a crew of more than 1,600 men and moved at a cruising speed of 35 knots. She was on active duty for 10 years from commissioning May 14, 1949 to decommissioning Jan. 30, 1959.

Today, visitors can tour the Main Deck,

Number 3 Turret, the Admiral's and Captain's Bridges, and other sources of interest.

Guided tours by today's uniformed crew will take guests through the Second Deck where they can see how the Salem's crew lived and worked.

Of special note are the barber shop and the machine shops where the actual work is done to restore the ship.

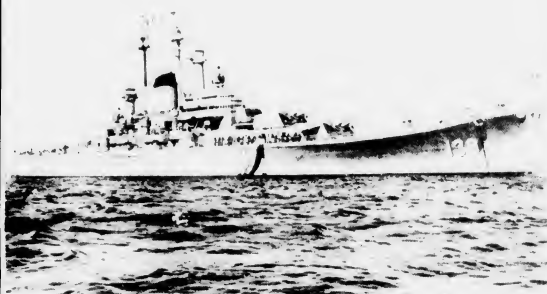

Real sailors will want to see the CIC (Combat Information Center), the nerve center of the ship and her berthing compartments, where sailors and Marines lived their lives.

A Museum Shop is on board in the ship's store where souvenirs and gifts can be purchased.

The museum's archives are open for research and viewing its extensive collection of armaments, uniforms, and memorabilia.

The USS Salem and its Naval Shipbuilding Museum are located at the Fore River Shipyard in Quincy Point. (Access is the same as the Harbor Express boat). Hours of operation (escorted and self-guided tours): Summer: Open daily June through September, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Winter: Saturday and Sunday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission is $6 for adults, $4 for senior citizens and children 4-12 years old. Children under age 4 are admitted free of charge. Active military adults with ID cards are also admitted free. Flat-heeled shoes or sneakers are recommended. Parking is free. The museum features a military archive, model shop and exhibits on the USS Salem, the USS St. Paul, the USS Newport News and the USS Quincy.

QUINCY RECYCLING PROGRAM PAYS OFF

Quincy's recycling program and leaf composting programs are great for several reasons. First of all, recycling and composting preserve precious natural resources.

Second, several recyclable items and yard waste are now banned by state law from Massachusetts landfills and incinerators.

Third, every ton we recycle or compost saves the city $59.00. That's how much the city pays Browning-Ferris Industries (BFI) per ton for trash disposal.

Fourth, leaves now picked up by the DPW during weekly curbside collections are composted and used for community improvements.

In between the curbside yard waste collections, residents are able to drop off grass clippings, leaves, branches or shrubs to the DPW back yard Monday through Saturday from 9am to 3pm. Proof of residency is required (driver's license).

Fifth, Quincy's contract with BFI contains an age savings of $50,000 annually is realized by taxpayers, as the credit is deducted right off the BFI bill on a monthly basis. Also, the DPW participates in a grant program that pays $10 per ton for every ton of recycling documented, resulting in revenue each year for the City to reinvest in recycling or environmental projects in the community and through our schools. When you divert recyclable items and yard waste from the solid waste stream, you save $59 per ton in disposal fees for every ton diverted.

To take advantage of all these benefits, Quincy residents are strongly encouraged to participate in the city's recycling program and yard waste program. Please do what you can for the environment and to save Quincy a great amount of money. For more information about the Quincy recycling program, please call the 24-hour Recycling Hotline 770-BINS, or 376-1957 Mon-Fri.

PRESCHOOLERS and staff of the Beechwood Community Life Center wonder what happened to the $1,000 overhead sun shade cover stolen from their Outside Learning Center June 25-26. Mean Thief Steals Shade Cover From Beechwood Youngsters

A three-year community effort to build an Outdoor Learning Center for toddlers and pre-schoolers at the Beechwood Community Life Center has been partly sabotaged by an apparent mean thief.

Sometime between 10 p.m. Tuesday (June 25) and 7 a.m. Wednesday, someone stole the $1,000 shade cover that protects the preschoolers from the sun, reports Executive Director Sharron Beals.

The cover made of a specially designed fabric is bright blue and measures 30 by 30 feet.

"We have been working on an Outdoor Classroom, adjacent to our playground, for three years," said Beals. "Parents and teachers helped design and construct the Learning Units and Collector Stations. Seniors, children and family fundraising contributed almost $9,000 for this unique Outdoor Plan."

Senior bake and craft sales launched the fundraising. Children's lemonade sales, two family book sales and a family photography event contributed. For three years, Senior had a "Book Nitch" where gently read books were donated for resale. For two years, the Beechwood Center staff held February "Have-a-Heart" fund-raiser.

The final addition was a large shade structure designed and built to provide sun protection for the toddlers and preschoolers.

A local welder finished the frame of the structure just last week and the large bright tent-like cover, custom fitted to the metal frame, went up just in time for Beechwood's End-Of-Year Family Picnic and Kindergarten Graduation.

The completed learning center lasted three days.

"On Tuesday night, we had a community meeting and the structure was seen to be intact at 10 p.m.," said Beals. "Upon opening the Center the next morning at 7 a.m., it was discovered that the shade cover was gone, apparently stolen in the night."

"If this was a prank, we are hopeful that whoever took this shade cover will be encouraged to return it."

Kindergarten children have volunteered to hold lots of lemonade sales this summer. Each lemonade stand generates about $20 so some $0 will be needed to replace the shade cover.

Meantime, one classroom of 4 year olds came to school with each youngster wearing a sun hat. "It's OK. Mrs. Beals," they said, "we'll just wear our hats until we get our shade back."

In Sexual Discrimination, Harassment Areas

Police, Firefighters Will Soon Receive Sensitivity Training

By CRAIG SALTERS

Quincy's police officers and firefighters will receive awareness training in the areas of sexual discrimination and harassment as part of efforts by Mayor William Phelan's office to address the issue citywide.

Phelan said Personnel Director Roberta Kety was in the process of scheduling training on the subject for members of both the Quincy Police Department and Quincy Fire Department. Under the program, Phelan said, certain individuals would be identified and trained and would then be responsible for training others.

In addition, the mayor said, citywide policies regarding harassment and discrimination in the workplace were being reviewed for possible improvements in those areas.

"Harassing or discriminating behavior of any kind will not be tolerated in the workplace and we're taking steps to ensure that," said Phelan.

Phelan emphasized that harassment and discrimination were not issues particular to the police and fire departments but that training was necessary given the "somewhat unique" nature of their predominantly male makeup. "This is a citywide issue," he said, adding that other city employees would receive training at some point.

Phelan announced the initiatives while discussing a recent letter written to him by Councilor Frank McCauley which urged the mayor to investigate alleged harassment within the Quincy Police Department which has resulted in a number of discrimination suits against the city.

In that letter, McCauley cited the sex discrimination suit of Kathleen Bandera, a civilian formerly in charge of the city's Community Policing who was recently awarded $135,000, a ruling being appealed by the city; and that of Quincy Police Officer Nancy Colletta, who received a $165,000 settlement. Residents Urged To Help Water New Trees This Summer

Quincy residents are being urged to help keep the city's new trees watered during the dry summer months.

Thomas Koch, executive director of Park, Forestry, and Cemetery Departments, is asking residents to water the new trees twice a week during the hot and dry months of July and August.

"Our new trees are an investment in the future of our city and we ask residents to help protect that investment by watering the trees regularly during the summer," Koch said. "Fifteen minutes with the hose a couple of times a week will help these young trees survive the first year and thrive in the years to come."

There were 858 trees planted city-wide during the past fall and spring. Species included Norwegian Sunset Shantung Hybrid Maple, Queen Elizabeth Hedge Maple, Frontier Hybrid Elm, Columnar Norway Maple, and Chanticleer Gallery Pear.

The Park and Forestry Department chose the species of trees based on their ability to withstand the stresses associated with urban planting including salt tolerance, limited planting space, overhead and underground interference, and insect blights.

"Our new trees will help add to the property values of our neighborhoods and will provide shade, cooling for our homes, and a natural environment for birds. In addition, they help improve the aesthetics of our community," said Koch.

Koch also urged residents to call the Park and Forestry Department if they notice any health issues with the new trees. "Our new trees are under warranty for the first year so it behooves us to address any problems immediately. I ask residents to call us and we will inspect the trees and make sure the city's investment is protected."

The Quincy concert is sponsored by State Street and will feature an "All-American" program including pieces from Gershwin and Copland; Conductor is Charles Ansbacher and featured soloist is Robert Honeysucker.

Manager Change Approved Hearing Continued On Extended Hours At Marina Bay Cafe

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Although the License Board Tuesday voted unanimously for a change of managers at the Ocean Mist Cafe at Marina Bay, they however, refused a request for outside extended hours and voted to continue the hearing until July 30.

The change of managers was from Lucky Trifilios to Sean Conroy.

Trifilios, who was also clerk and treasurer also resigned from that post. He has been replaced by John Lyons.

Chairman Joseph Shea said he was pleased that Conroy would be an "on-site manager."

Atty. Edward Fleming, representing Tom Bellotti, owner of the Ocean Mist Cafe told the board that the hours voted on last month of 11 p.m. off the patio has caused a "serious restriction placed on the cafe."

Fleming said the outside tables are full at 11 p.m. with patrons still being served pizza and when they have to move, they usually go to a place next door that are allowed to open until 1 a.m. sometimes just a few feet away from the cafe with the same proximity to the condos.

After Fire Chief Thomas Gorman's motion to continue the meeting until July 30, Fleming asked that they not wait to extend the hours because the summer will be shorter, but go back to the original closing of 12:30 a.m. as the former owner did. He said by July 30, the board would be able to get a better look if any complaints are heard from residents.

However, Gorman said this continuance would "give the neighbors a chance if they choose to come back."

A few neighbors were in the city hall chambers, but according to Police Chief William Falco who said - "we already know what the neighbors are going to say." He added, "instead of the neighbors, lawyers coming back, we should establish at some point a solution to the extended hours."

Falco later abstained from the 4-1 vote to continue the hearing until July 30.

Acting Health Commissioner Drew Scheele said if residents have a complaint on conditions either outside or inside the cafe, they should contact Conroy to address the situation.

At the beginning of the meeting, Shea welcomed Scheele on the board at his first meeting since the retirement of Jane Gaffahue.

License Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

- Granted a permit to Steve Maze and Richie Speranzo for the 18th annual festival at Malnati's Block Sept. 7 from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Rain date is Sept. 8. Those involved are the South Quincy Bocce Club, D & D

Deli, and the 92 Club. Proceeds go to the South Quincy Scholarship.

- Granted a common victualer license to Sandy and Stanley Kwong, doing business as the Asian Cafe, at the Pilgrim Plaza, 21 Scammell St. (it was formerly Asian Express.)

- Allowed a change of managers at the Quincy Yacht Club, 1310 Sea St., from Jeanne Gunning to Richard J. Schlager.

- Granted the following an extension of premises for the Sidewalk Festival, July 18, 19, 20. They include: Pat Flanagan's, extended on the parking lot, and Granite Rail, 26 Cottage Ave.,

- Granted a one day permit for the 8th annual Father Bill's Place Food Fest from 6 to 10 p.m. at WaterWorks at Marina Bay.

- Granted a one day beer and wine license for the Mayor's Garden Party at the Adams Mansion, July 19.

Ends Long-Time Family Friendship Boating Tragedy 'Has Left Us All Shaken And Stunned'

The tragic death of a long-time friend in a Fourth of July boating accident on Martha's Vineyard "has left us all still shaken and stunned," Peter O'Connell said Monday.

William B. Sanderson, 62, of Quincy, was fatally injured when he slipped under a 47-foot power boat owned and driven by O'Connell's brother, William, 62, and hit by the sharp propellers.

William O'Connell pleaded innocent to three misdemeanor charges in Edgartown District Court and was released for a pre-trial conference July 29.

"It started out to be a wonderful family day," said Peter O'Connell. "We were celebrating the Fourth of July. We had plans for a nice clam-bake and watch the fireworks from a rented cottage."

The O'Connells, well-known Quincy developers, and about 30 of their friends were on Chappaquiddick Island where William O'Connell owned a summer home and Peter rented a cottage for the season.

"My brother Bill left with Bill Sanderson and the kids to get his boat at Oak Bluffs," Peter continued. "They had trouble mooring the boat off Chappaquiddick so they decided to go back to Oak Bluffs."

"Bill Sanderson got off the boat to see that the kids got on shore all right. Then he started to get back on board when he slipped under the boat into the propeller."

"He was a dear friend to Bill and the family. We'll miss him."

The Bills, O'Connell and Sanderson, had been friends and sometime business associates for 25 years. Sanderson and his wife, Donna, lived in Marina Bay, an O'Connell development. Donna works for the O'Connells as an executive assistant.

"They often vacationed together," said Peter O'Connell. "They went to Italy, South America, everywhere together."

Emergency response was fast since police and ambulances were already at hand across a narrow waterway to cover the coming parade and festivities in Edgartown.

"We got Bill on the harbor master's boat and then an ambulance," said Peter O'Connell. "I held him on the boat. I tried to comfort him, but it was too late."

He was taken by the ambulance to Martha's Vineyard Hospital where he was pronounced dead a half hour after his arrival.

"It happened so quickly," said Peter. "Sometimes you don't realize how fragile life is. Bill and Donna were about to celebrate their 25th anniversary in 12 days. They were going away."

William O'Connell, in a state of shock, waited for a few minutes then drove his boat back to Oak Bluffs where he has a slip. He said he planned to take a cab from there to the Martha's Vineyard hospital.

But he was stopped at the pier by State Environmental Police who filed the charges against him.

The three charges are: negligently operating a boat causing death, driving while intoxicated and driving within 150 feet of a bathing beach.

A breath test O'Connell took when he was stopped at the Oaks Bluff pier showed his blood alcohol below that of legal intoxication. He declined a second test authorities said. O'Connell said he was too upset to realize the request for the second test.

He pleaded innocent to all three misdemeanors and released on personal recognizance.

"This is not about charges," said Peter O'Connell Monday. "This is about family and friends."

Colonel and Space Shuttle Pilot Paul Lockhart, spend a moment at Merrymount Beach with Tracey Phelan and her husband, Mayor William Phelan, during the city's July 4th celebrations. The Lockharts were the city's guests of honor during both the Squantum and Merrymount Parades, displaying the city flag, visible in the background just below the American flag, which Lockhart brought with him aboard the Space Shuttle Endeavour during a recent mission to the International Space Station.

'THE SPACE FLAG,' a city flag recently returned from its trip aboard the Space Shuttle Endeavour, is proudly displayed by Brianne Phelan, daughter of Mayor William Phelan, and Assessor Yolanta Briffett of Quincy during Squantum's July 4th Parade.

Tired of your bank?

There is a good alternative!

You want your bank to be convenient. And why not?

Convenient means being fully-staffed, so you don't have to wait in line.

It means having employees who know what they're doing — people who like their jobs and actually like helping customers. It means having the bank products and services you want and need along with the "neighborliness" you may have thought was gone forever.

Neighborhood banking is alive and well at Colonial Federal Savings Bank.

We are strong, stable, independent and 100% true to our South Shore roots.

And we really want to be your bank. Had it with being over-charged and under-served?

You do have a choice. Come see us!

Ted And Sam

Sam Mele dreaded the call he knew would come. It came last Friday from the Boston Red Sox office informing him that Ted Williams had died.

"I couldn't believe it," Sam says, even though he knew Williams had been in deteriorating health for a long time. "Maybe it was that I just didn't want to believe it."

To the baseball world, Williams was one of the all-time greats -- perhaps the greatest hitter ever.

To Sam, he was all that, and more: a fond former teammate and -- a close friend.

Sam recalls that when he came up to the Red Sox as a rookie in 1947, Williams took him under his wing.

"He took me aside to give me hitting tips," says Sam, who obviously was a good listener.

That rookie year, he had a .302 batting average, hit 12 homers and drove in 73 runs playing in 123 games.

But when Sam asked about fielding advice early that season, Williams refused. "No," he said, "you go to that little guy (Dom DiMaggio) out in centerfield. He knows all about fielding."

They rode the team bus together side by side and became close friends.

The pair would also horse around in the lockerroom or do a little sparring now and then. Williams liked to spar.

One night during the 1948 season, they were walking toward one another in the aisle of a train and started sparring.

"We never really hit one another," says Sam.

But the next morning at breakfast one of the players asked Sam: "What the hell did you do to Williams? He has a rib injury."

"I didn't do anything," Sam told him. "We were just fooling around. Maybe it was the motion of the train that threw him off balance."

Whatever, Williams was out of the lineup for two to three weeks.

That was the season the Red Sox and Cleveland Indians finished the season in a tie. The American League pennant was to be decided in a one-game playoff at Fenway Park which the Indians won with Lou Boudreau and Ken Keltner on a hitting rampage.

"It stands to reason," says Sam, "that if Ted had played those two to three weeks he missed that year, we would have won at least a couple of more games so that there wouldn't have been a tie and a playoff game with Cleveland."

And, maybe the Sox would have fared better if Sam hadn't torn his ankle and knee sliding into base that kept him out of the playoff game. He could put a ball over The Green Monster.

And, of course, with the Sox not winning that playoff game, Boston fans were cheated of a subway World Series between the Sox and the then Boston Braves.

Joe McCarthy, who was the Sox manager then, wasn't overly fond of Sam, nor Sam of him. The word around was that McCarthy blamed him for Williams' injury.

Coincidentally -- or not -- Sam was traded to the Washington Senators early the next season.

How does Sam rate Williams, the ball player?

"He was the greatest hitter I ever saw. And he had very good hands. Anything he could get to, he could catch. He played left field at Fenway like he owned it."

Sam recalls the players on opposing teams crowding around the batter's cage when Williams took batting practice just to see how he did it.

And what about Williams, the person?

"He was a great human being. He was one of my best, best friends. He didn't just talk about hitting or fishing but about life itself.

"He was very generous. People would often write him and tell him they were in need of money. And he just as often would have it sent to them but anonymously."

A product of Astoria, Long Island, N.Y., Sam has been a favorite adopted son and resident of Quincy since 1949 when he married pretty Connie Clements of Merrymount.

He recalls the night Williams was invited to a spaghetti dinner prepared by Connie.

"Word quickly spread around the neighborhood that Ted was there and a gang of kids turned up outside the house hoping to get his autograph."

QUINCY'S SAM MELE, his wife, Connie, and Ted Williams at a Boston Sox dinner in Winter Haven, Fla., in the 1980s. Williams never did like neckties.

Sam didn't want Williams to be bothered but William said, "That's all right. Let them come in -- but one at a time."

And one by one they came in -- 15, 20, or more -- to see and get Williams' autograph.

"They went right by me where I was sitting," laughs Sam. "They just wanted to get to him."

That Red Sox 1947 outfield was reunited here in Quincy in November, 1988 when Williams and DiMaggio were among former teammates who were on hand at a Quincy Neighborhood Club Sports Night honoring Sam hosted by club President Karl Briggs.

Others there that night:

Bobby Doerr, Johnny Pesky, Walt Dropo, Frank Malzone, Eddie Pellegrini, Mickey McDermott, Ted Lepcio, Eddie Yost, Mike Andrews, Marty Barrett, Lou Gorman, then the Sox general manager, and a non-teammate, Quincy's Dick Donovan.

Donovan, while with the White Sox, pitched against Williams who confided he "was one of the toughest to hit against."

I was there that night and remember the players gathering downstairs for a get-together with Mele before going upstairs for the tribute to him.

When Williams arrived, much like John Wayne, he just dominated the room.

After greeting Sam and the other teammates, he stepped over to Connie Mele and gave a bear-like hug, saying, "How's the Queen," his pet nickname for her.

Paul Harold, who was then a state senator, was introduced to Williams who asked: "Are you a Republican or Democrat?"

When Harold told him he was a Democrat, Williams, a staunch Republican, gave him a stare and said: "You look like a responsible young man, why would you want to be a Democrat?"

Williams was in a relaxed mood that night, really enjoying being with Sam and his other former teammates -- especially long-time buddies Doerr and Pesky. And sipped a few scotches and water.

I remember as we started to go upstairs for the program, Williams reached into his pocket and came up with a wad of bills he plunked on the waitress's tray. It looked like it was a big enough tip for everyone there.

During the program Williams -- comparing Mele with the players of that day (1988) said: "Sam Mele is a $900,000 hitter. He really was a star."

That was nearly 14 years ago before today's out-of-this-world baseball salaries.

Today, that would put Sam in the multi-million dollar player bracket.

And Williams, with his achievements, would probably be a billion dollar man.

Sam would agree to that. So would a lot of other people.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1912 postcard view of Wollaston Boulevard soon after it was opened for public use. The new road was cut through marshland along Quincy's irregular shoreline and provided a cover for a new sewer pipe from Squantum to the high level main at Houghs Neck. After 90 years that old leaky pipe continues to be a contributor to the Wollaston Beach sewage seepage problem. This view is from Sachem Street on the right. The new sandy beach on the left was a side benefit of the roadway as was the sidewalk on the right. The fence kept pedestrians and those new automobiles from falling down the embankment into the old marsh below. A lot of the fill used to build this road and beach came from Half Moon Island that used to be in the bay off Adams Shore.

Bi-Monthly Yard Waste Collection 'Reasonable'

The DPW's plan to cut yard waste collection to twice a month is a reasonable and sensible way to save taxpayer money, in my view.

I hope the measure survives, and that we see more like it in the near future. Much better to endure a few inconveniences in order to afford things of lasting value—such as protecting our natural resources and open space.

City Council should take a rest from its usual habit of working itself into a righteous lather on such minor issues. These are serious times, and we all have more than enough to get upset about.

Let's please not make mountains out of mole hills. I believe that voters will appreciate civil servants who bring a positive, calm and collaborative approach to every difference of opinion.

Raise Tobacco Regulations And Save Lives

Millions of teens today are now picking up a cigarette and every puff they take takes years off of their lives. There are many advertisements out there that pull teens into smoking. The message it sends out to teens is that it is cool, intelligent, and pulls you into the crowd.

Once upon a time, there was a 10-year-old girl who tried her best to fit in. So she started smoking. She thought it was cool and she also finally got to be like everyone else. Years later, she has two beautiful girls who love her dearly. Then, one day, the news she got changed her life and her daughters' lives. She had emphysema. After she got the news, she didn't feel sorry, she didn't stay quiet. She got out there and told people how the tobacco industries play you. Also, how it can ruin your life and those who love you.

The woman's name is Pam Laffin. The price she paid for smoking was leaving her two girls behind. They lost a mother who will never see them grow. All because the smoking industry lured her into smoking when she was young.

So the message is SAVE

US and get the message out there on how the smoking industries trick youth into losing years off of their lives. Call you local legislators and encourage them to raise regulations about tobacco.

Pam Laffin was only 31 when she died.

Comments On Hanley's Residency

Recent news accounts about Ward 1 Councilor Gregory Hanley's residency and calls for his resignation have astounded me.

It seems the councilor has admitted to moving out of the district except for an apartment on Palmer Street, where he sometimes stays after a council meeting. However, he thinks this crash pad away from home and family in Pembroke justifies his residency because he did not plan on selling his house and moving out of the city.

Legally this may be true, but, at the same time, this is not a legal question. It is merely a question of representing the district you live in and are an inhabitant of on a full-time basis.

Hanley defends his dual residency by saying "...with the technology, mobile phones, faxes, it enables a councilor to take care of business over the phone." Unfortunately for Hanley, these words, spoken by him, seem to proclaim his intention to do business from his home in Pembroke and not this rented Quincy apartment.

Councilor Hanley attacks the proposal to vacate the council seat by saying, "I don't know what I did to deserve this, but I think you have to consider the source." Well, the answer is, he has moved out of the City of Quincy and the so-called source he wants us to "consider" still lives, with her family, in the City of Quincy.

Quincy's Yesterdays

5,000 Watch Launching Of Long Beach

By PAUL HAROLD

Five thousand shipyard employees, local, state and federal dignitaries attending the launching at the Fore River of the U.S.S. Long Beach, the first nuclear-powered surface ship.

Speakers included Secretary of the Navy William Franke, Admiral Arleigh Burke and John McCone, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The sponsor of the 14,000-ton cruiser was Mrs. Craig Hosmer, wife of Congressman Hosmer who represented the city of Long Beach in Washington.

PRESIDENT ADAMS PARKWAY BILL ADVANCES

A bill sponsored by Congressman James Burke to establish the President Adams Parkway advanced before a congressional committee this week. The sum of $25,000 was approved for a study of the plan that would establish a 40-mile roadway linking historic sites from Boston to Plymouth, via Quincy. It would begin at Faneuil Hall, passing Dorchester Heights, passing the birthplaces and burial of the Adams Presidents and ending at Plymouth Rock.

Among those speaking in favor of the bill were Democratic leader John McCormack who noted that 32 of the 40 miles of roadway already existed. Congressman Thomas O'Neil, who represented downtown Boston, said the parkway was needed for the influx of tourists that were coming to Boston.

LOCAL FIVE URGED TO STRIKE

Some 1,500 shipyard workers, members of Local 5, met at the auditorium at Quincy High School to discuss Bethlehem Steel's latest proposal.

President Robert Kehoe urged the members to reject the wage-freeze proposal and authorize a strike vote. He also refuted company charges that labor cost at Quincy were too high, adding to the high cost of ship construction. Kehoe said it was the Navy's cost-plus profit contracts that resulted in the high costs at Fore River and asked for a Congressional investigation into the cost-plus profit contracts.

QUINCY-ISMS

Mrs. Edna Austin announced she would not seek re-election to the city council after serving 15 years as the first and only woman on the council. Two other incumbents also announced their intentions not to run again: Thomas Burgin and James McIntyre who is running instead for mayor. Fifty candidates had taken out papers to run for the council. . . John "Zip" Duane, founder of the wrecking company, celebrated his 81st birthday at his Curtis Ave. home. . . Building inspector Alrick Weidman issued a permit to Cornelius Kehane for the construction of a funeral home in Wollaston at a cost of $60,000. Thomas Fallon was the general contractor. Hanlon and Donahue were the architects. . . Frank Anselmo, superintendent of the Quincy Post Office, was named head of the public service division for Quincy's third United Fund campaign. . . Patrolman William Gallagher put out a fire at the doorway of the Quincy School on Newbury Ave. . . Rep. Joseph Brett provided buses for 235 youngsters from North Quincy and West Quincy to see the Red Sox and White Sox in a double-header. . . Rev. Thomas Riley announced plans for the annual cavalcade of music at the stadium, under the sponsorship of the St. Joseph's bagpipe and drill team. . . A daughter was born at Quincy City Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Senter of Tyler St. . . The groundbreaking for the new $350,000 First Presbyterian church would coincide with the church's 75th anniversary. . . Regis Harrington who served as city planner for four years, resigned to accept a higher paying job in Medford at a salary of $9,500. . . For the first time in 26 years the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce had to cancel its annual outing because of weather. . . Vincent Nobile of Brooks St., a mechanical draftsman at Boston Gear Works, was a candidate for Ward 5 councilor. . . Alan "Jerry" Hill, general manager of Boston Harbor Marina, told Rotarians that there were 60 moorings in the water with another 30 planned, but before they could be constructed they had to remove a sunken plane from the mooring bases. . . Chester Dunn was president of the Holy Name Society at St. Joseph's Church. . . Charles Peterson, branch manager for the Norfolk County Trust, was named professional division chairman for the United Fund.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

One Step Baked Eggplant

Call it lazy, call it just plain tired of trying to think of what to have for dinner, but I remembered there was an eggplant in the refrigerator just waiting to be cooked. As I was preparing to cook it before it went the way of old leftovers, I decided to try a sort of a one step process. And it came out so delicious, that I think you all will like the fact that it takes half the time for such a favorite entree. I don't use much cheese, because you know, we try to watch it when we can.

Baked Eggplant

1 eggplant (sliced about 1/4 inch slices)
1 egg with a little milk bread crumbs for coating (I used seasoned)
1/4 cup grated parmesan or romano cheese
4 slices of a favorite cheese
2-3 cups tomato sauce (depending on the size of the eggplant) salt and pepper to taste Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Slice the eggplant. In a dish, mix the egg with a little milk, salt and pepper if desired. Dip the eggplant in the egg mixture and then the bread crumbs (I usually put those on a paper plate).

In a slightly greased baking dish (I used olive oil), start layering the eggplant with tomato sauce, some grated cheese and break the cheese slices in strips for each layer topping the dish with grated cheese and a few strips of cheese. You'll find that with the great taste of the eggplant and the tomato sauce, you don't really need that much cheese.

Bake covered for 50-60 minutes. It takes longer because the eggplant wasn't pre-cooked. When fork tender, remove from oven and cool for a couple of minutes except if you're real hungry like we were, it can be cut immediately. We had it with a cucumber and beet salad and a baked sweet potato. What a combo! And right after we had eaten, our grandson Jonathan came in and helped use up some of the leftovers. Of course being a growing boy, he also ate about four slices of Italian bread and butter with his and also a club sandwich after that! Lucky guy!

Drop-In Storytimes Begin

A three-week series of Drop-in Storytimes for ages 2-3 accompanied by an adult is being held at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

The program begins today (Thursday) and continues Thursdays, July 18 and 25, at 10:30 a.m. The program will take place in the Children's Story Room and consists of a half hour of stories, songs and rhymes. No registration is required.

The Summer Storytellers Series continues Tuesday, July 16, at 7 p.m. when Storyteller Guy Peartree returns to Quincy to tell tales of the American South and the Caribbean for ages 5 and older. The program will take place in the large meeting room at the library.

At the same time, a Pajama Story Hour with Cheryl Dunford will be offered for younger siblings accompanied by an adult and families with children under the age of 5. Fairy tales are the subject of this week's stories. The program will be held in the Children's Room at the Main Library.

Both programs are free and do not require registration. For more information call 617-376-2411. These and other summer events at the library are funded in part by the Quincy Arts Lottery.

Registration for the Summer Reading Club is taking place at all the library locations where participants receive a reading log. Participants mark off a star for every 15 minutes they read or that someone reads to them. Those who reach three hours bring their logs to the library for a certificate.

Library Concert On Lawn Series Starts July 18

The seventh season of concerts on the lawn of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Square, will begin Thursday, July 18, from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. with Tina Bergman and Bryan Thomas.

Bergman is a virtuoso hammered dulcimer player and Thomas is a versatile double bassist. Together they create a musical experience that has entertained audiences throughout the country.

Born into a musical family, Bergman began playing the hammered dulcimer at age 8 and made her first recording at age 12. By taking music she learned on the lap dulcimer and from other local musicians she learned to play in the aural tradition and continues to do so today.

Thomas is known for his performances in a wide range of areas, including traditional jazz, bebop, AfroCuban, blues, bluegrass, American oldtime, African, European orchestral and solo traditions. He has performed nationwide in 36 states, in Canada, Europe and the Caribbean.

Both musicians have a number of recordings, including a recent duo release

BRYAN THOMAS and Tina Bergman will open the seventh season of concerts on the lawn at the Crane Main Library, Quincy Square, Thursday, July 18.

These Winter Joys, a collection of seasonal music on hammered dulcimer and bass.

The concert series continues Thursday, July 25, when the folk duo, Aubrey Atwater and Elwood Donnelly, return. Blues singer Les Sampou performs Aug. 1 and The Krisanthi Pappas Combo, vocalist, keyboard, bass and drums, concludes the series

Aug. 8.

The concert series is funded in part by the Quincy Arts Council, which is funded in turn by the Massachusetts Arts Council. Concerts are held on the library's front lawn or, in case of inclement weather, in the library's atrium. Concert-goers are encouraged to bring lawn chairs, beach blankets and refreshments.

Miranda Bloom Poem In National Magazine

A poem by 12-year old Miranda Bloom of North Quincy has been published in the July issue of Highlights for Children.

The poem is entitled "Roads in My Life."

Bloom, daughter of Brian and Rachel Bloom, is a student at the Woodward School for Girls in Quincy. She enjoys reading adventure books, playing the piano, and writing. Her future plans include becoming a novelist.

The national magazine Highlights for Children was founded 56 years ago and its readership consists of youngsters from many parts of the world ranging in age from 2 to 12. More than two million copies of the magazine go out 12 times a year to children's homes, schools, libraries, and professional offices.

Miranda's poem follows:

This is my life,
like a little winding road.
Sometimes I get on the big highway where the cool group is, but I like my little winding road.
I see different things instead of what everyone does.
The highway goes so fast you can't see any differences in yourself.
On my road you notice every little thing.

Richard Stone Selected To Attend Young Leaders Conference In Washington

Richard Stone of Quincy has been selected to attend the National Young Leaders Conference (NYLC) from July 15-25 in Washington, D.C.

The NYLC is a leadership development program for high school students who have demonstrated leadership potential and scholastic merit. Stone will be among 350 outstanding students from around the country to attend the conference.

The theme of the NYLC is The Leaders of Tomorrow Meeting the Leadership of Today. Throughout the 11-day conference, Stone will interact with key leaders and newsmakers from the three branches of government, the media and the international community.

"It's wonderful to see high school students like Richard Stone seeking out the National Young Leaders Conference in an effort to learn and take on leadership roles in communities throughout our country," said Michael Lasday, executive director of the Congressional Youth Leadership Council (CYLC), the organization that sponsors the NYLC.

"The events of Sept. 11 prompted the urgent need to understand and exercise effective leadership. Those who participate in this program not only gain knowledge and experience in nation's capital, they leave with a sense of accomplishment and an increased ability to face the challenge of the future."

Highlights of the program include welcoming remarks from the floor of the U.S.

House of Representatives and a panel discussion with prominent journalists at the National Press Club. Stone will also meet with senators and a representative or an appointed member of their staff to discuss important issues facing the nation.

To complement the schedule of special meetings and briefings, Stone will also participate in a number of leadership skill-building activities. In one role-play activity known as If I Were President, students act as the president and Cabinet members responding to an international crisis. Students also participate in a judicial simulation, called Testing the Constitution, in which scholars assume the roles of U.S. Representatives, and debate, amend and vote on proposed mock legislation.

Robert Carnie Receives Fulbright Scholarship

Robert Carnie, a member of the faculty at Quincy High School, has received a Fulbright Teacher Grant to teach school in Norway during the 2002-03 academic year.

The Fulbright Teacher and Administrator Exchange Program was established in 1946 by the late Sen. J. William Fulbright of Arkansas and will send some 260 Americans abroad this year.

The program's purpose is to build mutual understanding between the people of the United States and the rest of the world. About 94,400 Americans and 155,600 students, scholars and teachers from around the world have been given grants in the past 56 years under the program.

Some prominent Fulbright alumni include Boutros Boutros-Ghali, former secretary general of the United Nations; former Sen. Daniel Moynihan and Sir Wallace Rowling, former premier of New Zealand.

Mayor Phelan To Unveil 'No Place For Hate' Plaque

Mayor William Phelan and members of the Quincy Human Rights Commission will unveil a plaque naming Quincy a 2002 Anti-Defamation League "No Place For Hate" community today (Thursday) at 11 am. in the lobby of City Hall, 1305 Hancock St.

Jill Armstrong, program assistant from the ADL, will also be present at the unveiling ceremony.

Created by the ADL with support from the Massachusetts Municipal Association, "No Place for Hate" is a statewide program empowering New England communities to challenge anti-Semitism, racism, prejudice, and hatred of all forms. Quincy is among 15 cities and towns in Massachusetts to receive its first certification in 2002. To date, 54 cities and towns participate in the program and 31 are officially certified as "No Place For Hate" communities.

The city and the Quincy Human Rights Commission received the certification and plaque at the Landmark Center in Boston. The plaque, accepted on behalf of the mayor by the Rev. Sheldon Bennett, minister of United First Parish Church and a member of the Human Rights Commission, will be displayed at City Hall.

Communities must complete at least four citywide projects to educate the community on diversity and tolerance in order to be recognized.

To maintain the certification, the city must address issues of diversity, engage community residents in building inter-group understanding and respect, and address acts of civil rights violations. Quincy must also complete at least three new programs that advance the ideals and goals of the "No Place For Hate" campaign.

The Quincy Human Rights Commission will serve as administrator of these programs.

'HAPPY BIRTHDAY, AMERICA' reads the sign of Uncle Sam, aka U.S. Sam Rounseville, as he rides along in the Squantum July 4th Parade accompanied by his wife, Jean Kenney.

Wreath Laying Ceremony For John Quincy Adams

Mayor William Phelan will represent the city today (Thursday) at noon at a wreath laying ceremony marking the 235th birth date anniversary of John Quincy Adams, our nation's sixth president.

Ceremonies will take place at the "Church of the Presidents," The United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St, Quincy Center.

The mayor will be joined by: William Westland of the United First Parish Church; Paul Harold, former president of the City Council and current supervisor of the Adams Temple and School Fund; Commander Randall Neal of the USS Constitution; and Dr. Edward Fitzgerald of the Quincy Historical Society.

Lt. Commander George N.T. Whitbred of the Naval Reserve Center Quincy will present a wreath on behalf of President George W. Bush. Members of the United States Navy Color Guard shall lay the wreath on the tomb of President Adams, which rests in the crypt beneath the church.

The South Shore Conservatory of Music will provide music. A tour of the church and crypt will be offered following the ceremony.

NQHS Senior Stay-Out A Huge Success

The North Quincy High School Class of 2002 recently celebrated its Senior Prom and seventh annual Senior Stay-Out Party, an alcohol-free post-prom party sponsored by the student's parents.

Over 300 seniors and their guests enjoyed a night of free food and fun activities, including karaoke, a Jeopardy game show, tattooing, caricatures, a bungee run, a Velcro obstacle course, Simon Says and "Cash Cube."

Dennis Thomson was named Mr. North Quincy with Phil McGillicuddy and Sean Ginty finishing runners-up.

A Senior Parent Raffle was held to help raise money for the event. Each senior family who sent in a donation had their child's name entered to win a pair of prom tickets. This year's winner was Patrick McGillicuddy.

Senior Stay-Out also gives out two book awards named after the co-founders. Alyssa Hawksley received the Beth Stevens Book Award and Phil McGillicuddy, the Tom Bourque Book Award. Mr. Bourque will be leaving North Quincy High this year.

State Street Bank once again hosted the event at its Willard Building cafeteria.

Funds for the event were donated by Quincy businesses, schools, community agencies, churches and other generous contributors. The event also received grants from Project Prom Sense, sponsored by District Attorney William Keating, and the Blue Hills Community Health Alliance Grant for alcohol-free community events.

St. Joseph's Youth Ministry Donates $1,000 To After-School Programs At Point Webster

The Youth Ministry of St. Joseph's Church recently presented the Point-Webster Middle School with a check for $1,000 to be spent on after-school activities during the 2002-2003 school year.

Funds for St. Joseph's $1,000 donation were raised through monthly dances at the church.

Wendy Tammara, a youth minister at St. Joseph's, and the Rev. Vincent Doolan explained that St. Joseph's dances attract students from all over Quincy Point. "We all serve the same children, so we wanted to share some of the proceeds with the schools that they attend," Tammara said.

A similar donation has been made to St. Joseph's School.

Council President and Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi and his wife, Sharyn, are regular chaperones at the dances, as are the Community Police Officers for the Quincy Point area: Quincy Police Officers James Dentrement, Christine Hurton, and Ralph Radzevich.

"We are extremely grateful for the generosity of St. Joseph's Church," said James McGuire, principal of Point Webster Middle School. "Quincy Point is a strong community and this donation is a great example of how we can all work together to make it an even better place to raise a family."

Barbara Driscoll, site coordinator for after-school programs at Point Webster, has many plans for the donated funds. "We can offer field trips, sports, educational workshops - all of the activities that we know our students can benefit from," she said.

Linda Stice, executive director of the Mayor's Commission on the Family, said, "The day at Point Webster doesn't end at 2:30 p.m. We have tried to build after-school programs that kids will truly enjoy. This donation will help tremendously."

Alexander Gray Wins Scholarship For Blind

Alexander J. Gray, a recent graduate of North Quincy High School, has been awarded a $2,500 Freedom Scientific Technology Scholarship to further at Boston College his desire to become a teacher.

The scholarship is awarded by the American Foundation for the Blind (AFB) to legally blind students who demonstrate academic and leadership ability to purchase assistive technology to assist further studies.

Gray, who has been blind since he was 10 due to bilateral giant retina tears was chosen for his academic achievement and promise, community leadership and the demonstration of personal qualities and character.

At North Quincy High, he was a member of the Academic Decathlon team, the charter vice president of the Quincy Leo Club, vice president of the Student Council, a member of the debate club and a volunteer at the After School Program for Students with Visual Impairments.

He plans to attend Boston College to become a high school teacher and eventually pursue a master's degree or a doctorate.

The scholarships are given by the AFB at the behest of Freedom Scientific, Inc., makers of assistive technologies for visually impaired people and provider of opportunities for high school seniors and graduating college students who are blind and plan to continue their educations.

The scholarships awards are in the form of vouchers to be applied toward the purchase of any of Freedom Scientific's line of assistive technology products. Winners also will be notified of any summer internship programs at Freedom Scientific.

Daniel Flynn & Co. Negotiates Sale Of 522-526 Sea St.

Daniel J. Flynn & Co., Inc., a Quincy-based full-service real estate firm, has negotiated the $305,000 sale of 522-526 Sea Street, Quincy.

Commercial broker Jeffrey P. Shaheen procured the buyer for the 4,100 square foot retail building. The property changed hands from Curlio, LLC to Stephen and Pamela Pesiridis, owners of Easter's Country Kitchen of Weymouth.

"Quincy's commercial real estate market continues to hold its ground despite the economy," said Flynn & Co. President Paul Talkowski. "We witnessed some spirited bidding for this property, which resulted in a sale price exceeding the listing price for the property."

Daniel J. Flynn & Co., Inc. specializes in commercial sales and leasing, residential real estate, real estate auctions, property management and construction. For more information call 617-479-9000 or visit its Web site (www.djflynn.com).

KeySpan Energy Delivery Launches 5-Year Energy Efficient Program $60 Million Effort To Help People Save On Energy Costs

KeySpan Energy Delivery New England recently announced it has received the OK from the Massachusetts Department of Telecommunications and Energy (DTE) for a new, $60 million, five-year energy efficient program designed to help residents and businesses in its service territory save on energy costs.

In 1997, when KeySpan first received approval for its five-year energy saving program it became the first Massachusetts gas utility to launch such an extensive effort. Since that time, KeySpan has been recognized nationally as a leader in energy efficiency with its progressive programs that benefit both KeySpan's residential and business customers.

The program begins by educating consumers and businesses about the benefits of energy efficiency and how to make their homes and businesses as energy efficient as possible. Then KeySpan offers incentives and rebates to help offset the cost of energy efficiency improvements. Also, contractors, installers and building operators receive training on the proper installation and maintenance of state-of-the-art, energy efficient gas equipment.

"We're excited to get rolling on another five-year program to help our customers save on their energy bills," said Nick Stavropoulos, president of KeySpan Energy Delivery New England.

"It's satisfying to note that we can point to real savings for our residential customers and economic development projects for cities, towns and non-profit organizations. Many of these initiatives were made possible because of the addition of the energy saving element."

The new plan has a total budget of $60 million through 2007. Of the annual budget, KeySpan's residential programs will be allocated approximately $7 million, of which $2.7 million will be dedicated to a low-income program. Of the $5 million allocated annually for KeySpan's commercial and industrial programs, nearly $900,000 is earmarked for the company's economic redevelopment program.

KeySpan offers an extensive portfolio of residential programs that provide rebates and incentives for consumers, such as the Energy Star Home program, the Energy Star Windows Rebate program, the Energy Star Programmable Thermostat Rebate program, the Weatherization Rebate program, the High-Efficiency Heating System Rebate program and the High-Efficiency Water Heater Rebate program.

In addition to the economic re-development program which provides special energy efficiency grants for cities, towns and organizations in KeySpan's territory, offerings for KeySpan's commercial and industrial customers include energy audits and engineering grants, high-efficiency heating rebates and technology demonstrations.

Interior Designer Helps Active Adults With Their Move To The Highlands At Faxon Woods

The Highlands at Faxon Woods, a new 55+ active adult luxury apartment community in Quincy, has contracted interior designer, Joe Remillard, for her services as a gift to each resident moving from their current home to an apartment at The Highlands at Faxon Woods.

Remillard is an interior design consultant based in Canton, Mass., who specializes in working with the Active Adult market.

Remillard has a degree in interior design and 15 years of experience working at The Boston Design Center. She shifted her focus to Active Adults two years ago when she began volunteering at the Council on Aging and became aware of the need for such a service. Her unique service, "Design in a Day," now has clients stretching from Boston to Cape Cod with many on the South Shore.

Remillard's expertise is with selection and placement of items the client moves to their new home. She works with them to decide which items they will keep, sell or donate. Remillard will assist residents in figuring out where things will fit on a floor plan when going from their current home to a 1 or 2 bedroom apartment. She designs the apartment only with items her clients own and helps them in everything from hanging artwork to placing the television and bed.

Nancy Nowacek, portfolio manager for Roseland Management Co., said, "Jo is a terrific addition to our program. She offers valuable assistance to our residents in planning their new apartment home at Faxon Woods."

"Every experience is different," Remillard said. "Most people are overwhelmed with the difficult and emotional task of parting with their accumulated possessions. I assist them with the transition, which ultimately simplifies their life."

The Highlands at Faxon

Woods consists of 194 active adult luxury apartments. Its developer and builder, Roseland Management Company, is offering one hour of Remillard's interior design services to every new apartment resident. This is Remillard's most recent collaborative effort with an active adult community.

For more information on The Highlands at Faxon Woods, call the leasing center at 617-328-7900 or visit their website at www.FAXONWOODS.com. A furnished model and amenity center is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m.

Raising Questions

Q: Our home has been on the market for a while, and we're getting concerned. My husband thinks we should take it off the market. He believes people will think there's something wrong with the home since it's not selling, but I'm hesitant to do this after all the time we've invested. Is there anything we can do to help attract a buyer?

A: Every homeowner wants a fast sale, but selling a home can be a time-consuming process due to a number of influences. It's true that a home that's been on the market for a long period of time can become stigmatized. But, there are steps you can take to help your home sell before that happens.

I can help you assess subtle things that may be slowing the sale of your home. It may be as simple as a thorough cleaning, a few simple repairs, or reassessing your asking price.

If the market has slowed since you first listed your home, you may need to consider lowering your price. A lower price may send the message to both buyers and real estate professionals that you're serious about selling, which can create a renewed interest in your home.

Call me, your Re/Max real estate professional. I can help you with this or any other real estate concern. Whether you are buying or selling a home, I can put me expertise to work for you.

Morrisette Nears Postseason

By CHRIS POISSON

The Fourth of July holiday break served wonders for the Morrisette American Legion baseball team.

After a disastrous 18-1 loss at powerhouse Braintree last Monday, Morrisette spent the next five days in relaxation before stepping onto Adams Field Sunday night.

Despite blowing a 6-2 lead, Morrisette pulled out a 7-6 victory over Canton to improve to 8-7 on the year, needing at least two more wins to qualify for the postseason.

"It was a good game," said manager Ray Cattaneo. "I think the rest helped. They really needed it. There weren't too many days off the last couple of weeks."

Morrisette played Cohasset Tuesday and Milton yesterday (Wednesday) and hosts Cohasset Saturday night at 7:30. On Sunday, it faces city rival Quincy at 7:30 p.m., and it closes out the season Monday night against Weymouth.

"We need a couple of more wins," Cattaneo said. "I'd like to see three or four more. It's going to be tough. Anybody can beat you. We have Cohasset twice, which has a good pitching staff. Quincy is out for us because we've beat them twice. And Weymouth is playing well right now."

"The kids are enthusiastic. They know they're close to the playoffs. Hopefully, we can sneak right in there. It would be nice after last year."

Morrisette found out Monday night that it will be gunning for the tourney without its starting catcher, Joe Priscella, who is out the season with a stress fracture in his shoulder.

"That's a big loss," Cattaneo said. "We had a good set lineup going. Tom Hughes at third really strengthened our infield and now we have to move him back to catcher."

In Sunday's game, the scored was tied at 6 in the bottom of the sixth when Don Cook (2 for 3) walked and moved to second on Priscella's sacrifice bunt. After the second out, Neal Gavin (3 for 4) ripped a shot off the leg of the Canton pitcher, which ricocheted toward the dugout enabling Cook to score the winning run.

"Gavin's really hitting the ball well right now, as are Cook, [Brian] O'Hanley and Hughes," Cattaneo said.

Canton scored two runs, one unearned, in the first inning off pitcher Anthony Boyle. Morrisette got one back in the second inning on Rob Muollo's RBI triple that scored Gavin (single).

In the third, Pat Bregoli walked, moved to third on Cook's single, and scored when Priscella reached on an error. Gavin knocked in Cook with a single for a 3-2 lead. Morrisette increased its lead to 6-2 in the fourth on Bregoli's two-run single and Cook's RBI single.

Canton scored a run in the fifth and three more in the sixth to tie the game as Boyle tired. He left after 5 1/3 innings, allowing five runs on 10 hits and two walks with a pair of strikeouts.

John O'Connell came on in relief and gave up two hits the rest of the game to notch the win.

In the loss to Braintree, Morrisette had only two hits, which both came in the fifth inning when it scored its only run. Bregoli singled, moved to third on Cook's single and scored on O'Hanley's sacrifice fly.

Bank Of Canton Runner-Up

Century 21/Richmond AAA Champions

Century 21/Richmond Associates recently captured the Quincy Youth Baseball Triple A championship with a 5-2 victory over Bank of Canton at Mitchell Field.

Bank of Canton scored two runs in the first inning when pitcher Nicholas Poli hit a batter with the first pitch of the game and walked the next batter, both of whom scored on throwing errors.

Poli, though, settled down to retire 18 of the next 19 batters, including blowing away 15 with a strikeout and fielding two groundouts. Mike Berte made a nice catch for the only out not involving Poli.

In the third inning, Matt Bresnahan blasted a grand slam to put Century ahead for good. Mike Benoit and Jared Martin got the rally going by fouling off strikes to draw walks.

For Bank of Canton, Matt Gorham pitched a great game as he punched out 12 batters. Greg Ingram had a big hit and Steve Cole scored a run. Shane Hoban played a great game in the field, as well as catcher Steve Babcock and third baseman Chris McDaniel.

In previous playoff action: Century 3, DARE 1

Gary Uvanitte notched the win, striking out 14 in a complete-game effort, and he also added a hit to power the offense. Joe Benoit crushed an RBI double that proved to be the game-winner. Jeff Matthies led off the game with a hit and later scored. Tom Speed had an RBI hit. Nick Poli played well behind the plate.

For DARE, shortstop Tim Stille played a strong defensive game, stroked a double and scored the only run. Ryan Keane pitched a great game and Anthony Holcomb had a hit and reached base twice.

Century 8, CHM 4

Nicholas Poli struck out 14 to pick up the win and added a single and a tremendous two-run triple over the deep-playing center fielder.

Michael Berte added two RBI singles. Matt Bresnahan also had two hits and played strong behind the plate. Jake Kerin reached base twice and Chris Coscia had a hit.

For Consumer Home

Mortgage, Andrew Beaton had two hits and scored two runs. Brian Joyce, Anthony Muise and Ian Browne also contributed offensively and defensively.

Kathleen McCarthy Div. 1 Volleyball Player Of The Year

Playoff Hopes Still Alive For Quincy

The Quincy Legion baseball team has been playing competitive ball this season, despite what its disappointing 4-12 record may indicate.

Unfortunately, costly defensive lapses and a lack of timely hits have been its undoing, particularly in its six one-run losses.

Quincy hopes to keep its slim playoff chances alive this week. Tonight (Thursday) at 8 it hosts Weymouth and Saturday it travels to West Roxbury. On Sunday, it battles Morrisette at 7:30 p.m. at Adams Field and it closes out the season the following day at Canton.

On Monday night, Quincy played a solid game against undefeated Braintree in a 4-2 loss. Dennis Thomson mixed his fastball and sharp curve to blank Braintree through four innings. He received help from catcher Steve Williams, who gunned down two base stealers in the first and second innings.

Quincy struck first in the fourth inning. Pat Jaehng (single, 3 walks) walked, moved to second on Chris Lockhead's single and scored on Charlie Vidoli's two-out, two-strike single.

In the fifth, Braintree answered with four runs — all with two outs — to take a 4-1 lead. After three straight bloop hits produced two runs, Nick Angellini crushed a 400-foot, two-run homer.

Quincy showed its resiliency in the bottom half when Mike Feetham singled to knock in John Fidalgo (double) to cut the lead to 4-2. Quincy had runners at second and third but couldn't deliver and it also had the tying runs on base in the sixth.

On Sunday night, Quincy turned in one of its better performances of the year in a 5-3 win at Stoughton. Feetham, who had lost three straight 3-2 games, finally notched his first victory of the year. He surrendered only two earned runs and scattered five hits while striking out nine.

Trailing 2-0, Quincy evened the score in the third when Vidoli lined a two-run single that scored David Jaehng (single) and Mark Maher (error). In the fourth, Quincy took the lead for good when Pat Jaehng (2 hits) blasted a homer.

Quincy tacked on two insurance runs in the fifth. Vidoli singled, stole second and scored on Wayne Moynihan's RBI single. Moynihan stole second and went to third when the catcher's throw skipped into

KEEPING YOUR DISTANCE

One of the newest technologies to come down the pike is called "adaptive cruise control." More sophisticated than cruise control, which maintains a set cruising speed, adaptive cruise control helps maintain a preset following distance from the vehicle in front of the car. It only requires that the driver choose a desired following distance to the vehicle ahead. The systems use either radar or laser sensors to send out signals that are reflected back from the vehicles up ahead. This information is used to automatically slow down the vehicle to maintain the desired following distance. In time, this part-time system may give way to full-time crash avoidance systems, which would detect possible collisions and avoid them.

LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO invites your inquiries about most anything connected with the care of your car. Our ASE Certified technicians are highly skilled so that they can do everything necessary to keep your car in excellent running condition whether that means something simple to complex system work. We're here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored.

HINT: Adaptive cruise control systems employ a combination of backing off the accelerator, braking, and/or downshifting gears to slow the vehicle down.

Quincy Brill Club Wins Invitational Tournament

The Brill Club, Quincy Youth Baseball's 9-year-old travel team, captured first place in a recent invitational tournament in Franklin.

In the championship game, the Brill Club scored five runs in the first inning and never looked back en route to an 11-5 win over North Attleboro.

The table-setters again started things off. Brenden Myers placed a perfect bunt down the third base line and Greg Nelson ripped a single up the middle. Malcolm Kelly walked to load the bases and Lukas McDonough walked to bring in a run. Matt Layden, Christian Durham and Austin Tobin each hit clutch hits to drive in the other four runs.

Mike Nelson, Matt Forbes and Tommy Mahoney also contributed to the offense. Chris Kingsley pitched three strong innings and Matt Goreham used his fastball to shut down North Attleboro over the final three innings.

Defensively, Kelly had an outstanding game behind the plate, catching all six innings on a hot and humid day.

In the second game, Quincy defeated Mansfield, 12-4. Kelly and McDonough each smashed a triple. Layden, Nelson, Forbes, Tobin and Mahoney also added to the offensive attack.

Kingsley shut out Mansfield for the first three innings and Myers and Nelson pitched well in relief. Goreham played a solid defensive game at first base.

In the opener, the Brill Club blanked Hudson, 3-0, behind strong pitching performances from Kingsley and Goreham.

Quincy scored all its runs in the third inning. Myers reached on a perfectly placed bunt, stole second and scored on Nelson's RBI single. McDonough and Goreham also helped out the offense. Kelly stood out behind the plate.

DiMaggio League Defeats Williams League In AAA All-Star Game

The Joe DiMaggio League defeated the Ted Williams League, 14-5, in the recent Quincy Youth Baseball Triple A All-Star game under the lights at Mitchell Field.

Sean McDonald (double, single, walk, 3 runs scored) was selected as the Joe DiMaggio League MVP, while Rich Bjork was named the MVP for the Ted Williams League.

Nicholas Poli, Billy Constantopoulos, Roger Cutfaude, Cody Daniels, Michael Clark, Gary Uvanittie, Sean McDonald and Bobby Yovino all pitched for the winning all-stars. Position players were Michael King, Brian Crooke, Tyler Costa, Mike Berte, Ryan Bennett, Brian Manning and Brendan Crosslin.

Ted Williams League all-stars were Bjork, Steve Mulligan, Danny McCauley, Anthony Holcomb, Frankie Harrel, Matt Grady, John Mullin, Paul Oldham, Josh Ladetto, Mark Blowers, Laura Leger, Shawn Banter, Hector Nunez, Bill Berberan, Dan Murphy, Matt Flaherty, Anthony Pepjonovich, Bobby Magnell, Alex Brean, Paul Blaser, Stephen Babcock, Chris McDaniell and Chris Vaillancourt.

Justin Coscia had two hits and a run scored to lead the mound and added a hit. The entire team turned in a strong defensive effort.

Twins 8, Cardinals 1
Jimmy Scrib delivered a solid performance on the hill.

15 Residents To Compete In Bay State Summer Games

Fifteen Quincy residents will compete in the 21st annual Bay State Summer Games beginning today (Thursday) and continuing through July 21.

They are: Diane Gilbody, volleyball and softball; Stefan Miranda, Shannon Desmond, Kristen DiMatteo,

Justin Coscia had two hits and a run scored to lead the mound and added a hit. The entire team turned in a strong defensive game at first base. Keenan Daniel, Anthony Willis, E.J. Cross and Jared Sheils played well both offensively and defensively.

Starts Friday At Adams Field

Quincy Hosting 13-Year-Old Babe Ruth State Tournament

Quincy will host the 13-Year-Old Babe Ruth State Tournament at Adams Field beginning tomorrow (Friday) and continuing through Thursday, July 18.

In addition to host Quincy, teams from Peabody, Winchester, Newton, Weymouth, Norwood, Fall River and Plymouth will compete.

The first game is Friday at 4 p.m. Opening ceremonies will be held at 7 p.m. and a game will follow at 8 p.m. On Saturday and Sunday, games will be played at 10 a.m., 12:30 p.m. and 3 p.m. Weeknight games will begin at 5:30 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Members of the Quincy team are: Jonathan Allen,

the outfield and scored on Fidalgo's sacrifice fly.

Last Friday, West Roxbury scored five runs in the first two innings helped by three Quincy errors, two hit batters and one walk en route to a 7-2 win. Pitcher Bryan Thornton settled down to hold West Roxbury to two runs on four hits over the last five innings.

Quincy scored a run in the fifth when Maher singled, moved to third on Dave Jaehnic's single and crossed home plate on a wild pitch. In the sixth, Quincy scored its final run on Thomson's RBI double that plated Feetham (single).

In the last inning, Quincy had hopes of a comeback when it loaded the bases with no outs, but the West Roxbury pitcher fanned the top of the order to end the game.

Last Tuesday, Quincy dropped a 4-3 heartbreaker to Cohasset. Pat Jaehnic, the emergency starting pitcher, had a good outing, giving up two earned runs on three hits with four strikeouts in four innings. Fidalgo tossed two strong innings of relief.

Down 3-0 in the fifth, Quincy finally got on the board with Pat Jaehnic's RBI double off the fence that scored Joe Fitzpatrick (in-field hit) and Fidalgo's RBI groundout. Quincy ended up stranding the tying run on third.

Cohasset added a run in the sixth for a 4-2 lead. In the seventh, Quincy loaded the bases with one out when Lockhead ripped a shot toward center in which the fielder made a great play to knock down allowing only one run to score.

Pat Jaehnic followed and drilled a ball back up the middle that looked like it would go through for the go-ahead runs. Unfortunately, the shortstop dove to rob Jaehnic, stepped on second and fired to first for a gut-wrenching, game-ending double play.

Quincy Senior Babe Ruth Downs Norwell

After opening the season with three straight wins, the Quincy Senior Babe Ruth team has just one win in its last four games.

Its latest setback came last Saturday to Duxbury. Despite playing well, Quincy (4-3) suffered a 5-2 loss.

Ian Jorgensen struck out six in a complete-game effort. Malcolm Lynn crushed a first-inning home run. Paul Copson and Jorgensen each had a pair of hits, while Jonathan Mendez and Eric O'Dea had one apiece.

In previous action, Quincy lost its first game of the season to a powerful Marshfield squad, 11-0. It followed that performance with a 5-4 heartbreaker to Hanson, which scored two runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to pull out the victory.

Copson pitched 5 1/3 strong innings, allowing only three runs and two walks while striking out seven. Defensively, Scott Flaherty threw out two runners at home plate. O'Dea, Lynn and Mendez all had doubles. Steve Hawko and Flaherty each had a single.

Quincy rebounded with an 11-3 win over Norwell. Hawko powered the offense with five RBI. Brendan Craig and Flaherty each had three hits and Walter Perry had two. Eddie DeWitt, Steve Sacchetti and Jorgensen had one apiece. DeWitt notched the win, scattering five hits and striking out five.

18 Residents Riding In Pan-Mass Challenge

Eighteen Quincy residents will join in the fight against cancer by riding in the 22nd annual Pan-Massachusetts Challenge Aug. 3-4.

They are: Armand Boutin, Edward Lee, Francis Reardon, George Palmer, Jeffrey McHale, Joshua Dubin, Karl Nord, Kate Crowley, Kathleen Callahan, Kerry Byrne, Kevin Jennette, Laurie Thibert, Melanie Martinous, Michael Leonard, Patrick McDermott, Robert Kirschner, Stephen Kenneally and William Riddle.

Presented by MFS Investment Management, the PMC is the nation's top bicycling fund-raiser. More than 3,600 riders will raise $15 million for the Jimmy Fund, which supports cancer care and research at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

With 92 cents of each dollar raised going directly to the Jimmy Fund, the PMC has contributed nearly $69 million to world-renowned Dana-Farber Cancer Institute since its inception in 1980.

This summer, each of the 3,600 riders will commit to raising at least $2,000 to be considered a member of the PMC team. The majority of PMC participants, however, exceed the minimum contribution. They actually raise more than twice the amount required, raising an average of $4,600 each.

"Everyone has a connection to cancer in some way," says PMC founder Billy Starr. "Through raising funds and riding in the event these riders are committed to finding a cure."

Riders and supporters have been instrumental in helping Dana-Farber Cancer Institute's clinicians and researchers learn more about cancer and its causes, and to develop new, increasingly effective treatments for the disease.

The event offers six routes taking riders through 44 Massachusetts towns: four are two-day rides and two are for one day.

Two-day riders have their choice of the following routes: the original 192-mile Sturbridge-Provincetown, the 186-mile Sturbridge-Bourne-Wellesley, the 169-mile Wellesley-Bourne-Provincetown, or the 166-mile Wellesley-Bourne-Wellesley.

One-day riders may cycle the 108-mile Sturbridge-Bourne route or the 89-mile Wellesley-Bourne route.

Registration is full. To become a volunteer, a virtual rider or make a financial contribution, visit www.pmc.org or call (800) WE-CYCLE. Checks can be made payable to: PMC, 77 Fourth Ave., Needham, MA 02492.

Quincy Granite Opener Saturday

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy Granite will have a new look this season with their redesigned uniforms, but they'll relatively be the same team when they step onto the gridiron Saturday afternoon in the Eastern Football League season opener.

Quincy kicks off its third season in the EFL against the Bay State Thunder at 2 p.m. in Wakefield. Formerly the Mass Havoc, there's a bit of history between the two teams although they did not meet last year.

Three years ago, the Havoc defeated the upstart Granite in the division championship when both were members of the New England Football League. The following year in the EFL, the Granite exacted revenge with a 15-14 win after scoring a touchdown and 2-point conversion late in the game.

As a result of last season's success (10-1 record), the Granite have earned a difficult schedule. They play Marlboro, which captured the championship last year for the 11th straight season, twice beginning next Saturday at home. They'll also face Middleborough, semifinalist Clinton and runner-up Springfield.

Springfield — a team Quincy definitely has circled on its calendar (Aug. 17). Those darned Bears ruined the Granite's dream season last year and the mere mention of them brings up a painful memory.

After rampaging through the regular season with a perfect 9-0 mark, Quincy easily handled Middleboro in the quarterfinals of the playoffs and was favored to send the Bears into hibernation with a home game in the semifinals.

Instead, Springfield shocked Quincy with a 22-19 win to advance to the EFL Championship Game, a.k.a. the Marlboro Bowl. Quincy outplayed Springfield, but its special teams self-destructed with two blocked extra points and two blocked field goals.

Finishing just one game shy of reaching the championship game, the Granite are motivated more than ever to clear that last hurdle and prove their elite of the EFL. And they'll have a legitimate chance as the core of the team returns for another year. Sure, they've lost some players from a year ago, but they've also added talented players ready to jump into the mix.

Offensively, Liam Higgins starts the season as the starting quarterback. Mike Thomas, who shared time with Higgins last year, is no longer with the team. Higgins will be backed up by newcomer Ricky Mroz Jr.

Higgins will not have the services of his favorite target, all-star wideout Billy MacDougall who has retired. Looking to fill his shoes are newcomers Jeff Lang, an All-American at Curry College, Wayman Payne and Derek Wright, an all-purpose player from the disbanded Boston Cowboys. They'll be accompanied by veterans Gene Anderson, John Barr and Bo Garcia.

At tight end, Higgins has two huge targets in quad-captain Jeff Powers and newcomer Rich Staram, both of who are 6 feet, 5 inches. Ughandi Powell will also rotate in.

In the backfield, Quincy's leading rusher, Jackson Vetaic (421 yards, 6 TDs), returns along with his younger brother, Maxwell, Will Felix, Bob Manning, Mike Elder, John Morant, Randy Campbell and Ian Seale. Quincy has added Edward Mazzuchelli, Phillip Herbert and Jonathan Wong.

The offensive line should only improve from last year with seven returnees: all-star quad-captain Ron Pierre-Louis, all-star Jim Charis, Alex Malasi, Mark Lionetti, Damien Simpson, Mike Zawilinski and Jason Vaga. Newcomers are Jeff Narbonne (2002 NQHS graduate) and highly touted Matt Baldassari, a 6-6, 335-pounder from Central Connecticut.

Defensively, the Granite is switching to an attacking 4-3 defense and should once again feature one of the top units in the league. Despite the retirement of all-star defensive end Steve Jones (4 sacks) and corner back John Murphy, both of whom will join the coaching staff, Quincy is loaded with talent.

Upfront, all-stars Christos Arsoniadis (league-high 11 sacks), Al Casey and Andelson Merisca (4 sacks) return along with Mike Mathisen, Jim Davis, quad-captain Sean Halpin, Dave D'Olympio and quad-captain Dave Harris. Newcomers are Aaron Smith, Garreth Miller, Bob Hayes and Vic Jean.

Ryan Craig, the EFL's Eastern Conference Defensive MVP, returns at line-backer with veterans Anthony Caputo and Dan Abraham and newcomer Tony Barnes.

In the defensive backfield, Quincy has tremendous depth. All-star full safety John Skabeikis led the league in interceptions with 11. All-star Troy Parks also returns with Louis Bullard, Ian Grant, Tom Walsh, Derrick Epps and Brian Blackman. Quincy picked up Deodato Louisant, Phil Linn, Wright and Garreth Brown.

A Moment With Ted Williams

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

As the sad news broke last Friday of the death of Red Sox legend Ted Williams, my thoughts returned to an unforgettable night more than 14 years ago when the Splendid Splinter visited Quincy in a rare local public appearance.

Williams — arguably baseball's greatest hitter — was among the star-studded lineup of former major league baseball players who turned out Nov. 11, 1988 to pay tribute to Quincy's Sam Mele at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. The Sports Night dinner, which raised over $5,000 for the Jimmy Fund, celebrated Mele's dedication to the game as a former Red Sox player, manager, scout and instructor.

Before the dinner, a social hour was held in the downstairs function room of the Neighborhood Club. There, some of the Red Sox greats had gathered to renew friendships and rekindle fond memories of their playing days. I was fortunate enough to be included in the small gathering.

As the greatest name among them arrived — Ted Williams — the room was soon filled with his commanding presence. His entrance seemed to stop time — as everyone ceased what they had been doing to watch "The Kid." As Williams walked into the room, I was talking with at the time Red Sox second baseman Marty Barrett. After a few brief words, I asked him to autograph a baseball I had bought earlier in the day at the former Coleman's Sporting Goods Store in Quincy Center. Barrett kindly obliged. I said thanks and walked away.

years of age, I wasn't even alive the day No. 9 hit his last homerun in 1960. But I grew up a Red Sox fan and through reading, old TV highlights, and conversations with people who had seen him play, I understood the magnitude of the man a few feet away from me. The last play to bat .400. Two MVPs and two Triple Crowns. The highest on-base percentage in baseball history. Five hundred and twenty-one home runs. A player who conceivably could have challenged Babe Ruth's then 714 home-run record if he hadn't lost five seasons to military service in two wars.

I knew Williams wasn't very keen on giving an autograph because so many of his signatures ended up in the wrong hands of some "fans" who in turn sold his signature for profit.

But I wasn't about to let this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity pass by without trying.

As Williams stood near a podium, I took a deep breath and walked about 10 feet until I was next to him.

"Hi, I'm a really big fan of yours. Would you mind signing my baseball?" I didn't anticipate what was about to happen next.

Williams, wearing a white open collar shirt and gray sport coat, nodded.

I quickly removed the ball from my suit jacket and gave it to Williams. I then hurriedly searched my other pockets for a black, fine-tipped pen that I had purposely brought along for the autographs.

Williams took one look at the pen and said, almost frowning, "that won't do." I thought the autograph was gone. But like so many summer days when the Sox needed a run, the "Kid" came through.

Williams, his eyes now twinkling and a smile developing on his face, extended his hand which was holding a glass of scotch and water.

"Here, hold this," Williams commanded. With his other hand now free, he produced a black ball point pen from inside his sport coat.

"Now," he said as his famous eyes fixed on the writing piece, "this will do."

Williams rolled the ball through his fingers until he found the spot where the seams are the closest. He then signed the ball as I beamed like the Citgo sign in Kenmore Square.

As he handed the baseball to me, I gave him his drink back and gushed "thanks." I had stood side-by-side with Ted Williams, received his autograph, and held onto one of his drinks. Not many people can say that.

My autograph ball was signed by many other Red Sox stars that night, including Sam Mele, Johnny Pesky, Frank Malzone, Dom DiMaggio, Bobby Doerr, Mike Andrews, Dick Donovan and Eddie Yost.

Today, that coveted baseball sits in a plastic holder, the signatures slightly faded with time. But nothing will dull my memory of the night I stood with The Kid.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

American Heart Association's 'Operation Safe Summer'

Having a safe summer should be no accident. With the weather getting warmer, the American Heart Association has launched "Operation Safe Summer."

"The goal of the program is two-fold: We want to stress the importance of knowing how to perform CPR and we want people to understand the dangers of exposure to extreme heat and humidity," said David Hiltz, regional manager for the American Heart Association's Emergency Cardiovascular Care program. "This is of concern to the average healthy person as well as the person living with heart disease."

Summertime activities often involve beaches, ponds, and backyard pools and they often involve children. In the amount of time it takes to answer a telephone call, a young child could drown quickly and silently, often without any splashing or screaming. More than 350 children under the age of five die this way each year.

The American Heart Association has a few simple recommendations that can help avoid a tragedy:

- Never leave a child alone around water.

- Assign a designated "pool supervisor," especially during social gatherings.

- Don't rely on swimming devices (floats, etc.) to make water safe.

- Never allow a child to play near a pool, even in the winter.

- Keep a phone near the pool for emergencies.

- In case of an emergency, know how to perform CPR.

"Each year we hear about children who die in swimming pools because someone just walked away for a second," said Hiltz. "To make matters worse, often times the parent or caregiver doesn't know CPR."

The American Heart Association offers both pediatric and adult CPR training classes at community training centers across the state. To find a class in your area, call the American Heart Association at 1-877-AHA-4CPR, or visit their website at www.americanheart.org.

The second goal of Operation Safe Summer is to make the public aware that sweltering heat and humidity can leave a person dehydrated, increasing the risk of heat exhaustion or heat stroke. For the average person this is a concern, but for a person with heart disease, congestive heart failure, or at high risk for both, extra caution is necessary.

According to Dr. Steven Miller, an internist and emergency physician who serves as American Heart Association National Faculty, "Both heat exhaustion and heat stroke are more common than one might think, and they can be life-threatening in certain patients, such as those with underlying heart and lung problems."

The AHA recommends limiting physical activities to early morning or later in the day. If you feel dizzy, nauseated, thirsty, or if you develop a headache, stop and find a cool place to sit down and drink some water.

Dehydration is a major concern because a person's risk of developing heat exhaustion increases when temperatures and humidity reach 70 percent. Heat and humidity interfere with the body's natural cooling process. The heart is trying to deliver blood and oxygen to your working muscles at the same time your body is trying to cool off by sweating. If you sweat too much, you lose important body fluids. Extreme fluid loss can lead to brain and heart damage.

The symptoms of heat exhaustion are:

- Sweating
- Cold, clammy skin
- Dizziness
- A rapid pulse
- Throbbing pressure in your head
- Chills
- Flushed appearance

Red Cross Offering CPE, First Aid Courses

The American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay Training Institute is offering the following courses at its Quincy office, 1495 Hancock St., from July 15-16.

Adult CPR & AED: July 15, from 6 to 10:30 p.m. Cost is $50. This course teaches rescue breathing, first aid for choking and CPR for victims over 8 years of age.

Adult CPR & AED: July 16, from 6 to 10:30 p.m. Cost is $50. This course teaches rescue breathing, first aid for

- Nausea

The symptoms of heat stroke are:

- Warm, dry skin with no sweating or heavy sweating
- Cold, clammy skin
- Low blood pressure
- Confusion
- Unconsciousness
- High fever
- Slow pulse
- Ashen or gray skin

Seek medical help if symptoms continue. Heat exhaustion can progress quickly to heat stroke and this can be a potentially fatal condition.

The American Heart

Association spent about $382 million during Fiscal Year 2001-2002 on research support, public and professional education, and community programs.

Nationwide, the organization has grown to include more than 22.5 million volunteers and supporters who carry our mission in communities across the country. The association is the largest voluntary health organization fighting heart disease, stroke, and other cardiovascular diseases, which annually kill about 960,000 Americans.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

THE THREAT OF CAVITIES

Dental cavities are holes in the outer two layers of a tooth, the enamel and dentin. The enamel is the outermost hard white surface, and the dentin is the yellow layer just beneath it. Both layers protect the inner living tooth tissue called the pulp, where the nerves and blood vessels are found. Cavities form as bacteria in the mouth consume simple sugars and convert them into acid plaque, which causes the hard layers of enamel and dentin to soften. The softened layers are then dissolved by saliva, leaving a cavity in the tooth. Unless filled by the dentist, the cavity will continue to erode and damage the pulp, which can lead to pulp death, infection, and abscess.

Are you pregnant or thinking of becoming pregnant? When was the last time you had your teeth examined by your dentist? If you need answers to your questions about dental health concerns, don't hesitate to contact us. We feel that dental visits should be positive experiences. Keeping teeth and gums healthy will contribute to overall health and enjoyment of life. We're located at 44 Greenleaf St., where teaching you how to preserve your natural teeth for a lifetime is our primary goal. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Because it takes seven years for the porous, chalky enamel of baby teeth to be replaced by more mature, dense, hard enamel, children are more prone to cavities than adults.

Rev. Martha Swanson Attends National Meeting Of Congregational Churches

The Rev. Martha Swanson, pastor of Christ Church, Middleboro and director of Outreach Ministries at Union Congregational Church, Wollaston, recently returned from the annual meeting of the National Association of Congregational Christian Churches in Spokane, Wash.

While at the conference, Rev. Swanson represented both churches, as well as the Boston Seafarer's Friend Society, a primary mission of Union Church.

Nearly 1,000 delegates from 600 churches were in attendance in Spokane for the week-long event.

United Methodist

The Rev. Valeire Haven will be the guest speaker at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

Robert McCully will serve as the lector and Anne Giger will be the greeter.

Dru Madigan and Marlene Briggette will be the ushers.

Following the service the Fellowship Hour will be held in Susanna Wesley Hall with Liz Buccella, Nancy Ahonen, Paul Pierce and Barbara Ryan as hosts.

Special Meditation Service Sunday At First Parish Church

A laity-led summer service of special meditation will be held Sunday, July 14 at 10 a.m. at the United First Parish Church (Unitarian), "Church of the Presidents," 1306 Hancock St. (across from City Hall).

Sunday's service will be meditation on the church's free-standing "new ceiling." The stunning plaster ceiling, part of the church's recent renovation project, is adorned with "the center lotus flower" long considered a sign of rebirth surrounded by a round "Greek key" pattern symbolizing life and eternity. This is, in turn, encircled by more lotus blossoms.

The informal service will last about 45 minutes and feature music. Those attending the service are asked to bring something comfortable to lie upon while gazing at the new ceiling. The church suggests yoga mats, beach towels, lawn reclining chairs, a pillow or rolled towel for under your neck -- anything that will help welcome the spirit for peaceful meditation.

Bethany Congregational

Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center, will have Sunday worship this week at 10 a.m.

The Rev. William Harding's message is entitled, "Clap Your Hands." He will also have a message for the children before they go to the Lemonade in the Shade One Room Church School.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hodgkins will serve as greeters.

Chris Peter Memorial Blood Drive July 16

The 18th annual Chris Peter Memorial Blood Drive will take place Tuesday, July 16 from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall, Darrow St., Houghs Neck.

The event, an American Red Cross blood drive sponsored by the Peter family, honors the life of Chris Peter who in 1984 was killed at the age of 22 by a drunk driver.

As in years past, this year's drive will feature homebaked goods as well as adult supervised crafts and games for the children of donors.

Last year's blood drive set an all-time high of 135 pints donated. In the past 17 years the drive has collected more than 1700 pints of blood, averaging 105 pints per year at a time of year when blood donation levels are traditionally at their lowest.

Appointments are accepted but walk-ins are always welcome.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

A wise man once stated "... Learn all there is to learn and then choose your own path..."

As we travel along life's different paths, and everyone of us have many choices to make. We establish our own choices (or priorities) according to our values, and each person has a different set of priorities. We have to decide what is most important, less important and relatively unimportant.

One might ask -- wouldn't life be so much less complicated if all we had to choose between was the good and the bad -- if everything were black and white? But what about the varying shades of gray, the variables and the imponderables? Choices are often between the good things and the better things; between the better and the best; or between our best and God's best. And yes, sometimes we have to make choices between the lesser of two evils. As we travel along our life's path there are so many things that compete for a place in our thoughts and in our lives...

Wouldn't it today be a good day to take stock of our lives and reorder our priorities, if necessary?

Salome's Stars

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might well feel uneasy as you face a difficult situation involving someone close to you. But you know you're doing the right thing, so stick with your decision.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You're a good friend to others. Now's the time to allow them to be good friends to you. Rely on their trusted advice to help you get through an uncertain period.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Family and friends are always important, but especially so at this time. Despite your hectic workplace schedule, make a real effort to include them in your life.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) That project you've been working on is almost ready for presentation. But you still need some information from a colleague before you can consider it done.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Don't let those negative attitudes that have sprung up around you drain your energies. Shrug them off, and move ahead with the confidence that you can get the job done.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Aspects favor some dedicated fun time for the hardworking Piscean. A nice refreshing plunge into the social swim can recharge your physical and emotional batteries.

BORN THIS WEEK: You love to travel and be with people. You probably would be happy as a social director on a cruise ship.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You clever Ewes and Rams love nothing more than to rise to a challenge. So, by all means, if you feel sure about your facts, step right up and defend your side of the issue.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You've done some great work recently. Now it's time to reward yourself with something wonderful, perhaps a day at a spa or a night out with someone very special.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You love to talk, but don't forget to make time to do a little more listening, otherwise you could miss out on an important message someone might be trying to send you.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your aspect indicates some uncertainty about one of your goals. Use this period of shifting attitudes to reassess what you really want and what you're ready to do to get it.

LEO (July 23 to August 22)
Your social life is picking up, and you'll soon be mingling with old friends and making new ones. But 'twixt the fun times, stay on top of changing workplace conditions.

VIRGO (August 23 September 22) A trusted friend offers understanding as you vent some long-pent-up feelings. Now, move on from there and start making the changes you've put off all this time.

Genevieve Kjellander, 85

Former Employee Of Grass Instrument Co.

A funeral service for Genevieve (Marucci) Kjellander, 85, of Bradenton, Fla., formerly of Quincy, a retired employee of the Grass Instrument Co. in Braintree, was held July 6 at the Mortimer N. Peck-Russell Peck Funeral Home in Braintree.

She died June 28 at Whispering Pines Assisted Living and Nursing in Bradenton.

Mrs. Kjellander worked at the Grass Instrument Co. for 20 years. She previously worked at the Sandberg Insurance Co. in Quincy.

Born in Providence, R.I., she lived most of her life in Quincy and Halifax.

A homemaker, she was known for her Italian cooking. She was a former member of the Independence Order of Vikings in East Braintree.

Wife of the late Paul Edward Kjellander, she is survived by two daughters, Carol Wymann of Bradenton and Lois Cairns of Rockland; two sisters, Marie Chaffee of Plymouth and Louise Malcomb of Camarillo, Calif.; six grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Burial was private. Donations may be made to the Vision Community Services, 23A Elm St., Watertown 02479.

Anna Clare, 75

A funeral Mass for Anna M. (White) Clare, 75, of Quincy, a retired retail saleswoman, was celebrated Monday at St. John the Baptist, 44 School St.

Mrs. Clare died July 3 at home after a long illness.

Mrs. Clare worked at the former Remick's of Quincy store and F.W. Woolworth in Quincy. She also worked for New England Telephone Company.

Born in Milton, Mrs. Clare graduated from Weymouth High School in 1945. She moved to Quincy 51 years ago.

She is survived by her husband, retired Quincy Fire Department Lt. Walter E. Clare; a brother, John F. White of South Carolina; two sisters, Dorothy E. Fitzgerald of Braintree and Mary L. Slyman of Roslindale; and many nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to Hospice of the South Shore, 100 Bay State Drive, Braintree 02184.

Michelle Colclough, 40

A funeral Mass for Michelle Colclough, 40, of Quincy, a stock person for New England Telephone for many years, was celebrated July 3 at St. Clare Church in Braintree.

She died June 30 at home.

Born in Newton, Miss Colclough lived in Braintree before moving to Squantum several years ago. She attended Braintree schools.

She is survived by her father, James Colclough of Brewster; five brothers, Michael Colclough of Weymouth, Steven Colclough of Whitman, Sean Colclough of California, and Patrick Colclough and William Colclough, both of Florida; her companion, Philip Lewis of Squantum; and six nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Cartwright-Venuti Funeral Home, Braintree.

Donations may be made to the Pine Street Inn, 444 Harrison Ave., Boston 02118.

DiGravio Memorial Golf Tourney

The third annual Vic DiGravio Jr. Memorial Golf Tournament will be held Monday, Aug. 5, at the South Shore Country Club in Hingham.

The tournament is held in memory of Vic DiGravio, who died of cancer in 1999.

The tournament will be a scramble format with a 1 p.m. shotgun start. Dinner will be served at the country club following the tourney at approximately 6:30 p.m.

Entry fee is $100 per person, which includes greens fees, cart, golf shirt and dinner. For those attending just the dinner, the donation is $30 per person. The registration deadline is July 31.

All proceeds will fund the Vic DiGravio Jr. Memorial Scholarship at Bridgton Academy in North Bridgton, Maine. The scholarship provides financial aid to students from Quincy, Weymouth and Marshfield who attend Bridgton.

The tourney has raised $34,000 over the past two years. Over 100 golfers played last year and 150 people attended the post-tournament dinner and awards ceremony.

Vic DiGravio graduated from Bridgton Academy in 1959. He grew up in Weymouth and attended Weymouth High School where he was an outstanding athlete. After marriage, he lived in Quincy where he owned and operated the Spotlight Tavern for over 20 years.

Entry fees and/or donations may be sent to the Vic DiGravio Jr. Memorial Golf Tournament, 89 Puritan Drive, Quincy, MA 02169.

For more information call Vic DiGravio III at 617-328-8170 or Sean Downing at 617-472-5746.

and vacation time also awarded Coletta, McCauley put the total cost in judgments at $334,855 and added that two other police officers have discrimination suits pending against the city.

"The vast majority of Quincy Police perform their duties in a responsible and professional manner," said McCauley, "but it is time to weed out those whose actions are proving costly to Quincy taxpayers and sending the wrong message to the public that harassment is okay if carried out by those in authority."

McCauley said that suitable penalties should be considered if harassment charges are proven. "When the city is forced to pay thousands as a result of the actions of certain members of the police department, disciplinary action should be taken and they should be held accountable," McCauley said.

Phelan responded that the Coletta case had been investigated properly at the time but that both the Coletta and Bandera cases occurred many years ago and it that it served no purpose to go back now.

"It is not my intention to re-investigate alleged incidents which occurred five years ago," said Phelan. "My administration is concerned with behavior that is ongoing and we are taking steps to address incidents in a swift and clear manner should any type of behavior occur in the future," the mayorsaid. "We are not interested in a 'hand-aid' approach but are taking more of a cultural approach."

As for the two pending suits, Phelan declined comment, explaining that it was not appropriate to discuss ongoing litigation.

As of press time, The Sun was unable to reach Acting Police Chief William Falco for comment on the issue.

Barbecue Fundraiser For Koch At Adams Inn

"A Star Spangled Celebration" fundraiser for Tom Koch, candidate for Norfolk County treasurer, will be held tonight (Thursday) at Best Western Adams Inn, 29 Hancock St., North Quincy.

A barbecue will begin at 7 p.m. followed by viewing of an MDC fireworks display over the Neponset River at 9:30 p.m.

The Koch event is being held at the Gazebo and Tent. Tickets are $50 per person.

The City Council and School Committee both voted favorably recently on resolutions to create The Quincy Public Schools Local Education Fund as a mechanism to augment the school budget through voluntary donations made by taxpayers and others.

Municipalities are allowed, through local option, to adopt a state statute that governs the creation of such funds to supplement school budgets or provide for scholarships.

Once created, the fund, which also has the support of Mayor William Phelan, will accept voluntary donations signified by a check-off box added to local tax bills or any others submitted contributions from individuals or businesses.

It is anticipated that the Nov. 1 tax bills will include the optional check-off.

School Committee Budget and Finance Committee Chairwoman JoAnn Bragg brought the creative funding opportunity to the attention of committee colleagues and local officials and secured favorable committee action. Ward 3 Councillor and Education Committee Chairman Kevin Coughlin and Council President Daniel Raymond jointly sponsored the council's endorsed resolution.

Coughlin has already allocated to the fund a $1,000 contribution and, along with Bragg, is hopeful that the fund will generate as much as $25,000 per year which could be used to purchase such items as school books or computer software. Yet to be determined is the makeup of the committee to be appointed which will oversee and approve its expenditures.

FIREFIGHTERS POUR WATER onto the roof of a home at 64 Highfield Rd., Merrymount, which was hit by lightning during Monday night's violent thunderstorm. A fire slowly smoldered throughout the night and burst into flames early Tuesday morning. Occupants Linda Stipovich and her son, Greg, were alerted by a neighbor and escaped unhurt. Firefighters rescued a pet parakeet. Fire officials estimated the damage at approximately $10,000.

Bill Passes Senate, House Approval Expected

Quincy Model For Enhanced 911 System Throughout State

In a profession where seconds count, state firefighters could potentially shave minutes off their emergency response times by using an Enhanced 911 system pioneered by the firefighters of the Quincy Fire Department.

A bill allowing fire personnel to monitor emergency 911 calls - a system in use since 1998 in Quincy - has passed the state Senate and, after some minor technical changes are smoothed out, is expected to pass the state House of Representatives and be sent to Acting Governor Jane Swift this week, said state Senator Michael Morrissey.

"This is the only system of its kind in the state," said Morrissey, who credited the initial advocacy efforts of Quincy Firefighters Local 792 in creating the Quincy model, legalized via home rule petition and put into practice four years ago. "Quincy has truly been a leader in this area."

If passed, Morrissey emphasized, the new law would simply authorize communities to develop Enhanced 911 systems but would not make such systems mandatory.

"It's strictly an option," said Morrissey, chairman of the Legislature's Joint Committee on Government Regulations.

Quincy Firefighters William Arienti, president of Quincy Firefighters Association Local 792, and Ken Lippens helped draft the Enhanced 911 legislation with the assistance of Robert McCarthy, president of the Professional Fire Fighters of Massachusetts. Arienti said fire departments that adopt the Enhanced 911 system will most likely see the same decrease in response times which Quincy firefighters saw.

Against much initial opposition, Arienti said, Quincy firefighters pushed for the Enhanced 911 - where Quincy firefighters can monitor emergency 911 calls as they come in - because it was concerned over what Arienti called a lack of adequate notification in some incidents.

"At some accidents, the car would already be on the tow truck before we arrived," said Arienti. "This new system immediately stopped that from happening."

Now, Arienti said, Quincy firefighters are usually the first emergency responders to arrive on the scene, boasting an emergency

Would Hear Presentations From Developers

Delahunt, Phelan Propose Panel On Shipyard Use

By CRAIG SALTERS

As the United States Maritime Administration (MARAD) prepares to take title of and seek purchasers for the former Fore River Shipyard, Congressman William Delahunt and Mayor William Phelan have launched efforts to create an informal panel which would hear public presentations on the site by would-be developers.

In an hour-long meeting held Monday afternoon in the mayor's office, Delahunt and Phelan discussed the concept with prospective members of the panel, who included state Senator Michael Morrissey, state Rep. Ronald Mariano, and Council President Daniel Raymond as well as CONGRESSMAN WILLIAM DELAHUNT (right) and Mayor William Phelan field questions from the media following Monday's announcement that an informational panel comprised of city, state, and federal officials would be created to hear development proposals for the former Fore River Shipyard.

Bramtree officials who also have an interest in the now idle parcel.

Although Morrissey, Mariano, and Raymond applauded efforts to better inform the public on the issue and said they would attend any such presentations, all three expressed concern that there was not, as yet, a mechanism for public input on the project and that the degree of public input would determine their level of participation on the panel.

The goal of that panel, Delahunt said, would be to create a mechanism for

Police Chief Frane Takes Early Retirement

Quincy Police Chief Thomas Frane was one of the more than 100 city employees who took advantage of an early retirement package recently authorized by the state and offered by the city.

Mayor William Phelan confirmed Tuesday that Frane, who had been on sick and injured leave since undergoing triple-bypass surgery Jan. 3 of 2001, took advantage of the offer, which added a maximum of five years to either an eligible employee's age or years of

THOMAS FRANE service. Deadline for the early retirement incentive offer was June 14 and retirements took effect June 30.

Phelan added, however, that Frane is still seeking a disability retirement which, if and when granted, would supersede the early retirement package.

"The disability retirement will, in essence, make the early retirement not applicable," Phelan said.

"I sincerely wish him well in his retirement," the mayor added.

Squantum Gardens Project Topic Of Community Meeting

Mayor William Phelan, working in conjunction with state Senator Michael Morrissey, called a community meeting to address issues concerning the Squantum Gardens senior housing project which was scheduled to be held Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. at the Squantum Gardens Community Center on Saratoga St.

Phelan said the purpose of the meeting was to address the past, present, and future of the project and address concerns that residents might have.

The public was invited to attend the meeting which was to also include members of the Naval Terrace Tenants Association.

Also invited to take part were state Rep. Bruce Ayers, Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton, Councillor-at-Large Joseph Finn, and Planning Director Richard Meade. Also scheduled to attend were Helen Murphy, executive director of the Elder Housing Corporation, which is in charge of the project, and Laurie Allen, executive secretary to the mayor.

Frane's retirement became a lightning rod for controversy in January of this year when Councillor Frank McCauley wrote a letter to Phelan requesting resolution on the issue, arguing that the city could not afford to pay the salaries of two police chiefs.

At the time, Phelan said he had been assured by Frane that he would complete his retirement papers by April 1. By June, Phelan, frustrated that the retirement papers had not been completed, instructed the city to commence involuntary retirement proceedings for Frane.

Reached for comment Tuesday afternoon at his home, Frane declined comment on the issues surrounding his retirement but explained that retirement was his decision to make.

"The retirement became available and I simply took advantage of it," Frane said.

Frane joined the Quincy Police Department as a patrolman in 1971 and was promoted to sergeant in 1980, lieutenant in 1987, and captain in 1992. In 1997 he took over as chief of police from Francis Mullen, who retired.

Phelan said no results have been made available on a Civil Service Exam for police chief which was given in May of this year.

Acting Police Chief William Falco currently heads the department.

Overall, more than 100 city employees opted to take advantage of the early retirement package including former Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue and former Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon.

response time which has been reduced to under three minutes, well below the state average of six minutes.

"Three minutes doesn't sound like a long time, but try holding your breath for three minutes or watching a fire grow in three minutes,"

Arienti said. "It's a lifetime."

State Rep. Bruce Ayers agreed. "As a member of the delegation and the Public Safety Committee, I'm proud to have worked with the Quincy firefighters and union members on this important piece of legislation," Ayers said. "This will provide a higher level of public safety in the Commonwealth.

"Firefighters put their lives on the line every day. As legislators, we have an obligation to work with them and the residents of the Commonwealth to pass laws that will enhance public safety measures."

Reproduced Benches Added To Col. Josiah Quincy House

A pair of reproduction pine benches have replaced the long-missing originals and completed work on the entrance portico of the historic Josiah Quincy House.

The home of Abigail Adams' great-uncle at 20 Muirhead St., Wollaston, is owned by the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities (SPNEA).

Based on photographic evidence and extensive research, SPNEA Carpenter Steve O'Shaughnessy reproduced a pair of 18th century benches with a Chinoiserie fretwork back for the Quincy House.

Original correspondence between Revolutionary leader Col. Josiah Quincy and housewright Edward Pierce of Dorchester indicates that the benches were an original architectural detail of the house, designed and built in 1770.

To recreate the benches, O'Shaughnessy also relied on photographs from the 1930s that feature close range images of the portico and one of the benches at the front entrance.

A 1933 Historic American Buildings Survey for the Quincy House reveals:

"The entrance portico, in particular, represents the rare survival of an unaltered 18th century entrance and it among the SPNEA's finest and best preserved original exterior features."

"I strived to create faithful and exacting duplicates of the originals to blend into the remaining exterior features," said O'Shaughnessy.

City Receives National Kids Lead-Safe Award

The city of Quincy in conjunction with the Quincy-Weymouth Lead Paint Consortium has been recognized nationally for its commitment to creating a lead safe environment for children.

The city was selected to receive a "Lead-Safe for Kids' Sake" 2002 Best Practice Award by Cities United for Science Program, a partnership of the United States Conference of Mayors and the Dupont Corporation.

The award recognizes Quincy's efforts to propose and implement effective solutions to make Quincy neighborhoods safe. New implementation strategies include the involvement of a number of community groups and agencies to conduct education and outreach programs such as the Quincy Department of Public Health and Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services (QNHS), which are responsible for educational outreach for the city of Quincy.

Local health care providers support the effort by donating services for testing children and making literature available to parents of children 6 years and under. Pre-schools, kindergartens and private day care groups are involved with education by sending informative literature home to parents with their children.

QNHS provides information and assistance to those facing lead hazard problems as well as conducting joint seminars on lead hazards through their first-time homebuyers program. In addition, Quincy Access TV posts information on the abatement control program and other free blood screening clinics and hosting a half-hour informational show.

The local community centers offers a central point of information dissemination while hosting informational seminars on the danger of lead paint poisoning for children.

"I am proud that the collaborative efforts of the city of Quincy and its community groups to create a safer environment for our children have been recognized by this national organization," said Mayor William Phelan.

WREATH-LAYING CEREMONIES were held last Thursday in the crypt beneath United First Parish Church to mark the 235th anniversary of the birth of John Quincy Adams. Participating in the ceremonies were, from foreground left: Mayor William Phelan; William Westland of United First Parish Church; United First Parish Church Historic Tour Director Arthur Ducharme, who served as coordinator of the program; Commander Randall Neal, commanding officer of the USS Constitution; former City Council President and current Register of Deeds Paul Harold, supervisor of the Adams Temple and School Fund; Dr. Edward Fitzgerald of the Quincy Historical Society; and John Stanwich, supervisory park ranger and historian at the Adams National Historical Park. In background are members of Naval Reserve Center Quincy. Missing from photo is Lt. Commander George N.T. Whitbred of the Naval Reserve Center Quincy who presented the wreath on behalf of President George W. Bush.

Community Meeting July 29 On Proposed New Fore River Bridge

State Rep. Ron Mariano has scheduled a community meeting regarding the Fore River Bridge Monday, July 29, at 7 p.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse, 16 Nevada Rd., Quincy Point.

Mariano has invited representatives of the Massachusetts Highway Department to make a presentation on the options for the construction of a new bridge.

"This project will have a huge impact on the whole Route 3A corridor," said Mariano. "The people of Quincy and Weymouth who live and work in these neighborhoods deserve a voice in this project.

"I hope by bringing the community and MassHighway together so early in the process we will be able to open up the lines of communication and ensure the project helps improve the quality of life for all those effected."

Neighborhood Meeting On Franklin St. Subdivision Plans

Council President and Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi has scheduled a Neighborhood Meeting for Tuesday, July 23 at 7 p.m. in the community room of the Roche Brothers Supermarket, 101 Falls Blvd., to discuss a proposal to subdivide the property located at 242-252 Franklin St. into four separate residential lots.

The applicant and his attorney have been invited to meeting to explain the proposal and respond to resident questions, comments, or concerns.

The Planning Board will hold a public hearing on the matter Wednesday, Aug. 14 at 7:30 p.m. in the second floor conference room of City Hall, 1305 Hancock St.

Zoning Board Hearing On Bower Rd. Proposal Aug. 6

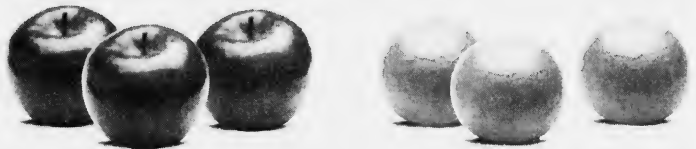

The Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) will conduct a public hearing Tuesday, Aug. 6 at 7:15 p.m. in the council chambers of City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., to discuss a petition by Frank Bridgeman, Trustee of

M.R.T. Realty Trust, for a variance to demolish the existing single-family dwelling and barn located at 61 Bower Rd. and to construct five single-family dwellings on the newly created lots.

Warming Up In Ward 1

The 2003 city election is still more than a year away but you wouldn't think so in Ward 1.

Greg Hanley's announcement he will be vacating his Ward 1 council seat at the end of his current term has triggered early movement on that political front.

Two candidates -- James Bottary who was active in Project Hope and Sean McArdle, a member of the Houghs Neck Community Council -- are already off and running with bumper stickers in circulation.

Leo Kelly, who was elected to that seat six times and is now chairman of the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission and heads up the Quincy Evergreen program, says he's going to run. And he has bumper stickers but says it's too early to put them out.

Other names are being mentioned as potential candidates:

Joanne Bythrow, vice president of the Houghs Neck Community Council.

Robert Ross of Germantown, a member of the Quincy High School sitting committee and brother-in-law of Senator Michael Morrissey.

Daniel Maguire, past president of the Merrymount Association and president of an AMTRAK union.

And, of course, Gretchen Grant who has run several times and no doubt will be in there again next year.

Another name being mentioned is William Weed, a former candidate. But right now his mind is on this year's governor's race.

Weed is Quincy district coordinator for the Mitt Romney-Kerry Healey Republican ticket. (The district includes Braintree, Weymouth, Randolph and Stoughton.)

But after November, he might give some thought to that open seat coming up in Ward 1.

Hanley is moving to Pembroke. His wife and children are already there. He says he will finish out his term while maintaining an apartment at 75 Palmer St.

Critics say he should give up the seat now with so long to go and have a special election to fill it.

He says he was elected to the term before he thought he would be leaving Quincy and intends to complete it.

the honor.

IN A WAY it's a souvenir of Bill Phelan's 17-vote upset mayoral win last year. That "Mayor Jim Sheets Headquarters" sign is still up over the vacant storefront at 1514 Hancock St. in Quincy Center.

Did they just forget to take it down? Or... is the location on hold for another time?

SHEETS

YOU MIGHT BE rooting for a Quincy quarterback when the Patriots open this year's season.

Tom Brady, who led the Pats to the Super Bowl championship last year, has reportedly moved into a house on Ludlow St. in Marina Bay.

GEORGE BURKE'S generous scholarship tradition continues.

The Quincy attorney and former district attorney, state representative and city councillor, awarded six more $1,000 scholarships this year to Quincy and North Quincy High School graduates.

It brings the 10-year total number of recipients to 61 and the scholarship total to $61,000.

This year's recipients:
QHS: Jill Halvorson, Michael Doyle, Shaun Flaherty; NQHS: Angela Lam, Kara Cheeseman, Jennifer Shi.

The scholarships are for graduates who will be attending the University of Massachusetts, Burke's alma mater.

Burke starred in basketball at UMass-Amherst in the 1950s and has been a big benefactor to the school down through the years.

The school has honored him on a number of occasions including retiring his uniform No. 32 and naming the Sports Hall of Fame after him.

Maybe they should add another honor: Alumnus Top Recruiter

Harold, now Norfolk County Register of Deeds, was honored by Balaguer in 1993 as a state senator for his work with the Dominican people in Massachusetts.

Balaguer presented Harold with the Order of Cristobol Colon (Christopher Columbus) medal, the highest civilian honor given by the Dominican Republic.

The medal is actually four engraved medals of white gold. Harold was the second non-Dominican to receive

AT BILL DWYER'S gas station on Sea St. in Merrymount in the 60s-70s, you could fill up on gas and catch up on the latest on the political scene.

Bill, who once ran for state representative himself, is now 80 and still keeps an eye on the Quincy political scene. And has a special interest: the budding career of his daughter-in-law, Elaine Dwyer, who was the City Council School Committee convention choice for the school committee seat Bill Phelan vacated to run for mayor.

At his 80th birthday party, guests included three former mayors: Walter Hannon, Frank McCauley and Arthur Tobin.

And there must have been plenty of political talk that night.

A belated happy 80th, Bill.

FRANK McCAULEY, chairman of the City Council's reunion committee, reminds those interested that group photos of the mayors as well as council presidents are available at McIntire's Studios, 679 Hancock St., Wollaston.

The photos were taken at this year's reunion held in April at the Neighborhood Club.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1917 POSTCARD is a view of a portion of the old Tubular Rivet and Stud Company buildings in Wollaston. The view shows Weston Avenue in the foreground. The picture was taken just after the third floor was added to the building on the left. Many more square feet of factory space were added before the company moved to Braintree in the early 1960s. Many tenants used the buildings over the next several years including the Bargain Center, Boston Gear Works, a corrugated box warehouse and a lamp manufacturer. Today, the buildings in this view are part of the Mellon Bray condominium complex that is named after the founder of the Tubular Rivet Company.

Urge Parents To Support New School Fund

We commend Jo-Ann Bragg for her leadership and initiative in establishing a school fund to provide additional money for our schools. This fund provides a great vehicle for taxpayers to contribute funds that will be earmarked only for our schools.

I hope that parents with children in the Quincy school system will enthusiastically support this fund to help provide a quality education for our children. Many of us give money to charities every year to support worthy causes. What is more important than the education of our children?

Funds raised through this initiative and by Parent Teacher Organizations can only provide supplemental funds for academic enrichment. The funding of the core needs of our schools must necessarily come from the city budget. It follows, then, that if we are truly committed to providing quality education in Quincy, we must adequately fund the schools in the city budget.

Most cities and towns spend approximately 50 percent of their general fund budgets to the school system. The school budget in Quincy only constitutes about 32-33 percent of the overall budget. Quincy has been underfunding its schools for a number of years. This has resulted in a lack of acceptable funding for textbooks, supplies, equipment and teacher salaries.

Despite this stress on the system, it has still put out a good product in recent years due to three primary factors. First, Quincy has been able to keep class enrollments low. Time and again parents and educators have emphasized that low class size is an essential ingredient to providing a quality education. Second, we are fortunate to have some talented administrators who have made the best out of the limited resources available to them. Last, but not least, we have many committed teachers who have been willing to work for lower pay than many of their counterparts in surrounding cities and towns.

Due to significant cuts in the school budget, these dynamics are about to change drastically. Based on the last numbers we heard, the budget has been reduced by approximately $1 million from the prior year. In addition to this cut, however, state mandated special education costs, contractual obligations and other fixed costs are increasing by several million dollars over last year. Thus, the actual deficit in the school budget is closer to $5 million.

The result is that two of the three pillars supporting our school system will be weakened. One hundred and thirty teachers received termination notices. These notices will not only result in the loss of jobs, but will also affect teacher morale and feelings of job security for remaining teachers. The mayor is hopeful that additional funds can be secured to help reduce these layoffs, but a number of experienced teachers have already accepted positions elsewhere. Common sense dictates that class size will also increase as a result of layoffs.

We stand at a critical juncture. We hear our elected officials talk about their commitment to providing a quality education. But actions speak louder than words. We need to commit more resources to the schools. Quincy cannot continue to underfund schools compared with surrounding communities.

If parents lose faith in the school system, everyone in the city of Quincy will suffer. Current residents will move to other communities, we will fail to attract young people who value education, property values will decline and tax revenues will decrease. For those that think that this is unlikely, history is replete with examples to the contrary. The alarm is ringing and we need to respond.

Opposes Little League Field At Swingles Quarry

(The following letter was sent to Steven G. Lipman of the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (MDEP) and forwarded to The Quincy Sun for publication.)

This is in response to notice in Environmental Monitor 6/26/02 Public Notice Swingles Quarry Post-Filling Landscaping Proposed Revision to Declaratory Judgment.

We oppose the change to a "Little League Field" as this area has been designated as a granite industry interpretive park and a quarry museum by the former mayor and the various committees that I and others have sat on over the years.

The quarry museum has collected numerous artifacts over the last 10 years; many have been displayed at Former Quarry Museum, Commonwealth Museum, and a few are now on display at Presidents Place. Many of these materials have been donated by families of the granite workers over the years and are awaiting a new home.

The MIT Landscape Department did a study and all agreed that Swingles area was the ideal location with the "first commercial rail way being located across the street at Bunker Hill Quarries Site." Little and Granite Rail Quarries located next door along with "Historic granite rail way incline just below" all linked together with the "Quarry foot path" linking to "Historic Lyons Turning Mill" and Blue Hill Reservation at both ends.

We oppose this change as totally inappropriate as eight ball fields are being built one-quarter mile up the road.

Delay Sought On Squantum Zoning

By PAUL HAROLD

Residents of Atlantic petitioned the Planning Board for a delay in the proposed rezoning of the Squantum Naval Air Station from Industry A and B to Industry A-1.

Atty. Joseph McDonough, spokesman for the group, said there was insufficient notice giving regarding the zoning change. He said the residents needed more time to consider the ramifications of such a change.

Planning Board Chairman Walter Schmitz said the rezoning from Industry A and B to Industry A-1 would prevent the construction of any residential units at the naval site.

CHANGE IN QUARRY DUMPING

DPW Commissioner Charles Herbert announced that due to a smoldering fire at Ballou's Quarry, the city would use Fallon's Quarry across the street for dumping on a temporary basis.

Following the construction of a rubbish chute at Hitchcock's Quarry, all city rubbish would be disposed there and the Ballou and Fallon quarries would be closed and covered with fill.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED FOR OBSERVER CORPS

The Quincy branch of the Ground Observer Corps noted its anniversary this week with a call for more volunteers. They were an offshoot of the aircraft warning system that operated during World War II.

The group operated out of the cupola at Quincy City Hospital, working eight hours a day, seven days a week. Walter Brown, head of the group, said observers were needed 24 hours a day, requiring a full complement of 250 volunteers. Currently, he said volunteers were coming from as far away as Melrose and Revere.

Folk Duo Atwater/Donnelly Return To Crane Library

Perennial favorites Aubrey Atwater and Elwood Donnelly return to Quincy for a concert Thursday, July 25 from 12:30 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Square.

The popular folk duo will present a varied concert of traditional American folk songs, Celtic pieces, a cappella pieces, hymns, dance tunes, and original works. Aubrey and Elwood blend unusual harmonies as they sing and play guitar, dulcimer, tin, whistle, harmonica, banjo, bones, spoons, and other instruments. Their performances appeal to all ages and audience participation is strongly encouraged.

Atwater/Donnelly have released several CDs which receive international airplay. They have researched and performed folk music extensively in New England, Ireland, England, Prince Edward Island, the Ozarks, and Appalachia. They have performed with or shared festival billing with such folk legends as Jean Ritchie, Doc

ATWATER/DONNELLY

Watson, and Pete Seeger. Their most recent library performance was a fascinating program on murder ballads.

The concert is funded in part by the Quincy Arts Council which receives funding from the Massachusetts Arts Council. It will be held on the library's front lawn or, in case of inclement weather, in the library's atrium. Concertgoers are encouraged to bring lawn chairs, beach blankets, and picnics.

The Atwater/Donnelly performance will be followed by blues singer Les Sampou on Aug. 1 and the Krisanthi Pappas Swing Combo on Aug. 8.

Landmarks Concert Series Begins Friday At Beale Estate

Mayor William Phelan invites residents to attend the first of the Quincy Landmarks Summer Concert Series tomorrow (Friday) at 7 p.m. on the lawn of the Beale Estate at the Adams National Historical Park, 135 Adams St.

The free, twilight concert features an All-American Program performed by the Boston Landmarks Orchestra with pieces by Copland and Gershwin and the talents of Conductor Charles Ansbacher and baritone Robert Honeysucker.

The concert series, which serves as the kick-off event for the city's new Tourism Action Plan, is sponsored in Quincy by State Street Corporation and brought to residents with the support of the Adams National Historical Parks and the Quincy Tourism Advisory Committee.

Blankets and lawn chairs are welcome but no food or drink is allowed in the Adams National Historical Park.

In the event of rain, the concert will take place at Quincy High School, 52 Coddington St.

'Arts In The Parks' Kicks Off 8th Season

Quincy's Arts in the Park program, sponsored by the Park and Recreation Department, kicked off its eighth season Tuesday and will continue on Tuesday and Thursday for the next three weeks.

Featured this year is the renowned children's performer David Polansky, the award winning singer and songwriter who repertoire includes a variety of comical and educational songs.

"We are fortunate to have a great act this year in David Polansky," said Tom Koch, executive director of the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments. "He appeals to people of all ages with great music and a fun approach to performing."

The first program was presented Tuesday night at Bishop Field in Montclair and the second will be presented tonight (Thursday) at O'Rourke Field in West Quincy.

The remaining schedule includes:

July 23 at Beechwood Knoll School on Fenno St.; July 25 at Wendell Moses Playground by the Squantum School, July 30 at LaBrecque Field in Hough's Neck, Aug. 6 at Bradford Street Playground in South Quincy.

All concerts start at 6:30 p.m.

Admission to the concerts is free and the Park and Recreation Departments provide a free ice cream and cold drinks on all those in attendance.

"The Arts in the Parks program allows us to showcase culture in our city's parks," said Barry Welch, Director of Recreation. "Those that might not have an interest in baseball or basketball can still enjoy our parks through the cultural events we are pleased to conduct."

For more information on the Arts in the Parks program, call 617-376-1254.

Siciliano, Emergency Volunteers Honored At Luncheon

A retirement luncheon was held recently for former Deputy Director Tony Siciliano and two departing members of the Quincy Emergency Management Agency.

Siciliano, Secretary Rita Tosone and Patricia O'Shea, an eight-year volunteer, were feted by the command staff of the Naval Reserve Center at the Inn at Bay Pointe.

Siciliano was fired as unpaid deputy director by Mayor William Phelan and his agency all but eliminated last March. He retired as general foreman of the Parking & Traffic Department June 30.

Currently, he is deputy director of Emergency Management for Braintree in charge of acquiring grants, after school programs and training for high school students, adults and senior citizens.

The training is done through President Bush's Citizens Corps Community Emergency Response Team (CERT), which has attained particular importance during the present war of terrorism.

Three weeks ago, some 100 people from around the South Shore met with Siciliano in Weymouth to register for Citizens Corps training.

Organizations which would like Siciliano and the Citizens Corps CERT team to speak or have an activity on which they need help should contact Robert Salvaggio, director of

Drop-In Storytimes At Crane Main Library

Drop-in Storytime for ages 2-3 accompanied by an adult will be held today (Thursday) and July 25 at 10:30 a.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

The program will take place in the Children's Story Room and consist of a half hour of stories, songs and rhymes. No registration is required.

A Make and Take Craft, beaded safety pin designs, will be offered for children ages 8 and older in the Children's Room of the library Monday July 22 at 7 p.m. For more information call 617-376-2411.

The Summer Storytellers Series continues Tuesday, July 23, at 7 p.m. when the Activated Storytellers make their Quincy debut with "Star Spangled Stories" for ages 5 and older. The program will take place in the large meeting room at the library.

The Activated Storytellers are a family, Dennis (Dad), Kimberly (Mom) and 11-year-old Zephyr Goza. They are experienced professionals who perform full time, touring coast-to-coast 365 days a year.

The show will also include a dozen children from Quincy acting as guest stars. Activated Storytellers' performance is a blend of comedy, acrobatics, American Sign Language and audience participation.

At the same time a Pajama Story Hour with Cheryl Dunford will be offered for younger siblings accompanied by an adult and families with children under the age of 5. Hats are the subject of this week's stories. This will be held in the Children's Room at the library.

Joe Holleran Graduates From Bridgton Academy

Joe Holleran recently graduated from Bridgton Academy, the nation's only all-postgraduate college preparatory school for young men, in North Bridgton, Maine.

Both programs are free and do not require registration. These and other summer events at the library are funded in part by the Quincy Arts Lottery.

On Wednesday, July 24, magician Tim David will provide a Day of Magic three times during the day. The first show will be at the Wollaston Branch Library, 41 Beale St., at 10:30 a.m.

The second will take place on the front lawn of the main library at 1 p.m. In case of inclement weather this performance will be moved inside the library.

The final show will take place at the Adams Shore Branch Library at 2:30 p.m.

For more information, call 617-376-2411.

A member of the academy's football team, Holleran will attend Westfield State College.

Two New Radiologists Join Quincy Medical Staff

Quincy Medical Center is offering enhanced diagnostic imaging services with the addition of two new radiologists.

Gamaliel Rodriguez-Herrera, MD, has joined QMC from Brigham and Women's Hospital after completing a fellowship in musculoskeletal imaging.

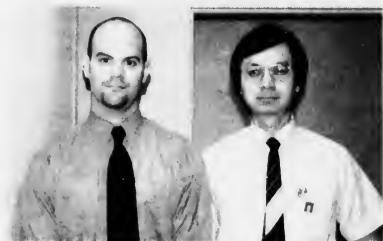

Babington Chun-knen Yung, MBBS, has joined QMC from the Onslow Memorial Hospital in Jacksonville, N.C., where he served as a staff radiologist.

Dr. Yung is board-certified in nuclear medicine and Dr. Rodriguez-Herrera is board-certified in radiology. Both join QMC through the medical center's partnership with Team Health Radiology Services.

"Our new, expertly trained radiologists are a wonderful asset for our comprehensive, state-of-the-art diagnostic imaging services," said Craig Korbin, MD, chief of radiology at QMC.

Mammography services at QMC are provided through the Simon C. Fireman Imaging Center for Women, established in 1996 with a $500,000 grant from Quincy native Simon C. Fireman.

The center was created to offer women a comfortable, private atmosphere in which to undergo testing such as mammography, ultrasound and bone densitometry. Mammograms are reviewed by board-certified radiologists who specialize in women's imaging studies, and in most cases results are provided before patients leave QMC.

Korbin, who oversees diagnostic imaging at QMC, has special expertise in mammography. Prior to joining QMC, Korbin served as Director of the Milton Hospital Breast Program. He completed a mammography fellowship at Brigham and Women's Hospital and has published numerous research articles.

Mammography services at Fireman Imaging Center recently was proclaimed "deficiency-free," with 100 percent accuracy and compliance, during a recent Massachusetts Department of Public Health survey.

The Massachusetts DPH inspection measures quality assurance standards, as well as compliance with state and federal regulations. The DPH team reviewed mammography films, policies and regulatory compliance by staff.

To meet patient demand for services, QMC has expanded mammography services and is now holding evening hours, three days per week, and adding Saturday hours, as needed.

Weekly Flea Market At USS Salem Benefits Shipbuilding Museum

The flea market held every Sunday at the Quincy Shipyard, 739 Washington St., next to the USS Salem which benefits the U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum is a success, say its organizers.

"This outdoor flea market is held every Sunday and is growing every week," said Denis Lardo, a spokesman for the event. "This is a great spot for a community event you can do a little shopping, tour the USS Salem, and cruise the harbor on the Harbor Express."

Parking is free as is admission to the flea market, which includes professional vendors, crafters, and yard sale enthusiasts. Refreshments are provided by the Sea Scouts assigned to the Salem in an effort to support their troop and the ship.

Quincy Farmers' Market Marks 20th Anniversary Year

The Quincy Farmers' Market is marking its 20th anniversary this year operating at the Hancock municipal parking lot, across from Quincy District Court on Chestnut Street, Fridays from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The market continues through summer, rain or shine, on Fridays until Oct. 25.

The City of Quincy, Mayor William Phelan's Office, along with the Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture and the Massachusetts Department of Public Health are sponsors of the market.

The city and the mayor's office provide the space at the parking lot for the farmers to set up their stalls and two-hour free customer parking. The Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture sanctions and certifies this and more than 100 other farmers' markets throughout the Commonwealth. The Department of Public Health distributes the Farmers' Market Coupons for nutritionally-at-risk consumers. These include the WIC mothers, seniors and homebound residents.

"This Friday, when the city is celebrating its sidewalk sales, I encourage shoppers to check out the farmers' offerings as well, and bring home the taste of Massachusetts," said Anneli Johnson, Quincy Farmers' Market coordinator.

In addition, Quincy Farmers' Market will take part in the Massachusetts Farmers' Market Week to be held Friday, Aug. 23, at the market site at the Hancock parking lot. Local chefs from Quincy and area restaurants are invited to meet the farmers and participate. A nutritionist from the University of Massachusetts Extension will be on hand to talk about the anti-oxidants found in the fresh fruits and vegetables, and their role in our health maintenance.

Quincy Farmers' Market produce is picked ripe and sold that day.

Quincy Represented At Senior Summit

Quincy Council on Aging members Lorraine Gallagher, Richard Brooks, and Mark Carey as well as Nancy McDonald and Guy DeGrazia from Quincy Housing recently joined 120 elders and senior citizen advocates at Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating's annual Senior Summit.

"I was glad to have such a strong representation from the city of Quincy," Keating said after the event.

The Senior Summit brought together seniors from various Councils on Aging throughout Norfolk County. The event featured workshops focusing on good nutritional habits, fire and fall prevention, as well as "Alcohol: Friend or Foe?"

Keynote speaker Carol O'Connor, president of O'Connor Consulting Associates, presented a program entitled "Aging is Mandatory, Growing Old is Optional." Other speakers were Isabelle Picado from the National Fire Protection Association, Georgia Neal from Kit Clark Senior Services, and Nutritionist Linda Davenport from Caritas Norwood Hospital.

The summit was held at Raffle's in Walpole.

South Shore Elder Services Expands Outreach To Asians

South Shore Elder Services has been awarded a grant of $40,000 by the Boston Foundation to expand its outreach to the Asian community.

"This grant is an important step towards the delivery of services to the Chinese elderly and their families in the South Shore area and we are very appreciative of the support of the Boston Foundation," said Edward J.

Flynn Jr., the executive director.

"We will be hiring staff to work with the Chinese and Vietnamese community."

Elder Services conducted several focus group meetings to identify the needs of the Chinese and Vietnamese elderly in the South Shore communities.

One of the outcomes from those meetings was the establishment of a Chinese Information Line to respond to the growing needs of the Chinese elderly population in the area.

Jonathan Yip, Equal Opportunity Administrator for Quincy, who has worked closely with SSES on the outreach effort, said "a Cantonese-speaking elder can call the Chinese Information Line with confidence that somebody will understand them and they will feel welcome."

Boston Foundation, one of the nation's oldest and largest community foundations, has an endowment of nearly $630 million and made grants of close to $50 million to non-profit organizations this year in the Greater Boston area.

South Shore Elder Services' Chinese Information Line can be reached at 781-930-0304.

Assistance Offers Stream In For Stolen Beechwood Sun Shade

The $1,000 shade cover stolen three weeks ago from the children's Outside Learning Center at the Beechwood Life Center is still missing.

But offers of help in getting it back or replacing it are streaming in, said Sharron Beals, executive director of Beechwood, following disclosure of the theft on the front page of The Quincy Sun.

"The phone has been ringing off the hook," said Beals.

"One caller thought he spotted it by the Star Market but it turned out to be a rolled up carpet. Three callers said they saw it in Squantum but it was just an overturned blue rowboat."

The bright blue cover, measuring 30 by 30 feet and made of a special fabric, was used to protect toddlers and pre-school youngsters from the sun while they played in the Outdoor Learning Center.

"We've had several offers of big paint tarpaulins," said Beals. "But this is not a normal cover. It's well designed to fit a modular unit. It's waterproof and mold resistant."

The Beechwood community spent three years of fund-raising, including the youngsters who sold lemonade for 10 cents a glass, to raise enough money for the outdoor classroom.

"It's been unbelievable the number of offers we've had for money," said Beals. "All the donors wanted to be anonymous. One older gentleman won $11 at Bingo and he offered it all to us."

"It restores your faith in people."

Meanwhile, the youngsters are using the outdoor classroom, only they're wearing hats to protect them from the sun until the cover is returned or a replacement found.

"I'm still optimistic," said Beals.

TYPICAL STREET scene in Hong Kong, the most crowded and international of China's cities.

So Many People, Bicycles And Skyscrapers

China's Building Boom Impresses Quincy Visitors

By TOM HENSHAW

The first thing about China that catches the eye of a visitor from Quincy is the pace of development and new construction in the major cities.

"Everywhere you go there's new building," said former Mayor James Sheets. "The development in Beijing since the revolution in 1988 is remarkable."

"The most surprising part of the trip for me was all the construction," said School Committee woman Christine Cedrone. "Everywhere I went there were skyscrapers being built."

Sheets and Cedrone are recently back from an eight day business and pleasure trip that took their party of five through three cities in Communist China.

With them on the journey were Sheets' wife, Joann; realtor Simon Chan, a client of Cedrone at Thomas Williams & Associates, and Victoria Landers, Williams' daughter.

Former Mayor Sheets, who was along on personal business, said he was also impressed by the number of people (more than a billion) and the number of bicycles (eight million in Beijing alone).

But Cedrone said she found downtown Beijing "not much different than downtown Boston. When we arrived in Beijing we checked into a brand new hotel with all the amenities."

"There was a lot more greenery and trees than we expected to see. I understood from our tour guide that things were a lot more open now than they had been. Housing is very limited in the cities we visited. Everything is still run by the government."

Simon Chan, who organized the trip, was along for his annual visit to his old home town of Guangzhou (formerly Canton). Cedrone was there to discuss immigration law with Chinese officials.

"We visited Tiananmen Square in Beijing, the Great Wall of China and several WORKER turns out vases under primitive conditions in Beijing, China.

palaces of the Ming and Ching Dynasties," said Cedrone. "I must say the Great Wall was among my favorites. The Wall is amazing."

"Victoria and I climbed the Great Wall. Each step was a different height which made climbing difficult and going back down even more so. I could not stop thinking how it was all built by hand. Construction started in the Seventh Century B.C."

From Beijing, the group flew to Guangzhou, where Cedrone, as a member of the School Committee, had an opportunity to visit a junior/senior high school and ask questions, with Chan acting as interpreter.

"One question I was particularly interested in was about parent involvement," she said. "I asked how many parents attended when the school had assemblies or meetings. I was told all of them did! Education is obviously extremely important to the Chinese."

"I watched a class that was learning English. They did it by recording. They would listen to the recording in English, then repeat it and use it in a sentence. All the books they studied in the class were in English, too."

"Each family is allowed only one child and some families value boys more than girls. Several baby girls are in orphanages available for adoption. While at our hotel, it was apparent that several non-Asian families were there to pick up their adopted baby girls."

The group went on to Hong Kong, the former British colony that has been under Chinese rule for more than two years, by train and found themselves in a different world.

"Hong Kong is very international, very European," said Cedrone. "It's very modern and there are millions of people and tons of stores. We saw a McDonalds, a Kentucky Fried Chicken and a Pizza Hut."

"Walking across the street is like leaving a concert after it is over — there are so many people that you have to hold on to what you have in your hands and push your way through."

Cedrone picked up some souvenirs of the trip — a vase, a handbag, some coasters and Christmas ornaments (strangely enough, imprinted with nativity scenes) — but no T-shirts.

"My niece asked me to bring her a Chinese T-shirt," said Cedrone. "There's no such thing. All the Chinese I saw wore American T-shirts. They didn't know what they said, so some of them were pretty weird. I got my niece a bracelet instead."

Cedrone left a few souvenirs of Quincy behind in China, too.

She gave copies of the Quincy Sun's Historic Quincy supplement to the American ambassador in Beijing, to their tour guide and to the principal of the junior/senior high school in Guangzhou.

32nd Sidewalk Festival

In Quincy Center

Quincy Center will once again be transformed into an outdoor bazaar filled with food, entertainment, and terrific bargains as the 32nd annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival begins today (Thursday) for a three-day run through Saturday.

The event, sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, will be held on Hancock St., which will be closed to vehicular traffic from Granite St. up to Hancock Ct.

Shoppers will be able to stroll down the middle of Hancock St. dotted with 85 canopied booths and turned into a pedestrian mall, leisurely looking over merchandise in front of stores and at vendors and crafters' booths.

"This vacation season, like no other, people are spending more time closer to home," said QCBPA Executive Director Maralin Manning. "This gives folks a wonderful alternative."

As in year's past, Quincy's own WJDA Radio will be making frequent visits to the sidewalk festival for live broadcasts.

Entertainment and other activities are scheduled from 11:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. today (Thursday) and tomorrow (Friday) and from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Featured performers for the 32nd annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival are:

Orleans style and has performed at Faneuil Hall and before several Red Sox games at Fenway Park. The talented group plays a number of instruments including trombone, tuba, trumpets, sax, and percussion.

PICKLES THE CLOWN, a favorite of the Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival, is scheduled to perform each day of the three-day event, delighting children with her fanciful antics and colorful balloon give-aways.

Also performing today (Thursday) are: Pickles the Clown, 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., sponsored by the QCBPA; Cactus Highway, noon to 2 p.m., sponsored by The Flatley Company; and Suzie Q, Suzanne Lockwood, DJ, 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.,

A FAMILY FAVORITE for more than three decades, the 32nd annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival will begin today (Thursday) and run through Saturday, bringing thousands into Quincy Center, which will be transformed into an open air bazaar for the occasion. The event is sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA).

THE CHILDREN'S Tae Kwon Do Performance Team from Jae Kim's Institute each year takes the opportunity of the Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival to display their instruction and defensive talents. As a QCBPA member business centrally located in Quincy Center, the institute makes several appearances during the QCBPA-sponsored event.

sponsored by Sovereign Bank.

Island Breeze Caribbean Steel Band, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. tomorrow (Friday) night, sponsored by The Stop & Shop Companies and 3 Phase Elevator Company. This three-piece ensemble will bring a bit of the Caribbean to Quincy Center as they perform traditional reggae, calypso, and bossa nova melodies in a two-hour program which will include several vocal specialties. The group, headed by Kelly Bolduc, has performed its steel pan melodies throughout New England. Bolduc also leads Hot Like Fire, an award-winning Boston based reggae and calypso dance band.

Also performing tomorrow (Friday) are: Pickles the Clown, 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., sponsored by the QCBPA; KISS-108, broadcasting live from noon to 2 p.m., sponsored by Papa Gino's; Stop & Shop Jimmy Fund Rally, 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., sponsored by Stop &

There will also be a limited number of rides for smaller children and continuing demonstrations by the students of Jae Kim's Tae Kwon Do.

The festival is a great way for the local work force to spend their lunchtime dining and shopping outdoors amidst the festivities, Manning said.

The ample free parking available on Saturday, she added, makes that day the perfect choice for the whole family.

QMC Offering Free Screenings, Health Care Info At Festival

Quincy Medical Center will offer free health screenings for blood pressure and osteoporosis, health information, raffles and giveaways at their booth during the Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival today (Thursday) through Saturday.

The QMC booth, located at Hancock and Granite Sts., will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. throughout the three-day festival.

Quincy Medical Center is a 282-bed non-profit community teaching hospital, providing comprehensive health care services to residents of Quincy and the South Shore.

Through a unique relationship with Boston Medical Center called the Alliance for Quality, Quincy Medical Center combines the personalized atmosphere of a community setting with the resources of a major academic teaching center.

In addition to offering information about QMC's range of programs and services, the medical center also will offer the following during the Sidewalk Festival:

- Health screenings for blood pressure, offered by QMC partner Manet Community Health Center.
- Bone density testing—a screening for osteoporosis, performed by technicians from the medical center's Simon C. Fireman Center for Diagnostic Imaging for Women.

- Health information a range of topics.
- Counselors to discuss QMC's free health services and health insurance for individuals and families who are uninsured or underinsured.
- Literature on volunteer opportunities at the medical center.
- Periodic special giveaways.

Call (617) 376-CARE for a complete schedule of QMC health events during the festival.

VICTORIA GREENLEAF, a nine-year-old from Quincy and a student of Karen McKinnon's "In Stitches" Sewing Camp, puts the finishing touches on a halter top she made while attending the camp. Greenleaf's finished product and the works of other camp members will be on display during a fashion show Saturday at noon as part of the Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival.

FUTURE FASHION DESIGNERS Maureen Leonard, age 6, and her friend Erica Histen prepare for the "In Stitches" Sewing Camp Fashion Show, which will take place Saturday at noon during the Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival.

The Festival Committee

A committee of Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA) members and staff planned this 32nd annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival.

Sandy Cavanaugh of SuperFitness and Tina Tuggle of Papa Gino's served as chairwomen of the committee, which included:

Michael Brewi, Brewi Murray Advertising; Henry Bosworth, The Quincy Sun; Joanne Falco, Professional

Cuts, Etc.; William Holmes, Stop & Shop Companies; Caryn Smith, Caryn's Corner; Eric Stoeckel, Burgin Platner & Hurley Insurance; QCBPA Executive Director Maralin Manning and Marie Watts, QCBPA secretary.

Teen Vocalist Alicia Patrick To Perform Saturday At Sidewalk Festival

In her first Quincy appearance, Alicia Patrick, an up-and-coming teen vocalist, will perform at the Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival Saturday at 12:30 p.m. in a show sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA).

The 15-year-old Patrick has been performing on stage since the age of 11 and has won six "Battle of the Bands" competitions, performed on Cable TV, co-hosted Play My CD, a widely watched cable program, and is currently writing her first album.

Six Design Tips To Revitalize Your Home

(N1) — Are your bored with your home?

If so, that's understandable. After looking at the same furniture, the same walls and the same décor for years, who wouldn't want a change?

If you're not ready to buy a new house, consider the next best thing — sprucing up the one you have. By renovating and redecorating, you can create a more livable space now and help increase your home's value for when it's time to sell.

There are many decisions to be made when taking on a remodeling or redecorating project. If you're on a budget, don't fret. Small changes can do wonders for your home's appearance.

Here are some cost-conscious tips for renovating and decorating your home with resale in mind from Robin

Baron, a successful interior designer and chief executive officer of Robin Baron Home Inc., a home furnishings and interior design company.

- Work with what you already have. Often, giving an existing cabinet a new look or re-accessorizing a room is less expensive than re-doing it.

- Stay neutral. For resale purposes, play it safe by choosing timeless colors and designs that appeal to many tastes. Stay away from unusual color combinations and trendy decorating schemes that could become dated in a year or two. Keeping design simple will help lower your costs, too.

- Choose products carefully. Are there less expensive alternatives that will give you the same look for less money? Combine a few expensive pieces with lower priced items to give the room a more upscale look.

- Get an interior designer's opinion. If you're planning to buy new furniture and accessories, but lack a designer's eye for putting it all together, get advice from a professional. Think you can't afford one? You can. When you buy home furnishings and accessories from Robin Baron Home, the company's design professionals provide their interior design services — including planning, coordinating and color matching — at no cost.

- Transform your home with paint. You'll be amazed at the difference a new color can make. Painting is one of the least expensive ways to give any room in your house a new look.

- Create space. If costly additions to your home are not feasible right now, create an illusion of space. Clutter can make your home appear smaller, so ride your home of clutter. Make creative use of the space you have and add lights to give the home an airy feel.

Building A Deck?

Homeowners who want to unwind after a long day don't need to stray too far from home. The path to relaxation can be just a few steps away -- on the deck in your back yard. If you plan to add a deck to your home, think about the materials you will use, such as the type of wood.

A REAL BARGIN?

Buyers looking to deal with ESBOs (For Sale By Owner) may be doing so with the hope of saving money. They typically think they can get a better bargain by dealing out the real estate agent. The fact is, however, that the majority of ESBOs are carried out with the idea of making more money for the seller, not passing along any potential savings to the buyer. What is more, many ESBOs start out by pricing their properties above market value without paying proper attention to actual comparable sale prices. Then, when prospective buyers factor in many ESBOs' emotional attachment to their homes and the associated inability to negotiate effectively, they find that they get more than they bargained for.

The real estate market continues to be aggressive. Although ESBOs may seem attractive, they often leave the buyer without proper legal protection. At CENTRAL REAL ESTATE, we work in your best interest to locate a home that is right for you, negotiate a sale price, handle the Purchase and Sale agreement, and oversee house inspection and legal paperwork. For individualized service and results, call us at (617) 328-1312, or visit us at 128 McGrath Highway.

HINT: Many real estate agents earn their commissions by offering experienced pricing advice and providing clear-headed negotiating skills.

'Rug Rage': Four Tips For Choosing Area Rugs

More than 40 percent of women between the ages of 25 to 64 anticipate purchasing an area rug within the next two years, according to a recent study by Harris Interactive.

The rise in popularity is due in large part to new technologies that are lowering prices while raising quality, as well as chic designs that are making rugs a central part of the decorating scheme, according to DuPont.

As rugs become "all the rage," consider these tips for choosing an area rug that will complement your current decor.

• Consider whether you want the focal point of the room to be the rug or another design element, like a fireplace. If you want the rug to be the center of attention, choose one with a central medallion. If not, you may want to use a rug with a more repetitive pattern.

• Take into account the patterns on the upholstery and walls in the room, so they don't compete with each other. If your upholstery is ornate, choose a subtle pattern for the area rug. If the walls are subdued, you can choose a more vibrant pattern to add more interest.

• Choose a rug with colors that coordinate with your decor. Not all colors in the rug need match the room but at least one color should coordinate with the existing decor.

• Remember that light-colored rugs make a room seem more spacious, while darker colors in a rug will bring a cozy atmosphere to the room. Also keep in mind the function of your rug, as light-colored rugs hide dust while dark-colored rugs hide dirt.

When purchasing a new area rug, consumers look for both quality and style. According to DuPont Stainmaster, its rug collection is high fashion, stain- and soil-resistant, and comes with the ease of cleaning that consumers have come to expect.

"Consumer research shows that appearance, durability, quality, and stain and soil resistance are the most important features in selecting an area rug," said Carol Haslach, marketing communications manager for DuPont. "The DuPont Stainmaster rug collection offers all of these characteristics to consumers."

In an effort to exceed consumer expectations, DuPont continues to advance its carpet and rug technology by providing protection against static, stains, soiling and crushing.

To learn more about carpets and rugs, visit www.stainmaster.com or call 1-800-4-DuPont.

Morrisette Clings To Playoff Chance

By CHRIS POISSON

If the Morrisette Legion baseball team doesn't qualify for the playoffs, it can point directly to a pair of losses last week at home to Cohasset.

As the Sun went to press Tuesday, the fifth seed — a fight between Morrisette and Cohasset — in the Zone 6 playoffs had yet to be decided.

Here was the scenario: If Cohasset beat Weymouth Tuesday, then it qualified for the tournament and Morrisette was out. If Cohasset lost Tuesday and Morrisette beat Weymouth yesterday (Wednesday), then it made the tourney and Cohasset was out.

The No. 5 seed is scheduled to play No. 1 Norwood tomorrow (Friday) to kick off the postseason.

Again, Morrisette could have made things much easier for themselves if it had beaten Cohasset either last Thursday or Saturday. Instead, it suffered a pair of painful one-run defeats.

"All we had to do was win one of the two games against Cohasset and we would've eliminated them," said manager Ray Cattaneo Tuesday morning.

Originally, Morrisette tried to play Weymouth Monday night, but the game was called after four innings due to the weather. A huge break for Morrisette. Not only was it losing at the time, 3-1, but the postponement put the pressure on Cohasset as it had to play the do-or-die game first.

Morrisette fell to Milton, 3-1, last Wednesday before the collapse to Cohasset. On Thursday, Cohasset orchestrated the go-ahead run with two outs in the seventh thanks to an error and two hits to take a 3-2 win. On Saturday, Morrisette fell behind early and couldn't catch Cohasset in a 7-6 loss.

Lost in the playoff race was Sunday night's clash between Morrisette and city rival Quincy at Adams Field.

Quincy jumped out to a 6-1 lead after two innings, but Morrisette rebounded with 12 unanswered runs for a 13-6 win to complete a three-game sweep of Quincy this season. After being swept last year, Morrisette can take solace in this feat whether it makes the playoffs or not.

John O'Connell gave up the six early runs (one earned), but settled down to blank Quincy over the final five innings for the win. He allowed eight hits and two walks while striking out three.

After scoring a pair of runs in the third inning, Morrisette added four more in the fourth to grab a 7-6 lead. Pat Bregoli walked, Don Cook singled and Brian O'Hanley (3 for 3, 2 doubles, 3 RBI) was intentionally walked to load the bases with no outs.

Neal Gavin walked to score Bregoli and Tom Hughes reached on a fielder's choice allowing Cook to score. O'Connell (1 for 2, 4 RBI) then ripped a two-run double that plated Gavin and Hughes.

Morrisette tacked on two runs in the fifth to go ahead 9-6. Mike Feetham started for Quincy and went six innings, allowing seven earned runs on seven hits and five walks with six strikeouts.

In the seventh, Morrisette rounded out the scoring with four runs (2 earned) of Dennis Thomson. For Quincy, Wayne Moynihan went 3 for 3 with a triple and Feetham went 2 for 4 with two RBI to power the offense.

617-479-2950 or Pete White at 617-479-7319.

Returns can be sent to: Trig's Auto Repair (formerly Triangle), 15 Centre St., Quincy, MA 02169, or to Morrisette Post.

Fee is $100, which includes green fees, cart, sit-down dinner and prizes.

Applications are available at the new Cyril P. Morrisette Post, 81 Liberty St., Quincy, or by calling Bill Corcoran at

Granite Crack Thunder; Host Shamrocks Saturday

EASTERN FOOTBALL

With the way the 2001 season ended, the Quincy Granite was certainly not going to make the same mistake twice as it headed into last Saturday afternoon's season opener in the Eastern Football League.

First, let's take a look at how last season went down: Quincy dismantled all nine opponents in the regular season, cruises past Middleboro in the quarterfinals and all it has to do is beat Springfield to receive a ticket to the championship game against the Marlboro Shamrocks. But Quincy is caught "looking ahead" and loses, ending what would've been a storybook season.

Now we go to last Saturday. Quincy headed to Wakefield to take on the Bay State Thunder (formerly Mass Havoc) in the season opener, knowing in the back of its mind that Marlboro was on deck for Week 2.

Did it learn its lesson from a year ago?

Quincy answered that question very early, scoring on the first play from scrimmage en route to a convincing 17-7 victory.

Now Quincy can spend a week preparing entirely for the mighty Shamrocks, the 11-time defending champions, on Saturday night at 7. Quincy will host the perennial power at Veterans Memorial Stadium for the first time in its brief history.

The two teams have met only once before, with the Shamrocks whipping the Granite, 36-0, in Marlboro.

But that game was played two years ago when the Granite was in their first season in the EFL. By the way, Quincy happened to play that game without a legitimate quarterback as wide receiver Derrick Epps scrambled for his life while filling in for injured Liam Higgins.

"We should have played Marlboro last year but we weren't focused on Springfield and we lost," said nine-year EFL veteran David Harris, who was supposed to retire at the end of last year but decided to come back for one more season as he chases his first championship.

"I've played them twice in my career before I came to Quincy," he added, referring to when he was on the Boston Cowboys teams that lost to them in the Super Bowl two years in a row. "And the key is mistake-free football. That's the only way you can beat Marlboro."

If that's the case, then the Granite has to work out a few kinks with their offensive and special teams units after the performance in the season opener.

Quincy clearly opened Bay State, but several dropped balls, missed field goals and other opening-day mistakes prevented the Granite from getting more points on the board. Against

TROUBLESOME PATTERNS

When uneven tire wear can be caused by something as simple as improper tire pressure, it can also result from loose struts, mounts, ball joints, or steering linkage, as well as weak/fatigued shock absorbers or coil springs. Excessive wear on both the inside and outside edges of the tire is often due to low tire pressure. A diagonal tread wear pattern on rear tires is usually an indication of incorrect wheel alignment of the rear tires. If the toe setting is incorrect, the tire will try to travel in a direction other than the one in which the vehicle wants to go. This happens only momentarily, after which the tire is forced back, causing the diagonal scuff wear pattern.

Tires are expensive. If they are starting to wear unevenly have your car's undercarriage checked out. Our ASE Certified service technicians here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550) will do their part in making sure your car is properly maintained for maximum efficiency and performance. Hours: Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." We are your local source for propane for grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles.

HINT: To achieve optimum tire performance, check the air pressure frequently and rotate the tires every 6,000 to 7,500 miles, or when recommended by the manufacturer.

Keohane Clips Kiwanis For Junior League Crown

Keohane recently pulled out an spectacular come-from-behind 8-6 victory over Kiwanis to capture the Quincy Youth Baseball Junior League championship.

Kiwanis held a 5-1 lead after five innings as pitcher Brian Sullivan held Keohane hitless. Sullivan also teamed up with Steve Kussman to supply the offense.

In the top of the sixth, though, Keohane stormed back with seven runs on four hits, three walks and errors. Sean Kearney, Joe Lousarian, Mike Labelle and Brian Bertrand had the clutch hits.

Tom Conley finished the sixth inning for his 10th victory of the season.

Manager Bob Foley said his coaches Paul Rogers and Serg Belcastro, along with the help of a great pitching clinic in Quincy, were the important help his team needed for victory.

Marlboro, missed points will cost dearly as the Shamrocks' defense stymied Middleboro in their first game last week with a shutout.

Continuing with their aerial attack in the preseason games, the Granite scored on the first play from scrimmage when Higgins fired a 40-yard TD strike to wideout Bo Garcia. Matt Kulezsa added the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

Higgins hooked up with Garcia for another TD pass in the second half and Kulezsa kicked a 24-yard field goal for a 17-0 lead.

Although the points came through the air, Quincy actually played smash-mouth football, rushing the ball effectively with tailbacks Jackson Vetic and Edward Mazzuchelli running behind an improved offensive line (no sacks allowed). All-star Ron Pierre-Louis filled in admirably for injured center Mike Zawilinski and newcomer Matt Baldassari played well in his debut.

Defensively, Quincy

turned in the type of outing fans have seen ever since its inception four years ago. Take away the Thunder's touchdown early in the fourth quarter against botched coverage and the Granite smothered the Thunder all afternoon.

Defensive tackles Al Casey and Christos Arsoniadis provided constant pressure, while Louis Burkard (interception) and Troy Parks looked strong in the defensive backfield.

3 Quincy Relay Teams Qualify For State Hershey Track Meet

Three of the six state champion relay teams in the Hershey National Track and Field are representatives of the Quincy Recreation Department qualifier held in June at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

They are: Victor Aliberti, Andrew Beaton, Brian Malger, Joshua Yesufu (boys ages 9-10); Jacqueline Dugas, Julia Nee, Julie Free, Molly Heissner (girls ages 9-10); and Akil Benjamin, Kevin Borst, Benson Luc, Jade Pina (boys ages 13-14).

Winning individual state championships were Victoria Virtue in the softball throw (girls ages 9-10) and Nicholas Poles in the 400-meter dash (boys ages 11-12).

As of press time, the Quincy state champions were waiting to see if they would be selected as the New England regions top team and earn an all-expense paid trip to the National Championship in Hershey Park, Pa.

The Hershey Foods Corporation is celebrating 25 years of excellence with its sponsorship of this program for the summer of 2002.

"The purpose of this free activity is to provide a quality recreation program where children have fun and are introduced to physical fitness through basic track and field events, such as running, jumping and throwing," said Recreation Director Barry Welch.

Over 200 boys and girls took part in the two days of local meets sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department in cooperation with the Quincy Track Club. Welch congratulated the Quincy champions and thanked the recreation leaders who assisted with the timing and scoring of the local events. He also thanked Geoff Hennessy of Quincy Track Club for serving as meet director.

Here are the results of the other Quincy winners at the state championships:

Boys Ages 9-10
Joshua Yesufu, 50-meter dash, fourth place; Albert Victor, 100-meter dash, second; James Finn, 200-meter dash, did not compete; softball throw, sixth; Trevor Sullivan, 400-meter dash, ninth, standing long jump, 14th.

Girls Ages 9-10
Jacqueline Cunniff, 50-meter dash, did not compete; Jacqueline Dugas, 100-meter dash, eighth, standing long jump, fifth; Molly Heissner, 200-meter dash, eighth; Julia Free, 400-meter dash, second.

Boys Ages 11-12
Jimmy Harte, 100- and 200-meter dash, standing long jump, did not compete; Shane Regan, 800-meter dash, second; Ian Browne, David Allen, Shane Regan, Nicholas Poles, 4x100-meter relay, third; Timothy Schow, softball throw, 13th.

Girls Ages 11-12

Kevin Borst, 100-meter dash, sixth; Jade Pina, 200-meter dash, fourth; Mark Jordan, 800-meter dash, fourth; Benson Luc, standing long jump, second; Akil Benjamin, softball throw, third.

Girls Ages 13-14
Shannon Malger, 100-meter dash, 12th; Alysha Williams, 200-meter dash, 10th; Genevieve Olsen, 800-meter dash, 10th; Erin McMahon, 1600-meter dash, sixth; Shannon Malger, Sarah Dold, Alysha Williams, Melissa Mendall, 4x100-meter dash, second; Katie O'Brien, standing long jump, sixth; Maria Della Croce, softball throw, third.

Vic DiGravio Jr. Memorial Golf Tournament Aug. 5

The third annual Vic DiGravio Jr. Memorial Golf Tournament will be held Monday, Aug. 5, at the South Shore Country Club in Hingham.

The tournament is held in memory of Vic DiGravio, who died of cancer in 1999.

The tournament will be a scramble format with a 1 p.m. shotgun start. Dinner will follow the tourney at approximately 6:30 p.m.

Entry fee is $100 per person, which includes greens fees, cart, golf shirt and dinner. For those attending just the dinner, the donation is $30 per person. The registration deadline is July 31.

All proceeds will fund the Vic DiGravio Jr. Memorial Scholarship at Bridgton Academy in North Bridgton, Maine. The scholarship provides financial aid to students from Quincy, Weymouth and Marshfield who attend Bridgton.

The tourney has raised $34,000 over the past two years. Over 100 golfers played last year and 150 people attended the post-tournament dinner and awards ceremony.

Vic DiGravio graduated from Bridgton Academy in 1959. He grew up in Weymouth and attended Weymouth High School where he was an outstanding athlete. After marriage, he lived in Quincy where he owned and operated the Spotlight Tavern for over 20 years.

Entry fees and/or donations may be sent to the Vic DiGravio Jr. Memorial Golf Tournament, 89 Puritan Drive, Quincy, MA 02169.

For more information call Vic DiGravio III at 617-328-8170 or Sean Downing at 617-472-5746.

To Benefit Fireman Diagnostic Imaging Center

QMC Golf, Tennis Classic

Raises More Than $130,000

The 13th annual Quincy Medical Center Golf and Tennis Classic held recently at the Wollaston Golf Club raised more than $130,000 to benefit the medical center's Simon C. Fireman Diagnostic Imaging Center for Women.

The day-long festivities, which included a golf and tennis tournament, an awards presentation, and dinner and auction, raised nearly 30 percent more than last year's event.

The annual event is a key component of QMC's $2.5 million capital campaign, which was launched with a $1 million challenge grant from the Simon C. Fireman Foundation.

The Simon C. Fireman Imaging Center for Women at QMC was created to offer women a comfortable, private atmosphere in which to undergo testing such as mammography, ultrasound and bone densitometry. Mammograms are reviewed by board-certified radiologists who specialize in women's imaging studies.

PETER RACICOT, vice president of business development at Fallon Ambulance, demonstrates his swing as chairperson of the 13th annual QMC Golf and Tennis Classic held recently at the Wollaston Golf Club.

City, Youth Baseball, Park Dept.

To Sponsor Jimmy Fund Baseball

Tournament Beginning July 26

Quincy Youth Baseball, the city of Quincy and the Parks Department will sponsor the second annual Jimmy Fund Baseball Tournament at McCoy, Mitchell, Merrymount and Adams fields beginning July 26.

The tournament is played in honor of Patrick White, an 11-year-old QYB player who has battled Rhabdomyosarcoma, a form of tissue cancer, over the past two years.

Funds raised will benefit the Pediatric Solid Tumor Program within Dana-Farber/Children's Hospital Cancer Care Services, which offers comprehensive, multidisciplinary diagnosis, treatment, consultation services and long-term follow-up for pediatric and adolescent patients with any type of solid tumor.

Last year the tourney raised $9,000 for the Jimmy Fund.

"The Jimmy Fund Baseball Tournament is one of the most remarkable fund-raisers that Quincy supports," said Mayor William Phelan. "There is no better representative for the Jimmy Fund in Quincy for the past two years than Patrick White, whose courage and determination is an example for all. I am hopeful that the success of this tournament in Quincy will continue to grow in the years to come."

teams of 11 year olds and 13 year olds from Quincy and surrounding communities.

Checks should be made payable to the Jimmy Fund/ QYBL Tournament and mailed to: South Shore Cooperative Bank, 30 Franklin St., Quincy, MA 02169.

For more information or for those interested in sponsoring or volunteering, call tournament director Bob Griffin at 617-472-4811.

Jana Torvi Professional In Human Resources

Quincy Medical Center human resource representative Jana Torvi of Quincy has been named a Professional in Human Resources by the Human Resources Certification Institute, Inc., the credentialing body of the Society for Human Resource Management.

Professional in Human Resources (PHR) certification is a nationally recognized standard set by individuals working in the human resource profession. To become certified an applicant must pass a comprehensive examination and demonstrate a strong background of professional human resource experience. Traditionally, the passing rate of the PHR exam is less than 70 percent.

First Aid Court For Pets

The American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay Training Institute is offering a First Aid Course for Pets July 22 and Aug. 14 from 6 to 10 p.m. at its Quincy office, 1495 Hancock St., third floor.

The course will provide pet owners and caregivers with the skills needed to handle various pet health isues. Students will receive theoretical knowledge and practical experience in human resource management necessary to pass a rigorous examination demonstrating a mastery of the body of knowledge in the field.

"A Professional in Human Resource certification demonstrates a level of knowledge that helps me to better serve employees and managers at Quincy Medical Center," Torvi said.

Students will receive hands-on experience practicing proper first aid techniques on dog or cat mannequins.

At the completion of the course, participants will receive an American Red Cross certification in Pet First Aid. Cost is $49 and includes both the Pet First Aid book and kit.

Water Safety Tips

• Be prepared to perform CPR. Drowning is a leading cause of fatal injuries in infants, children and adolescents.

• Watch infants and children who are swimming at all times. Drowning can occur in minutes, even in shallow water.

• No child is "drown proof" and the ability to swim does not prevent drowning. The drowning child often sinks quietly without screaming for help or thrashing in the water.

• Put life vests on your children. Children should wear life vests when swimming in natural bodies of water such as lakes and rivers. Children can easily be swept away by river currents and are very difficult to spot if they become submerged in lakes.

To find a CPR training center near you, call the American Heart Association at 1-877-AHA-4CPR or visit www.americanheart.org. When calling your local training center for course information, specify that you would like to take a Heartsaver CPR course that will include the child and infant module.

First Aid, CPR Courses

The American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay Training Institute is offering the following courses at its Quincy office, 1495 Hancock St., from July 24-30.

First Aid: July 24, from 6 to 10 p.m. Cost is $45. This course covers bleeding, shock, poisoning and other common first aid emergencies. Completion of course awards a First Aid certificate valid for three years.

Adult, Infant & Child CPR and First Aid: July 25, from 6 to 10:30 p.m. Cost is $60. Successful completion of the course awards an Adult, Child & Infant CPR certificate valid for one year and a First Aid certificate valid for three years.

First Aid: July 30, from 6 to 10 p.m. Cost is $45. This course covers bleeding, shock, poisoning and other common first aid emergencies. Completion of course awards a First Aid certificate valid for three years.

The American Red Cross is also accepting registration for Home Health Aide/Certified Nursing Assistant class Aug. 19 from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Cost is $545. An evening class also starts Aug. 19 from 5 to 9:30 p.m.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

WITH A WAVE OF THE WAND

Despite what dental patients might think, the needle is not what causes the main discomfort associated with an injection of local anesthetic. The primary culprits are the pressure and volume of fluid being injected into the gums and soft tissues. This helps us understand why the new computer-controlled local anesthesia injection system known as The Wand can provide a more comfortable and effective anesthetic delivery. The Wand utilizes a microprocessor to automatically compensate for different tissue densities and deliver anesthetic at a constant pressure and volume that is typically below the pain threshold of the patient. The computer also provides a flow of anesthetic ahead of the needle to numb the site of insertion. In short, it does not hurt.

The Wand is an excellent example of our efforts to bring you the latest dental technology and to help all of our patients have a pleasant, positive visit at our office. We're located at 44 Greenleaf St., where we stress preventive health care for the entire family, utilizing state of the art dental procedures. The best way to reduce your chances of getting dental disease is to develop good oral hygiene habits. We're currently accepting new patients and welcome your call at 617 479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. The Wand is particularly effective at delivering anesthetic to the more sensitive areas of the mouth, such as the plate and front of the mouth.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

When you think about it, there is probably nothing mysterious or complex about "human nature." Human nature is nothing other than human habits. Human nature is therefore changeable like human habits are changeable. Surprisingly, human nature is often mentioned to excuse personal offenses and misbehavior. It is equally surprising that the inherent goodness in man is seldom mentioned as human nature. The human habits of love, tolerance and respect are certainly as much of human nature as the faults of greed, distrust and other offensive vices. Actually, when you look around, you see far more love, trust and selflessness than hate, distrust and selfishness. In these troublesome times in human relation, it is still true that goodness exceeds the bad. And more importantly, it is good to stress that bad habits can be changed to good habits if a will to do so exists. In short, "human nature" can be changed. Just change "human habits."

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Aspects favor socializing with family and friends, but an irksome workplace situation could intrude. No use grumbling. Lamb. Just do it, and then get back to the fun times.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) There's still time for you Ferdinand and Fernandas to relax and sniff the roses. But a major work project looms and will soon demand much of your attention through the 23rd.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your enthusiasm persuades even the toughest doubters to listen to what you're proposing. But don't push too hard, or you'll push them away. Moderate for best results.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your energy levels are rising, and you feel you can handle anything the job requires. That's great. But don't isolate yourself. Keep your door open to your workplace colleagues.

LEO (July 23 August 22) A workplace change could lead to that promotion you've been hoping for. But you'll have to face some tough competition before the Lion can claim his or her share of the goodies.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your rigidity regarding a difficult workplace situation could be the reason your colleagues aren't rushing to your assistance. Try being more flexible in your demands.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) That uneasy mood could be your Libran inner voice reminding you that while it's great to be with your new friends, you need to take care not to ignore your old ones.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A sudden spate of criticism could shake the Scorpion's usually high sense of self-confidence. Best advice: You made a decision you believed in — now defend it.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your reluctance to help restart a stalled relationship could be traced to unresolved doubts about your partner's honesty. Rely on a trusted friend's advice.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The capricious Sea Goat is torn between duty and diversion. Best advice: Do both. Tend to your workday chores, then go out and enjoy your well-earned fun time.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Cutting back on some of your activities for a few days helps restore your energy levels. You should be feeling ready to tackle your many projects early next week.

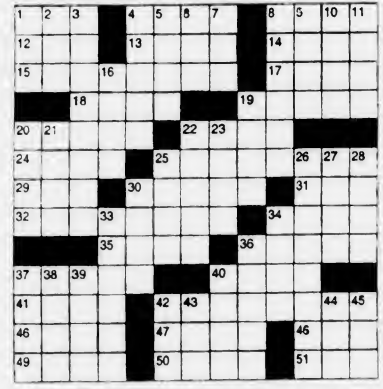

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A co-worker might be secretly carping about your work to mutual colleagues. But associates will come to your defense, and the situation will ultimately work to your advantage.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your ambition makes you a success at whatever you choose to do — especially if it's in the world of the performing arts.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

residents of Quincy, Braintree, and the entire region to stay informed in the development process and help fulfill a MARAD promise that any federal request for redevelopment proposals would contain explicit commitments to the region's public interest.

"We want to make sure that the interests of the community become a component in their (MARAD's) decision," said Delahunt, who emphasized that the panel was "informational" in nature and had no legal authority over MARAD's eventual decision.

"Before decisions are made that will affect the future of Quincy forever, we need to know what is possible—and what isn't. We have no specific preconceptions about the outcome, but need to think and work together about what is good for our community."

Phelan, who joined Delahunt in hopes that such a panel could be in place by as early as August, said many shipyard development proposals have been brought to many different groups and that the panel would serve to weed out the proposals and give serious consideration to those proposals which deserve it.

"Our hope for the shipyard is obviously to restore jobs and tax revenue," Phelan said. "The bankruptcy proceedings have been characterized by delay, confusion, and anxiety. What we need most now to fill that vacuum is clarity and transparency."

"It will be good to have everyone on the same page as to what the options are."

According to Delahunt, the hearings would permit potential bidders to make informal public presentations to a panel of local, state, and federal elected officials at City Hall. The idea was first suggested earlier in the year during a meeting of Delahunt, Phelan, and MARAD Administrator Capt. William Schubert in Washington, D.C.

"The federal government has its own legal and fiduciary responsibilities, but we can weigh in during this next phase," Delahunt said. "But first, we as a community must redefine our own public interest. The way to start is by hearing directly from the prospective suitors."

MARAD officials are in the process of taking title of the more than 100-acre parcel formerly in the hands of failed shipyard developer Massachusetts Heavy Industries (MHI), which defaulted on MARAD-guaranteed loans and whose reorganization plans were dismissed in March of this year.

After taking title, MARAD is expected to solicit offers on the parcel and its equipment through private auction.

Reached for comment after Monday's meeting, Morrissey welcomed the idea of the panel, saying anything that gave the public more information on the process was of value. However, he added that it was "one of many steps" involved in the redevelopment process and that it was lacking in public input.

"There's no real comment period," Morrissey said.

Mariano also said his feelings were mixed on the proposal. "I think the proposal will serve a purpose in that it will get MARAD's attention," Mariano said, "so, from that perspective, it's a good thing." But without public comment, he added, he saw no role other than attending the meetings themselves to gather information.

Mariano added that he was hopeful progress was being made at the shipyard and that further progress would depend on all parties working together. "This will require city, state, and federal governments working together to produce a quality development," he said.

Raymond, in whose ward the parcel sits, said he would continue "a dialogue" with Delahunt in order to include some sort of public hearing into the panel process.

"I applaud the initiative of Congressman Delahunt in putting the shipyard on the front burner," Raymond said. "We all share the ultimate common goal of the redevelopment of the shipyard to its maximum potential."

Raymond said it was important that prospective developers make their case to the public but added that it was equally important that the public comment on what it hears.

"At the very least, I will be present at the meetings," Raymond said. "To the extent that I participate will depend on the level of public participation."

"I want to make sure that the public has an opportunity to weigh in on the projects being talked about."

One project which will not be considered is the potentially dangerous and environmentally unsafe practice of ship scrapping, which caused some controversy after MARAD officials tentatively explored the option through legal advertisements. During a tour of the shipyard in May of this year, Jean McKeever, associate administrator of Shipbuilding for MARAD, assured city officials that such a use would not take place at the site.

Fellow Congressman Stephen Lynch and state Rep. Joseph Sullivan of Braintree will also be invited to participate on the panel, said Delahunt, who will brief MARAD officials on the initiative and seek the agency's assistance in steering potential developers to the panel.

John Adams Biography

Makes Quincy A 'Must-See'

Tourism Up Here While Down Elsewhere

By CRAIG SALTERS

Although tourism figures are down significantly both in Boston and across the state, Quincy's tourism industry is benefiting greatly from the renewed local, national, and international interest in John Adams and the Adams Family.

And numbers don't tell the whole story, say those most familiar with the phenomenon, explaining that historian David McCullough's Pulitzer-prize winning biography of John Adams, the sense of national identity reawakened by the horrors of Sept. 11, and the "word-of-mouth" publicity generated by satisfied visitors have made such sites as the Adams National Historical Park and the United First Parish Church "must-see" destinations for a greater number of people than ever before.

"The numbers have increased significantly," said

Marianne Peak, superintendent of the Adams National Historical Park, who said that the more than 3,000 visitors who attended the park's July 4 activities represented its largest such Independence Day celebration ever.

In addition, Peak said, the park has had to reschedule some visitors for the following day, something it has never had to do since opening in 1946.

EAGER VISITORS to the Adams National Historical Park crowd the visitors center located inside Presidents Place, 1250 Hancock St., and are assisted by Park Ranger Larry Dodge. The park is already ahead of last season's record setting pace which saw a final figure of 169,000 visitors.

Aug. 9 Deadline For Applicants

Search Begins For 5 New Governors At Quincy College

Quincy College has initiated a search to replace five members of its Board of Governors who have completed a second term with the 13-member board and are ineligible for reappointment.

Outgoing governors are: State Representative Ron Mariano; former City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio; John J. McKenna Jr.; Attorney Matthew McDonnell; and the Rev. Michael Wayne Walker.

The appointing council of the Board of Governors, which met July 16 to organize a calendar for the process, has set an August 9 deadline for individuals interested in filling the positions to submit a letter of interest and resume to: Board of Governors Appointing Council, c/o President Sean L. Barry, Quincy College, 34 Coddington St., Quincy, MA 02169.

The six-member appointing council consists of: Governor Theresa M. Lord-Piatelli, chairwoman; Governor Geraldine Lewis; Council President Daniel Raymondi, who is also a governor and immediate past chairman of the board; City Councillor Joseph Newton; School Committeewoman Elaine Dwyer; and School Committeeman Michael McFarland.

Those who meet the Aug. 9 deadline will be invited to address the appointing council in an open session Monday, Aug. 19 at 7 p.m. in Saville Hall, Quincy College. Each speaker will have three minutes to present and then will have an opportunity to answer questions from the council.

"The Monday evening meeting is not a requirement," said Lord-Piatelli. "We simply thought it would provide individuals who were so inclined an opportunity to speak directly with the appointing council members."

The appointing council will meet in public session again Tuesday, Aug. 20 at noon in Saville Hall to appoint the five new governors.

Both the Aug. 19 and Aug. 20 sessions are open to the public. New governors will be sworn in for their six-year terms at the annual board meeting to be held Sept. 10. By law, all governors must annually submit a personal financial disclosure form with the city clerk of Quincy. Individuals who wish to be considered should also understand that their letters and resumes will be considered public records.

There is no financial compensation for the position.

"Serving as a member of the board of governors is more than an honor, it is an act of service and responsibility," said Barry, who sent letters to the last five graduating classes of Quincy College urging them to consider applying for the vacancies. "The board seeks talent from each member and looks to governors as

Swift Authorizes City Bonding Payments To QMC

Acting Governor Jane Swift has signed into law a home rule petition authorizing the city of Quincy to issue general obligation bonds in order to meet its financial obligations to Quincy Medical Center.

When the hospital was privatized, the city of Quincy, the Boston Medical Center Corporation, the Quincy Hospital and Quincy Medical Center Inc. entered into an Affiliation Agreement which obligated the city to make certain payments to Quincy Medical Center. The remaining payments, totaling $14,570,152, must be made over the next three fiscal years.

The home rule petition, approved recently by the City Council, will allow the city to issue bonds or notes in an amount not to exceed $15 million in order to make those payments.

"This is great news for the city," said Mayor William Phelan. "To pay $4.6 million, which is this year's obligation to the hospital, out of our '03 operating budget would have decimated city services as we know them, which is why I opted for this solution. The cuts we had to make this year were difficult enough."

Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival Draws Crowds

HANCOCK STREET BECAME a pedestrian mall for last week's 32nd annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival. The successful, three-day event, sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, attracted a large turnout of shoppers and fun-goers each day despite some heat and rain.

MAYOR WILLIAM PHELAN had plenty of help cutting the ribbon for the opening of the Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival sponsored by the QCBPA. From the left are Richard Gornley, Sovereign Bank, association treasurer; Jeffrey Bertman, Rogers Jewelry, president; DPW Commissioner Jay Fink, Mayor Phelan, Will Holmes, Stop & Shop, committee member; Tina Tuggle, Papa Gino's, committee co-chairman; and Councillor Greg Hanley.

Proud To Have Followed 'In My Father's Footsteps' Gorman Retiring July 31 As Fire Chief

Next Wednesday, for the first time in 78 years, there won't be a Tom Gorman on the Quincy Fire Department. And for 34 of those years, a Tom Gorman has been chief.

Tom Gorman, the younger, is retiring Tuesday, after 39 years on the department, the last 14 in the chief's office, a job that was once held by his father before him.

"If 65 wasn't the mandatory retirement age," he said, "I'd be here until they kicked me out the door."

Gorman joined the Fire Department in 1963 at a time when citizens burned leaves in the gutter and macho firefighters disdained masks when fighting fires. Things have since changed drastically.

"Today we wouldn't go in without a mask," he said. "With all the new chemicals and plastics, firefighters' behavior is different than it was in the past. You're constantly in training, learning new techniques."

"We used to wash debris from a fire down the drain with fire hoses. You can't do that anymore with all the toxic chemicals that are around."

"Firefighting equipment has improved. Today's firefighter is encapsulated in protective gear. He's called on to give more emergency medical treatment. He's always being trained for something new."

Since Gorman has been chief, the Quincy department has added three pumps and three ladder trucks to its apparatus. The latest 100-foot aerial ladder was just recently delivered.

It was only natural that Gorman, after brief detours as a state police trooper and an Army MP, should join the Fire Department. His father had been a firefighter since 1924, became chief in 1947.

"I grew up around the fire house," said the younger Gorman. "It was always a dream of mine. I was an auxiliary fireman even before I joined the department. They don't have them anymore."

Gorman still recalls vividly his first fire.

"It was on Packard's Lane," he said. "Food was burning on the stove. I remember it particularly because I had been a member of the auxiliary but this time I realized I was a fireman."

His toughest fire was one at the Home Depot in 1995.

"It was tough because there were a lot of pool chemicals there," he said. "A lot of firemen went down from the fumes. The toughest fires are the ones where you lose people. We've lost six or seven people in house fires since I've been chief."

Another toughie, possibly the biggest fire during Gorman's time at the helm of the department, was the fire that destroyed the old Kincaide's furniture building in downtown Quincy.

"It was especially tough because of the way the building was constructed," he said. "The fire got in between the floors and we couldn't get at it quickly enough."

Since joining the department in 1963, Gorman's movement up the ladder was steady. He was made a lieutenant in 1973, captain in 1978, deputy chief in 1983.

He became acting chief in 1988 when Chief Carl Valenti retired. In 1989, he returned to deputy chief when Paul O'Connell was named chief. In 1990, he succeeded O'Connell who had decided to return to deputy chief.

He still regards as his biggest accomplishment "following in my father's footsteps."

It's unlikely there'll be any more Tom Gormans following in those footsteps.

Tom Gorman's son, Tom, is a plumber with the Quincy Housing Authority and, at TOM GORMAN (right) is sworn in as a Quincy firefighter by City Clerk John Gillis in 1963 as his father, then-Fire Chief Tom Gorman proudly looks on.

34, a trifle too old to be starting a second career as a firefighter.

His youngest son, George, however, is a firefighter in Braintree, an eight-year veteran on that town's department. And there is a Dan Gorman, a nephew, who is a lieutenant on the Quincy Fire Department.

Right now, Tom Gorman is not sure what the future holds for he and his wife, Sarah.

"We're going to take some time off and see what happens," he said. "You never really retire. You just go on to another career."

Neighborhood Meeting On Proposed Chinese Take-Out Restaurant At 716 Hancock St.

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro was scheduled to host a Neighborhood Meeting on the proposed conversion of a retail furniture showroom at 716 Hancock St. corner of Elm Ave., into a Chinese take-out restaurant Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School, Fenno St.

The matter is scheduled to go before the Zoning Board of Appeals Tuesday, Aug. 6 at 7:15 in the council chambers of City Hall, 1305 Hancock St.

The applicant is Man Tat Yue.

Tired of your bank?

There is a good alternative!

You want your bank to be convenient. And why not?

Convenient means being fully-staffed, so you don't have to wait in line.

It means having employees who know what they're doing - people who like their jobs and actually like helping customers. It means having the bank products and services you want and need along with the "neighborliness" you may have thought was gone forever.

Neighborhood banking is alive and well at Colonial Federal Savings Bank.

We are strong, stable, independent and 100% true to our South Shore roots.

And we really want to be your bank. Had it with being over-charged and under-served?

You do have a choice. Come see us!

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On July 27, 1794, Maximilien Robespierre, the architect of the French Revolution's Reign of Terror, is overthrown. As the leading member of the Committee of Public Safety, Robespierre encouraged the execution, mostly by guillotine, of more than 17,000 enemies of the Revolution. The day after his arrest, Robespierre and 21 of his followers were guillotined before a cheering mob.

• On July 24, 1847, after 17 months and many miles of travel, Brigham Young leads 148 Mormon pioneers into Utah's Valley of the Great Salt Lake and declares, "This is the place."

• On July 26, 1908, the FBI is born when U.S. Attorney General Charles Bonaparte orders a group of newly hired federal investigators to report to Chief Examiner Stanley W. Finch of the Department of Justice.

• On July 22, 1934, outside Chicago's Biograph Theatre, notorious criminal John Dillinger — America's "Public Enemy No. 1" — is killed in a hail of bullets fired by federal agents.

• On July 25, 1956, at 11:10 p.m., 45 miles south of Nantucket Island, the Italian ocean liner Andrea Doria and the Swedish ocean liner Stockholm collide in a heavy Atlantic fog. Fifty-one passengers and crew were killed in the collision.

• On July 23, 1967, one of the worst riots in U.S. history breaks out on 12th Street in the heart of Detroit's predominantly black inner city. By the time it was quelled, 43 people were dead, 342 injured, and nearly 1,400 buildings had been burned.

• On July 28, 1976, at 3:42 a.m., an earthquake measuring between 7.8 and 8.2 magnitude on the Richter scale flattens Tangshan, a Chinese industrial city with a population of about 1 million people. As almost everyone was asleep in their beds instead of outside in the relative safety of the streets the quake was especially costly in terms of human life.

Quincy's little "best seller" is off the press and in circulation.

It's the third edition of A Guide To The Quincy Beaches, the popular summertime booklet compiled by the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission.

The booklet is full of useful information for those who like to swim or stroll the seashore, or fish. Like:

Tide charts through to the end of September, locations of the 10 beaches in the city, a 24-hour water quality hotline (617-376-1288) and air quality hotline (800-882-1497). And other important telephone numbers you might need down at the seaside such as the harbor master (617-479-6181) Police Department (617-479-1212), Fire Department (617-376-1010) and Health Department (617-376-1270).

All that and more. And, it's all free.

The commission, headed by former Ward 1 Councilor Leo Kelly, chairman, and Ward 5 Councilor Doug Gutro, vice chairman, dedicated this edition to two members of the commission who died this year: Quincy Harbor Master Bernie Reisberg and Robert Lescinskas.

REISBERG

LESCINSKAS

An article by Jack Lydon has good news for fishermen:

Large numbers of striped bass can be found in all of Quincy's coastal waters and will be here waiting for you until late into October.

But, and there always seems to be a but: the limit is only one bass per day. Minimum length, 28 inches.

Blue fish have been steadily increasing the last five years. No requirement as to size but the limit is eight per day. (Tip: Use of a wire leader is strongly recommended because bluefish have razor sharp teeth.)

Flounder is making a comeback. Starting to look like Quincy may regain its title of the "Flounder Capital of the World."

For swimmers there is information on how water sampling is done and if the enterococci bacteria count reaches 104 or more up goes a "No Swimming" warning sign. Take heed when you see one.

Dog owners are asked to "clean up" after their pets. Animal waste can make its way into Quincy Bay either directly from the beach or from around catch basins where rain can carry it into the bay.

CHERAE KERSEY, age 7, won the hula hoop contest at the recent "Beach Bash" at Palmer St. Beach by handling 10 hula hoops at one time. (Quincy Sun photo/Lance Morganelli)

Storm drains discharge directly into the bay. The commission urges that you never dispose of anything down catch basins especially motor oil, paints and other hazardous materials.

Mayor William Phelan notes that in the last six months, the city has committed more than $5 million in sewer improvements along Wollaston Beach and Quincy Shore Drive toward ensuring clean water. And the MDC is allocating almost $10 million for seawall and landside improvements along Wollaston Beach.

Kelly says in the past three years, the commission has placed new benches, picnic tables and signage at the city beaches and sand-rake cleaned the beaches.

The commission is now working with Save The Harbor/Save the Bay on creating a Coastal Resources Trail to highlight historic, cultural and recreational resources along the city's 26-mile shoreline.

Some 3,000 of the booklets have been printed so far by the city's Information Technology Department headed by former Ward 5 Councilor Charles (Chuck) Phelan.

They are available for the asking at a number of locations in the city including the mayor's office, the reception desk at new City Hall, The Quincy Sun and the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association office, 1416 Hancock St.

You can also find it all on the city website at: www.ci.quincy.ma.us.

A RETIREMENT TRIBUTE to Fire Chief Thomas Gorman is planned for Thursday, Sept. 19 at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Gorman is retiring July 31 at mandatory age 65, closing out a firefighting career spanning 39 years, 14 as chief.

He and his late father, Tom Gorman, are the only father-son fire chiefs in the city's history, a combination that is probably rare in the country. The elder Gorman was named chief in 1947 and was chief when his son joined the department in 1963.

Mayor William Phelan is honorary chairman of the Sept. 19 dinner. Co-chairmen are City Clerk Joseph Shea and Park-Forestry Executive Director Tom Koch.

Tickets are $50 and are available now at the City Clerk's office, the License Board and the Fire Department.

And, they're sure to go fast.

THE QUINCY CENTER Sidewalk Festival left Maralin Manning, the energetic executive director of the sponsoring QCBPA both glad and sad.

Glad that the 32nd annual event was a nice success. Sad that she lost a cherished charm bracelet.

Somehow while patrolling Hancock St., making sure everything was going well and pitching in to set up tables, etc. etc., the bracelet came loose and dropped off her wrist. She covers a lot of ground so it could have dropped anywhere along Hancock St.

A beginning gold charm bracelet with four charms, it was a sentimental birthday gift from her son, Michael.

Maralin hopes someone found it and is trying to return it. She can reach at the QCBPA office, 1416 Hancock St., or by calling 617-471-3232.

"It meant so much to me," she says. "You just can't replace something like that."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1913 POSTCARD is a view of Botolph Street in Atlantic. The view is from near the then new Quincy Grammar School looking east toward Bayfield Road. Clive Street is on the left. At this time this section of Quincy was growing rapidly. Housing demands grew even more when the Victory shipbuilding plant was opened in WWI at what now is Marina Bay. The house on the right with the long fence was the residence of the Goyette family, the one of the left, actually on Clive St., was home of the Sherwins. Both families probably mailed many of these commercially produced postcards to their families and friends.

Sees No Big Savings In Eliminating School Bus Monitors

As a School Bus Monitor who made $6,200 last year, I don't understand the big savings that the Quincy School Committee expects to realize by our elimination. A quick survey of my colleagues found that, last year, only one made the $11,000 that the committee claims we all make. That monitor was one of the few who worked through the summer.

The Quincy Public Schools Budgetary Summary FY2002-03 shows that the actual 2001 expenditures for school bus monitors was $123,740, some $40,000 below budget. The same budget projects the monitors expense to be $185,640 for FY2003. However, based on the 2001 expenditures and contractual increases for two years, it's unlikely that the total cost for monitors will exceed $135,000.

Every way that we do the numbers the average cost of a school bus monitor will be $8,000 for 2003, including summer work. It seems to be a small price for the safety and peace of mind that we provide the children, parents and bus drivers.

Says Hanley Should Resign Ward 1 Seat

The recent controversy over Ward 1 City Councilor Greg Hanley finishing out his term on the Quincy City Council has caused a mini-uproar. If Hanley has indeed bought a home in Pembroke, then he should resign his ward seat and let a special election decide who will finish out his unexpired term. There are already many candidates ready to run for the Ward 1 seat in 2003, but that is a long way off especially when you consider the constituent work that is done by the city's six ward councilors.

Technically, Hanley surely can finish out his term by renting an "apartment" on Palmer Street, but why do that? Hanley has been a good councilor, but he's moved on in his life and it is time for Ward 1 to move on, too.

This is not about being pro- or anti-Greg Hanley. This is about representative government. Should someone who really lives in Pembroke be deciding what happens in Houghs Neck, Germantown, Adams Shore or Merry Mount?

Is Greg Hanley Pembroke or is he Ward 1 Quincy?

Having an "apartment" on Palmer Street doesn't seem good enough for Ward 1 residents who deserve a city councilor who actually "lives" inside the city.

What would people be saying if Quincy Mayor Bill Phelan were to move out of town and want to finish out his mayoral term with an "apartment" inside Quincy? Probably telling him to resign making way for a new mayor. It is OK to vacate your public office inside the term. People make decisions and then move on in their lives.

Liking or not liking Greg Hanley isn't the issue. The issue is ward councilors need their undivided loyalty to Quincy and only Quincy. It goes for mayor, city council at large, school committee and especially for constituent service-driven ward councilors.

Politics is politics. When it's time to go, you should just go with your head held high knowing that your tenure as a ward councilor was a positive one. We will miss you but life has to go on for Quincy, too.

Fond Red Sox Memories

In the edition of Thursday, July 11, there were two remembrances of Ted Williams by Henry Bosworth and Robert Bosworth. I, too, have a story which included the "Splendid Splinter."

On a memorable day in May 1941, after a Red Sox-Yankees game, I stood outside the rear of Fenway Park at the door where the players came out to collect their cars. I was 14 years old. I got autographs of Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio, Dom DiMaggio, Charlie Wagner, Bobby Doer, Johnny Pesky, Earl Johnson, Mike Ryba, Pete Fox and even the manager, Joe Cronin.

My mother was worried because I was so late getting home from an afternoon game. My Dad, a Red Sox fan, even before Fenway Park was built, was very proud of me.

I still have that red dime store autograph book. People have told me over the years that I could have sold it for a great deal of money. Why would I? I hope that I will never be so broke that I would have to sell my memories.

Kennedy, Lodge Campaign Here

By PAUL HAROLD

Joan Kennedy, wife of Edward Kennedy, the president's brother, and George Cabot Lodge were in Quincy this week stumping for votes in the September primary. Kennedy, a Democrat, and Lodge, a Republican, were seeking their parties' endorsements.

It was Joan's first visit to the city and Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa took the opportunity to make her an honorary citizen.

Lodge started his day at the Fore River shipyard where he told workers he would fight for more shipbuilding jobs to stay in U.S. He was accompanied by Angelo's Barber Shop in Quincy Center by city Republican leader Harold Nannis.

Mrs. Kennedy started her day at a coffee hour at the Conant St. home of Mrs. James Moody, went door-to-door in Quincy Point, West and South Quincy, ending her day at a reception at the Dolphin Motor Inn in North Quincy.

CHAMBER SURVEYS BUSINESSES' INTEREST IN SPACE PROGRAM

William O'Connell, executive vice president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, surveyed local businesses as to their interest in the national space program.

The chamber first wanted to find out which businesses were already doing business with NASA and related contractors and which businesses wanted information on how they would gain work.

O'Connell said the survey was part of a regional attempt by New England businesses to make sure they were getting their share of the federal contracts.

NEW PROFESSIONAL BUILDING OPENS

Garden Party, Concert Give Tourism A Boost

A GARDEN PARTY by invitation prior to the Boston Landmarks Orchestra's "All American Concert" on the grounds of the Adams Mansion on Adams Street last Friday raised more than $10,000 for Mayor William Phelan's new Tourism Action Plan. From the left are Charles Ansbacher, conductor and founder of the orchestra; Kristen Priscella, coordinator of the garden party; Marianne Peak, superintendent Adams National Historical Park; Diane Smith of the State Street Corporation, sponsor of the concert; and Mayor Phelan.

Crane Library Receives $1,500 Preservation Survey Grant

The Thomas Crane Public Library has received a $1,500 grant from the Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners awarded under the federal Library Services and Technology Act (LSTA).

The $1,500 grant, awarded in the category of "Preservation Survey," will enable the library to contract with an outside consultant to conduct a preservation survey of its collections and belongings. The purpose will be to determine individual item conservation requirements and needs for proper storage, care, and handling.

Overall, the Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners awarded $1,980,873 in grants to 70 public, academic, school, and special libraries and regional library networks across the Commonwealth.

"These grants will be used to implement projects to train adults in the use of the library's computers and electronic resources; offer programs for young children, their parents, and caregivers; promote cross-cultural understanding; improve customer service; assist adult literacy students; train librarians via the web; and help to preserve a library's valuable historical records," said Keith Michael Fiels, director of the Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners.

Grants were awarded in the following categories: community languages; customer service; discovery kits; early childhood; information literacy; management of special collections; Mother Goose asks why; network system upgrade; open projects; preservation survey; school library incentive; and serving people with disabilities.

Blues Singer At Library On Lawn Concert Aug. 1

Les Sampou, a solo performer who accompanies herself on the steel string guitar, will perform on the lawn of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Square, Thursday, Aug. 1, from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m.

Sampou writes most of her own music and each song has a story behind it and in it.

Sampou is a self-taught musician who got her start in Boston's Haymarket subway stop in 1985. There she met Ellie Mae Higgins and they started a duo called "Double Edge." For the next few years she worked with other duos and trios and played some solo sets. She then began writing and performing her own music.

Sampou was on the road as a solo act in the U.S., Canada and Europe. She has performed at all the major folk festivals and has given workshops at the Berklee School of Music. She performed at the library in February to a standing-room-only audience. Sampou has released four albums; the most recent one, "Borrowed & Blue," an anthology of the Blues songs she has performed over the years.

The concert series concludes Thursday, Aug. 8, with The Krisanthi Pappas

LES SAMPOU

Combo, vocalist, keyboard, bass and drums.

The concert series is funded in part by the Quincy Arts Council, which is funded by the Massachusetts Arts Council. Concerts are held on the library's front lawn or, in case of inclement weather, in the library's atrium. Concert-goers are encouraged to bring lawn chairs, beach blankets and refreshments.

Drop in Storytimes For Kids Continues At Main Library

A Drop in Storytimes for ages 2-3 accompanied by an adult will be held today (Thursday) at 10:30 a.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St.

The program will take place in the Children's Story Room and consist of a half hour of stories, songs and rhymes. No registration is required for this program.

The Summer Storytellers Series continues Tuesday,

July 30 at 7 p.m. when Speakin' and Drums presents a story concert for ages 5 and older. The program will take place in the large meeting room at the library.

Speakin' and Drums is the duo of Sara Jacobson, storyteller, and Curtis Jones, percussionist. Their participatory performance offers a multicultural blend of stories, rhythms and songs.

At the same time a Pajama Story Hour with Cheryl Dunford will be offered for younger siblings accompanied by an adult and families with children under the age of 5. Fish Tales are the subject of this week's stories.

This program will be held in the Children's Room at the library.

Both programs are free and do not require registration. For more information, call 617-376-2411. These and other summer events at the library are funded in part by the Quincy Arts Lottery.

There is still time to join the Star Spangled Reading Club at the library. Stop by any library location to sign up.

Those who have read three hours are reminded to stop by to collect their summer reading certificate. The library already has about 100 on display.

Pop Music, Opera All The Same To Quincy's 'Miss Millennium'

One has to look sharp and move fast to corner Heather Schmid, Quincy's rising young pop music artist and opera singer these days.

She has been on the road ever since she was crowned Miss Millennium in a beauty and talent pageant in Edmonton, Alta., last summer.

The tour, which will last until September, will have taken her to 30 states, performing in malls and clubs and the Mecca of every entertainer — Las Vegas.

"We did regular shows in different hotels in Las Vegas," said Schmid the other day during a whirlwind visit to her hometown of Quincy.

"We did the Aladdin, the New York-New York, the Venetian, the MGM Grand..."

At the same time, she was cutting her second CD EL Records, run by Ernie Lake, a New York producer who has been twice nominated for Grammys.

Although Schmid is a classically trained opera singer (Boston University '00 with a music major) she was recording pop songs in

HEATHER SCHMID

Boston when the Miss Millennium opportunity opened up.

She won the contest held in Edmonton Mall, the largest in the world, competing against women from as far away as Germany, Puerto Rico, Bosnia and Lithuania.

Schmid has lent her three-octave range to productions of "La Boheme" and "The Marriage of Figaro," as well as "Oklahoma" and "The Sound of Music."

When the tour is finished in September, she hopes to be signed by a major recording label.

"I'd like to be able to open for another artist," she said, "while I write my own stuff. These days, I want my music to make people move, but, more than ever, to send a positive message."

"I've got a lot to say about women's issues."

But if an opportunity in opera — like "La Boheme," her favorite — should present itself, she said, she'd jump at the chance.

According to Supervisory Park Ranger John Stanwich, 169,000 people visited the park in 2001, a staggering 92 percent increase from the year previous. This year's tourism totals, he said, are running roughly nine percent ahead of last year's pace at a time when other tourist sites across the state are reporting decreases.

"I think it really speaks to the interest in the story of the Adams Family," said Stanwich, attributing some of the park's success to a "multiplier effect" where visitors are telling family and friends about the site. "People from near are bringing people from far. It (The Adams NHP) has become integrally linked with the standard 'things to do' list of events."

The park's increase in popularity has created its own challenges, said Peak, noting the need for rescheduling and longer lines than usual in the park's visitor center. To meet those needs, Peak is inviting Quincy residents to volunteer as ambassadors to the park.

"With such a surge in visitors, the need for volunteers is critical," Peak said. "We know that the community has embraced its heritage and we want to be proactive in the involvement of Quincy residents."

Peak also lauded the city's proposal to install a visitor information kiosk on City Hall Plaza as a way to help both the park and the many other historical sites across the city. "There's so much more Quincy history to share with them," she said.

Arthur Ducharme, director of the Historic Interpretative Program at the United First Parish Church in Quincy Center, has seen a 60 percent increase from last year in the number of "guests or visitors," as he calls them, visiting the "Church of the Presidents" and, beneath it, the crypt where John and John Quincy Adams are entombed with their wives, Abigail and Louisa, respectively.

The increase is a far cry, he said, from a few years ago when the program would have closed its doors had it not been for the assistance of Secretary of State William Galvin and a number of local donors.

Ducharme also attributed McCullough's biography — which he calls, "The book" — and the events of Sept. 11 for generating a renewed interest in the Adams family.

"They want to learn more about John Adams and the family," said Ducharme, noting an increase in those from Europe visiting the church. "We're there to continue the Adams legacy and it's an honor to do so."

Ducharme's statement that one of every two people has either read David McCullough's biography of John Adams "or is in the process of purchasing a copy" echoes similar comments made by Robert Galligan, innkeeper of the Best Western Adams Inn, who spoke of visitors to his North Quincy hotel quoting passages of McCullough's book verbatim.

"It's the quality of the book — it's so descriptive," said Galligan. "He (McCullough) lived that book and you can see it in the writing."

Galligan said that business was down slightly from last year but that the hotel, like the city, was benefiting from the popularity of the national historical park.

Another factor helping business, he added, was the increase in "drive time business," — defined as shorter, less expensive mini-vacations taken by car within a 150 to 200 mile radius of home — that were bringing guests in from such areas as New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania.

Galligan added that, unlike Boston, the city was not significantly impacted by the decrease in international and business travel.

THE ADAMS LEGACY is an integral part of the United First Parish Church, beneath which is the crypt which holds the tombs of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams and their wives, Abigail and Louisa. The number of visitors to the church has increased by 60 percent from last year's figures.

FULL TROLLEYS have been the norm recently for the Adams National Historical Park, which saw a 92 percent increase in visitors in 2001 and is ahead of that pace this season. David McCullough's award-winning biography of John Adams is credited with shining new light on the treasures found at the park and at other sites such as the United First Parish Church, also known as "Church of the Presidents."

At Wollaston Beach, Shea Rink Area

Morrissey Urges Swift To Retain Funds For State Police Patrols

State Senator Michael Morrissey has urged Acting Governor Jane Swift to retain earmarking in the final budget passed by the Legislature for state police patrols along Wollaston Beach and around Shea Rink in West Quincy.

Morrissey said he had been in touch with Representatives Bruce Ayers, Stephen Tobin and Ronald Mariano, Mayor William Phelan and the City Council to work toward ensuring Swift retains this earmark when she takes votes on certain portions of the Legislature's final budget.

"Each year when the weather turns nicer, we receive a number of complaints from area neighbors who are concerned about the noise and public drinking along the beach," Morrissey said. "We are excited that the State Police have implemented a more visible presence along the beach to ease some of the concerns of neighbors."

The Legislature's final budget, passed July 19, contains an earmark of $35,000 for the patrolling of Wollaston Beach and Quincy Shore Drive in Quincy.

Quincy Shore Drive is an extremely active area during the summer months, Morrissey said. For the last several budgets, $35,000 has been earmarked for state police patrolling along Quincy Shore Drive and the surrounding neighborhood.

"Unfortunately, because of the nature of the location, the high volume of visitors and the number of youths enjoying the beach, the area needs more police patrolling," Morrissey said. "This funding goes toward prohibiting drinking on the beach, controlling speed on Quincy Shore Drive, maintaining order so the residents in the area are not disturbed and ensuring safety for individuals who wish to enjoy the area."

The budget also contains an earmark of $5,000 to allow state police to patrol the state-owned portion of Willard Street, adjacent to the Shea Rink, as well as other property under the care, custody and control of the MDC in Quincy.

"This is an extremely dangerous street location in a highly residential neighborhood," Morrissey said. "It is a connector street that leads cars from the South Shore Plaza out to either 93 North or South. Accidents are very frequent on this street because there are few traffic lights and cars speed in the area. This funding goes toward patrolling this stretch of road in order to ensure safety to the neighbors living in the area."

"Our support for these earmarks is extremely important because last year the acting governor vetoed portions of this line item," he added.

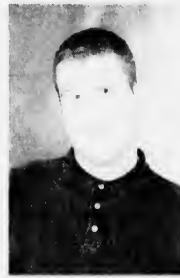

Alexander Gray Receives NFB Scholarship Award

Alexander Gray of North Quincy was presented a National Federation of the Blind (NFB) $3,000 Educator of Tomorrow Award recently in Louisville, Ky.

Gray will be a freshman majoring in English and secondary education at Boston College.

The Baltimore-based federation chose Gray as one of 30 outstanding blind students in the nation.

"These students are the hope of the nation's blind," said Marc Maurer, president of the NFB. "They have demonstrated excellence in fields as challenging as mathematics, economics, international relations and law. They are living proof of our contention that the blind can compete on terms of equality with the sighted, and we are very proud of them."

ALEXANDER GRAY

The 30 scholarships were presented to the recipients during the federation's 61st annual convention at the Galt House Hotel. The Kurzweil Foundation contributed to this year's scholarship program by presenting $1,000 awards and the Kurzweil 1000 reading system software (a $1,500 value) to each of the 30 winners.

ware (a $1,500 value) to each of the 30 winners.

The NFB is the nation's oldest and largest consumer group of blind people. It has affiliates in every state, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico.

The advocacy group works to educate the public to understand that the real handicap of blindness is not lack of sight but social attitudes that keep blind people from achieving fully. According to Maurer, this scholarship program is one way of assisting students to achieve their own goals even when the sighted may consider these aspirations too ambitious.

Resident Says Weeds, Litter An Issue At Butler's Pond

Merrymount Rd. resident Beth Gardner says the city is not doing enough to clean up the area around Butler's Pond.

Simply not so, say DPW officials, who say that much effort has gone into removing litter from the pond area as well as removing phragmites, an non-native, invasive species of plant that had been choking the natural habitat.

According to Gardner, weeds are once again overgrown at the site. "I'm 5'2" and the weeds are higher than me," said Gardner, who said weeds inhibit neighbors from picking up the trash around the pond. Calls to the DPW, she said, have produced only one trash pick-up, which she said was not well done. "I've been calling since spring and nothing's been done," she said.

But Rosemary Nolan of the DPW said upkeep of the pond area has been ongoing since the removal of phragmites a few years ago. "We have invested a lot of time, money, and resources at Butler's Pond over the last few years," said Nolan, adding that the invasive phragmites had not returned to the pond.

In addition to the phragmites removal, Nolan said, additional funds from a grant were used last summer and fall for the general clean-up of debris in the area.

This year, she said, there is no extra grant money available. In addition, she said, Quincy has no summer, temporary, or provisional employees to perform such work, a fact she attributed to the budget concerns impacting not only Quincy but many communities in the state.

Nolan also said calls for neighborhood participation, including a neighborhood clean-up in the fall of 2001 and "Cleaner, Greener" activities in May, have been less successful than in other areas of the city.

Connolly Receives Labor Council Endorsement For County Treasurer

Joseph Connolly, candidate for Norfolk County Treasurer, announces he has received the endorsement of the Norfolk County Central Labor Council (NCCLC) representing more than 40,000 members in more than 60 unions throughout the county.

Robert Rizzi, president of the NCCLC, who informed Connolly of the endorsement, said Connolly "clearly understands the needs and concerns of working families and knows how best to advocate for the issues that are most important to us."

Connolly, a Weymouth Town Councillor at-Large, said: "I am honored to receive the endorsement of the AFL-CIO's Norfolk County Central Labor Council and its thousands of members throughout Norfolk County. Their faith and trust in me as the best candidate to represent working families in the treasurer's office is humbling and energizing.

"I am running for Norfolk County Treasurer because I believe the residents of Norfolk County deserve to have a treasurer that will proactively manage and safeguard the county's finances and its pension fund, particularly in light of the tight economic times we are facing. I firmly believe that government at all levels should be accountable and accessible to the people it serves."

Connolly previously served as a legislative aide in the late Congressman Joseph Moakley's office, owned his own small business for several years, and is serving his second term on the Weymouth Town Council as a councillor at-large. He is chairman of the Weymouth Town Council's Education Committee and the Committee on Public Works. Connolly received a master's degree in Public Affairs from the McCormack Institute at the University of Massachusetts at Boston and a bachelor's degree from Boston State College.

MassHousing Mortgage Pre-Qualification Process On-Line

MassHousing, the state's affordable housing bank, announces prospective low and moderate-income homebuyers can get pre-qualified for a low-interest MassHousing mortgage on-line at masshousing.com.

"Applying for a mortgage can be an intimidating and frustrating experience for the first-time homebuyer," said MassHousing Executive Director Thomas Gleason. "This new on-line feature will simplify the mortgage process by walking the borrower through pre-qualification and then providing a pre-qualification certificate and a completed mortgage application that the borrower can bring to a MassHousing approved lender."

In addition to providing on-line pre-qualification (including a credit check), the web site includes a detailed glossary of real estate terms, mortgage calculators, helpful hints, and answers to frequently asked questions. The site also provides information such as MassHousing purchase price and income limits by city or town, the downpayment amount required based on the mortgage amount, the tax rate for each city or town, and an estimate of the amount of money required for closing costs.

MassHousing's below-market-rate mortgage product (currently at 6.2 percent) available to borrowers who meet eligibility guidelines and requires a downpayment of at least 3 percent. MassHousing is available through a network of more than 100 MassHousing-approved lenders. A list of participating banks and program requirements is available at www.masshousing.com or by calling the MassHousing consumer hotline at 1-888-843-6432.

The Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency, now doing business at MassHousing, is the leading provider of affordable housing in Massachusetts. Since 1970, MassHousing has generated $6 billion in loans to finance over 76,000 units of mixed-income rental housing and over 40,000 mortgages for affordable home ownership opportunities for first-time homebuyers.

First-Time Homebuyers Workshop Aug. 17 At Sons Of Italy Hall

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore will sponsor a free First-Time Homebuyers Workshop, in collaboration with Fleet Mortgage Corporation, Saturday, Aug. 17, at the Sons of Italy Hall, 120 Quarry St.

The one-day workshop will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and breakfast and lunch will be included. Door prizes will be given away, including a weekend getaway vacation.

All potential first-time homebuyers are encouraged to attend this educational workshop. Topics covered include mortgage options, legal aspects of the homebuying process, how a home inspection works and other presentations from real estate related professionals.

Down payment grants up to $10,000 per family are available. Participants must complete this workshop to qualify for grant programs.

Advanced registration is required. For more information and to register for the workshop, contact Debbie Edgerly at 617-770-2227, ext. 31.

Home Tip

(NU) - When it comes to entertaining, is every element of your home's decor ready for your guests? Your home's design elements, including carpet, make for successful entertaining. When planning for visitors, one important thing to consider is your floor's durability.

Selecting a carpet that is durable and stain resistant can eliminate post-party frustration, reduce cleanup time and withstand additional foot traffic.

For example, DuPont STAINMASTER with Tactesse fiber resists crushing and matting and provides a softer alternative to traditional carpet.

Keep Cool This Summer Without Getting Hot Over Electric Bills

As summer unfolds, the first hot day usually drives people to their local home improvement or department store to purchase a room air conditioner. The best way to stay cool and keep home cooling costs down this summer is to purchase one with an Energy Star® label.

By replacing a 10-year old room air conditioner with an Energy Star labeled model, users can reduce energy consumption by 20 to 30 percent which, depending on use, can save about $100 during the first five years.

The Energy Star label, a program of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the U.S. Department of Energy, makes it easy for consumers to identify products that are energy efficient without sacrificing product features, quality, or personal comfort. Energy Star labeled room air conditioners exceed federal standards for energy consumption by 10 percent or more.

"The good news for consumers is that they can immediately and directly reduce their electricity use and bills by choosing an Energy Star labeled unit," said Massachusetts Energy Commissioner David O'Connor. "What's more, they can also save energy during the months when the demand on our regional electric grid is greatest."

air conditioner, there are many important questions one must consider in order to make a wise selection. For example, room size, local climate conditions, outside shading, and window opening size all play an important role in answering these questions.

Energy Star labeled room air conditioners come in all types and the first step is to choose one that fits in the space available. A window model can be installed in most double-hung windows; casement window models are used in narrow, vertical windows; and built-in models are encased in a sleeve installed in the wall. Once this has been decided, unit features are the next consideration.

The two most important features are its size and Energy Efficiency Rating (EER). When considering several comparable units, select the unit with the higher EER. The higher the EER, the less energy it uses to cool one's home. Look for an EER rating of 10.7 to 10.8 or higher, depending on the size of the unit selected.

Room air conditioner sizes are rated in BTUs (British Thermal Units) per hour. Unfortunately, many people buy a room air conditioner that is too large for the space, thinking it will cool better. If the unit is large, it will cool the room quickly, but only remove a portion of the humidity, leaving the room with a damp feeling. Conversely, a unit that is too small will have to work harder to cool the room effectively. The table below will help consumers select a room air conditioner size that's right for the situation.

One should also consider the following adjustments to ensure the selected room air conditioner is the proper size. If the room is heavily shaded, add 600 BTU's by 10 percent; if the room is very sunny, increase BTU's by 10 percent; if more than two people regularly occupy the room, add 600 BTU's for each additional person; and if the unit is for a kitchen, increase the BTU's by 4,000 BTU's/Hr.

Once a proper size has been determined, consider purchasing a unit with other features such as manual directional control over the air flow; units whose filters can slide out easily for regular cleaning; a thermostat setting and a built-in timer for automatic shut off. Also, if the room air conditioner is mounted at the narrow end of a long room, look for a fan control known as a "Power Thrust" or "Super Thrust" to send the cool air farther into the room.

Having determined the proper size and type of Energy Star labeled room that suits their needs, consumers will be staying cool and saving energy and money even on the hottest days.

Granite Shock Shamrocks, 27-22

By CHRIS POISSON

There may be no victory parade on Hancock Street this week, but it sure felt like the Quincy Granite had won a championship last Saturday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Hosting the Marlboro Shamrocks for the first time in history, Quincy rallied from deficits of 14-3 at half-time and 22-20 in the fourth quarter to pull out a sensational 27-22 victory over the 11-time defending EFL champions.

Newcomer Jeff Lang, an All-American wideout at Curry College brought in to replace the retired Billy MacDougall, hauled in two touchdowns, including the 61-yard, game-winning score late in the game.

The Granite has certainly grabbed the attention of the Shamrocks and the rest of the league, but they know that championships are not won in Week 2. There's still eight games left on the schedule, including a rematch in Marlboro.

"It's absolutely awesome," said quarterback Liam Higgins, who sizzled in the second half after a shaky start. "We beat the best team and that's why you play football. But we have to go down there, in their back-yard, in a couple of months. That's when we'll know who the best is."

Aug. 3 against the Randolph Oilers at home at 7 p.m.

Quincy, which felt it should've played Marlboro last year for the championship only to be upset in the semifinals, got off to a strong start, particularly on the defensive side of the ball.

On Marlboro's second possession, Tom Walsh and Andelson Merisca sacked quarterback Ralph Barone for a 9-yard loss before safety John Skabekis intercepted a deflected Barone pass and returned it to the Marlboro 11. Quincy, though, had to settle for a 25-yard Matt Kulesa field goal as it took a 3-0 lead with 6:03 left in the first.

Earlier in the week, quarterback David Harris, a nine-year EFL veteran, said Quincy needed to play mistake-free football to have a shot at beating Marlboro. Near the end of the first quarter, though, Quincy made a costly mistake.

On third and 8 at its own 9-yard line, Marlboro defensive back Greg Moore intercepted Higgins' pass with one hand and darted into the end zone for the score. Barone returned the 2-point conversion as Marlboro grabbed an 8-3 lead.

15-Year-Old Babe Ruth Team Wins Tournament

After falling in the first game of the South East state tournament, the Quincy 15-Year-Old Babe Ruth team captured the championship Sunday with a pair of 5-3 victories over Norwood.

Quincy will now play the North East state champion Saturday at noon at King Field in South Boston for the Eastern State Championship. The winner of this game will advance to the New England Regional Tournament in Vermont.

Quincy opened the tournament last Friday at Merrymount Field with a 6-3 loss to Norwood, but rebounded with two wins Saturday at Seaver Field in Plymouth in the double-elimination format.

Quincy blanked Plymouth, 10-0, and defeated Taunton, 3-1, to set up the rematch against Norwood Sunday.

In the first game, Quincy handed Norwood its first loss of the tournament to force the elimination game to be played 45 minutes later. In that game, Quincy jumped out to a 3-0 lead and never looked back.

In the District Tournament, Quincy suffered an 8-3 loss to Braintree in the first game, but went undefeated the rest of the way for the title.

After beating Weymouth, South Boston, Braintree and Parkway, Quincy had to knock off Milton twice for the crown. In the first game, Quincy topped them, 5-4, in extra innings and then crushed them, 11-1, in the clinching game.

In Quincy's run to the South East state championship, it received solid pitching performances and clutch hits from John Folino, Dean Sandanato, John Stanton, David Jaehnig and Justin Thorley.

Defensively, catcher Kevin Richardson, first baseman Matt Haskins, second baseman Matt Tobin, outfielder Sean Sullivan, outfielder/first baseman Nick Malvesti, outfielder/catcher James Hutchens and outfielder Tom Ross were sharp.

Paul Markarian Accepts Bentley College Hockey Scholarship

Paul Markarian, son of Diane and Harry Markarian of Wollaston, has accepted a Division I hockey scholarship to Bentley College of the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference, where he will also study business.

A product of Quincy Youth Hockey, Markarian graduated in 1999 from North Quincy High School, where he was a two-year captain of the hockey team, a three-time team MVP and rookie of the year. He also led the Old Colony League in scoring for two years and was consecutively named an OCL All-Star and Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic.

Markarian spent the last three seasons playing junior hockey in the Eastern Junior Hockey League for the Walpole Junior Stars, where he led his team to the league championship and the playoff championship with the best record in the league's history. He was a two-year team captain, MVP, rookie of the year and a two-time EJ All-Star.

Summer Recreation Program Underway At Playgrounds

Recreation Director Barry Welch announces the Quincy Recreation Department summer playground program is underway at 19 locations with supervised activities for boys and girls ages 6-16.

The playgrounds are open from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, weather permitting. The free program offers active games and sports as well as arts and crafts and weekly sports competitions.

There are special events and weekly field trips to local attractions. In addition to the high school and college staff who are assigned to each playground, a sports specialist and arts and crafts specialist visit each location in a regular rotation.

Registration is done at the location and continues throughout the summer to accommodate youngsters who may return from vacation or summer school programs. Participant must be a Quincy resident and may attend a program of their choice.

The locations of the playgrounds are: Faxon Park,

Kincaide, Adams Park, Bradford Street, O'Rourke, Forbes Hill, Wollaston School grounds, Perkins Field, Monroe Park/Pond Street, Palmer Park, LaBrecque, Fore River Field, Great Hill/Chapel, Squantum, Montclair/Bishop, Fenno Street, Cavanaugh Field, MASS Fields, Welcome Young and Beechwood Knoll School grounds.

The playgrounds will be staffed until Aug. 13. For more information call the department office at 617-376-1394.

COMPUTER DIAGNOSTICS

The computers that operate a newer vehicle's performance system generate signals (data streams) that flow through the operating system to adjust and readjust the engine. When a problem arises, it either shows up as a drivability problem or as a "check engine" light on the dashboard. The problem could be in the form of a bad sensor, malfunctioning electrical or mechanical component, or damaged wiring and plugs. As the system recognizes the problem, it generates a trouble code that registers in the computer's memory. Diagnostic computers in the servicing shop can then be interfaced with the vehicle's computer to read this code, thereby helping with diagnostics. Effective computer diagnostics and repair demands state-of-the-art equipment.

Computer diagnostics can save considerable time in troubleshooting your car's performance problems. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO at 258 Quincy Ave., is your local auto center that can handle all your automotive service and repair needs, a shop that wants to earn your return business, a shop that treats you like a person and not a number. You can trust your auto maintenance and repairs to us. Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. Open: Mon.-Fri. 8am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: When a drivability problem exists without a computer-generated trouble code or a check engine light to point to the cause, an auto technician's experience and know-how come into play.

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth Second Seed In Playoffs

Even with a loss Monday night in the season finale, the Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth team clinched the second seed in the playoffs with a 12-8 overall record.

Wollaston will play Milton in a best-of-three first round series. Game 1 was last night (Wednesday) at 7:30 at Adams Field and Game 2 is scheduled for tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 in Milton. If necessary, Game 3 will be Friday night at 7:30 at Adams Field.

On Monday, Wollaston fell to Weymouth, 2-1, but received encouraging news by the Chris Dolbear's pitching performance. Dolbear fired a one hitter, walking only two while striking out 10.

On Sunday, Wollaston qualified for the playoffs with a 3-0 victory over Cedar Grove. Pitcher Jeff Lam turned in his best outing of the season, tossing a two-hit shutout with 10 strikeouts to improve to 3-1.

A scoreless game in the sixth inning, Mike McLaughlin bashed a towering home run over the center field fence to put Wollaston on the board. After an out, Marc Lopez singled and Dolbear doubled. Matt Lavery knocked them both in with a single for a 3-0 lead.

Defensively, Dan Cosgrove, Ryan Conley and Lavery had strong games.

Here are results from previous games:

On July 10, Wollaston managed only three hits in a 9-3 loss to Milton.

On July 9, Wollaston yielded three unearned runs in the second inning but rallied for a pair of runs in the fifth and sixth innings to pull out a 4-3 win over Canton.

In the fifth, Chris Kirshner doubled home Matt McNeil (single) and scored on a single by Conley.

In the sixth, Steve Reardon walked, stole second and scored on a single by Lopez. McLaughlin blasted a double for the game-winner. Reardon (3-0) picked up the win, giving up five hits and one walk while striking out seven.

On July 8, Wollaston stormed back from a 9-3 deficit in the sixth inning for a 10-9 victory over Needham. Conley (4-0) pitched well in relief, allowing three hits and a walk in six innings with six strikeouts.

Trailing 9-8 in the seventh, MacNeil delivered a clutch two-run double that scored Shawn Gibbons and Dolbear, both of whom had singled. Chris Traietti (2 hits, 2 RBI), Reardon (2 hits, 3 runs) and Kirshner (2-run double) also contributed to the offense.

On July 3 against Hingham, Wollaston suffered an 8-6 loss as it blew a 6-2 lead in the sixth inning. Dolbear pitched well in reand-out, Marlboro came right back with a nine-play, 86-yard drive capped by former Boston College fullback Omari Walker's 9-yard TD run. Walker came up short on the 2-point rush and Marlboro held a 14-3 advantage with 10:15 left in the second quarter.

At this point it seemed like it was only a matter of time before the Shamrocks turned the game into a blowout. The score remained the same at the half, but Quincy showed signs of life on its last possession when Higgins completed two passes to wideout Bo Garcia. The drive stalled at the Marlboro 11 and Quincy ended up botching the field-goal attempt.

In the second half, the Granite received the ball first and things did not look good when they were penalized for an illegal procedure on the first play from scrimmage. But then the game took a sudden turn.

On third and 6, Higgins scrambled in the backfield and was nearly sacked by three different Shamrock players before he launched a 44-yard pass across the field to a wide-open Lang for the touchdown. Kulesza added the extra point for a 14-10 lead with 12:24 left in the frame.

"They were coming hard on a blitz and I was just running for my life," Higgins said. "I saw Jeff Lang breaking open in the far opposite corner. I just wound up and threw it my longest and we ended up getting six out of it."

"Unbelievable," said head coach Ken McPhee. "You know what Higgins is? He's just a tough kid. He's a line-backer playing quarterback. He has that mentality. He had a bad start at the beginning but he just kept working."

Galvanized by its first touchdown, Quincy's defense picked up the pace as it forced Marlboro to go three-and-out on its first two possessions of the second half. On the second one, the Shamrocks failed to get a punt off deep in their own territory and the Granite took over at the Marlboro 10.

Two plays later, Veticac (20 carries, 93 yards) blasted through the middle for a 12-yard TD. Kulesza added the extra point for a 17-14 lead with 5:14 left in the third.

"Jackson Veticac and the offensive line played really well," McPhee said. "I thought we moved the ball pretty well against them."

With about three minutes left in the quarter, Skabeikis picked off another Barone pass to give Quincy prime field position at the Marlboro 28. Quincy couldn't punch it into the end zone and settled for Kulesza's 34-yard field goal for a 20-14 edge early in the fourth quarter.

On the ensuing series, Marlboro finally solved Quincy's defense in the second half with a 50-yard scoring drive. Barone connected on 4 of 6 passes, including a 5-yard TD pass to Brandon Ramos with 11:25 left. Barone hit Bianchini on the 2-point conversion to regain the lead, 22-20.

After each team exchanged punts, Quincy got the ball back at its 40 with 5:11 left on the clock. On third and 11, Higgins fired a beautiful pass to a streaking Lang in stride for go-ahead touchdown.

"We tried that earlier in the game and the coaches weren't too happy with it," Higgins said. "Jeff told me before the play he has this kid beat. I pumped faked to the strong side to draw the safety over and went back to the weak side and hit Jeff for the touchdown. He beat his man right in stride."

"Wow," McPhee said. "How good is Jeff Lang? He played great. It was a total team effort. The defensive coaches did a phenomenal job. Greg Wilson, our offensive coordinator, called a great game. That's a gutsy win right there. There were a couple of times we could've folded. I don't know what else to say. I'm kind of flabbergasted at this point."

LEGION BASEBALL

Morrisette Not In Playoff Picture

By CHRIS POISSON

For the second straight year — and also just the second time in its history — the Morrisette baseball team will not be participating in the American Legion playoffs.

The official announcement came last Tuesday night when Cohasset (10-9-1) and its stingy pitching staff blanked Weymouth, 2-0, to clinch the fifth and final seed in the Zone 6 tournament.

If Cohasset had lost, Morrisette's season finale last Wednesday against Weymouth would have been significant with playoffs hopes at stake. Instead, manager Ray Cattaneo had to find some way to motivate the team to play a meaningless game.

"I talked to the kids before the game," Cattaneo said, "and told them, 'This is a game I really want to win. I know it means nothing, but 10-10 is a lot better than 9-11. At least it won't be a losing season.'"

So that's what Morrisette played for when it stepped onto Adams Field last Wednesday night. And with two non-pitchers sharing the duties, Morrisette found a way to pull out a 9-7 victory to finish with a .500 record. After last year's catastrophe, at least there's something positive to take away from this season.

"Oh, definitely," Cattaneo said. "We were right in it until the end. Last year we were out by the Fourth of July. It made it interesting, having something to play for. A 10-10 record would have gotten us in last year. Quincy was 9-11 last year and made it. I feel bad that the kids can't continue. They were decent enough to still be playing. We'll be there next year."

Morrisette may very well qualify for the playoffs next season as most of the team returns. But when you finish just one game short, it's particularly painful because you look back at certain games that you should've won.

On June 22 at Adams Field, Morrisette squandered a 3-2 lead as Stoughton rallied for a 4-3 win — its first victory of the season. And then there were the three losses to Milton and Cohasset — Cohasset standing out the most because Morrisette suffered a pair of one-run losses to them in the last week of the season.

"The Stoughton game haunts us," Cattaneo said. "And if we could have taken at least one of three from Cohasset or Milton, then we're in. It's hard to beat a team three times, but it happened this year."

While Morrisette was on the wrong end of the three-game sweep against Milton and Cohasset, it enjoyed being on the other end against city rival Quincy and Weymouth, the No. 4 seed in the tourney.

In the finale against Weymouth, outfielder Patrick Duff started on the hill and was relieved by catcher Tom Hughes. All seven of Weymouth's runs were unearned, as it scored on wild pitches, passed balls and errors.

Morrisette held a 5-2 lead after two innings before Weymouth scored four in the third to knock Duff out of the game. Hughes came in for the final out and allowed just three hits the rest of the way to pick up the win.

Neal Gavin evened the score at 6 in the fourth inning with an RBI double that scored Pat Bregoli (walk).

In the fifth, Morrisette grabbed the lead for good on a sacrifice fly from Rob Muollo, an RBI single from Ryan Donahue (2 for 3) and an RBI double from Bregoli.

Don Cook (RBI), Duff (RBI), Hughes (RBI), Ray Marchand (2 for 3) and Steve Pizzi (1 for 2) also contributed to the offense.

SAM MELE, an honorary inductee to the QHS Baseball Hall of Fame, throws the first pitch of the opening game of the 13-Year-Old Babe Ruth state tournament held at Adams Field.

13-Year-Olds Show Competitive Spirit

BABE RUTH TOURNEY

Although it didn't win a game in the recent state tournament at Adams Field, the Quincy 13-year-old Babe Ruth team showed it can play at a higher level of competition.

Besides, the tourney was used more as a learning tool as the team is being groomed for next year's 14-Year-Old Babe Ruth World Series to be held at Adams Field.

Quincy, the host team, dropped a 7-6 heartbreaker in 11 innings to Newton in the first game. Physically and emotionally drained, it was eliminated the following morning with a loss to Norwood in the second game.

Plymouth wound up capturing the championship last Saturday with a victory over Weymouth, the same team that Quincy lost to in the District finals.

"The state tournament was a good experience for the kids for next year's World Series," said manager Bob Griffin. "They showed they can play at this level of competition. They also played very well in the Districts."

In the loss to Newton, starter Jonathan Pelletier pitched a strong game, allowing three earned runs in 6 1/3 innings with four strikeouts. Joe Ferris (2 RBI) and Tom Power each had three hits to power the offense.

Quincy held a 4-2 lead in the seventh but Newton rallied to tie the game and send it into overtime. In the 10th, Quincy pushed across two runs for the lead, but once again Newton rallied to even the score and keep the game alive.

In the 11th, Quincy failed to produce a run after loading the bases with no outs. Newton made them pay when it scored the game-winner with two outs in the bottom half.

Members of the Quincy team are: Jonathan Allen, David Arrufat, Kevin Bossart, Wendell Cosgrove, Paul Doolan, Ferris, Chris Fredale, Matt Jaehning, Lanny Papalambros, Pelletier, Nick Peters, Power, Conor Roche, Chris Rooney, Jared Tucker, manager Bob Griffin, and coaches Wendell Cosgrove and Bob Bossart.

SAM MELE, a former Major League Baseball player and manager, shows the Quincy players his American League Championship ring that he won in 1965 as manager of the Minnesota Twins. The Twins lost the World Series to the Los Angeles Dodgers in seven games that year.

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth Second Seed

lief of Lopez, fanning six in four innings. He also added two hits (triple) and two RBI. Cosgrove and Andy McAllister turned in strong defensive games.

On July 1 against

Needham, Gary Dalton and Tam teamed up for a three-hit, seven-strikeout performance in a 7-1 win. Down 1-0 in the fifth, Wollaston scored five runs and added two in the sixth. Mark Dondro (2 hits, 2 RBI), Cosgrove (2 RBI), Gibbons

(RBI) and Lavery (RBI) powered the offense.

On June 29 against Cedar Grove, Wollaston held a 3-2 lead after five innings but fell, 5-3. After giving up two unearned runs in the first, Kirshner evened the score with a two-run triple that scored Lopez (single) and Tam (single). Traietti made it 3-2 with an RBI single.

Reardon, though, tired after four innings and Cedar Grove scored three runs in the sixth inning against Wollaston relief pitching.

Preparing For Heat Emergencies

"Families and communities can cope with heat related emergencies by preparing in advance and by working together as a team. Knowing what to do is your best protection," advises Daniel A. Craig, regional director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency's (FEMA's) office in Boston.

Heat illnesses can cause three types of health challenges: heat cramps, heat exhaustion, and heat stroke (also referred to as sunstroke).

Heat cramps are muscular pains and spasms due to heavy exertion, which can involve the abdominal muscles or legs. To treat heat cramps, get the person to a cooler place, have them drink plenty of liquids (that do not contain alcohol or caffeine), and rest in a comfortable position.

Heat exhaustion typically occurs when people exercise heavily or work in a warm, humid place where body fluids are lost through heavy sweating. As the body cools, blood flows to the skin and away from the vital organs (such as kidney, heart, and liver). This results in a form of mild shock. Again, do not give liquids that contain alcohol or caffeine. Let the affected person rest in a comfortable position and watch carefully for changes in their condition.

Heat Stroke (or Sunstroke) is the most serious heat emergency. The body loses its ability to regulate its own temperature. Classic heat-stroke patients may show one or all of these signs: rapid pulse, high temperature, and a lack of perspiration. It is life threatening. A person suffering from heat stroke requires immediate medical attention. Call 911 and move the person to a cooler place immediately. Immerse the person in a cool bath or wrap wet sheets around the body and fan. Watch for signals or breathing problems. Keep the person lying down and continue to cool the body any way you can. If they refuse water, are vomiting, or there are changes in the level of consciousness, do not give them anything to eat or drink.

These are very serious conditions. Now that you know what can happen, here are some ways that you can protect yourself and your family from heat emergencies:

If a heat wave is predicted or happening, take some precautions...

- Slow down. Avoid strenuous activity. If you must do strenuous activity, do it during the coolest part of the day.
- Stay indoors as much as possible. If air conditioning is not available, stay on the lowest floor, out of the sunshine.
- Wear lightweight, light-colored clothing to reflect away some of the sun's energy.
- Drink plenty of water/ fluids regularly even if you do not feel thirsty.
- Water is the safest liquid to drink during heat emergencies. Avoid drinks with alcohol or caffeine in them. They can make you feel good briefly, but make the heat's effect on your body worse. This is especially true about beer, which actually dehydrates the body.
- Eat small meals and eat more often. Avoid foods that are high in protein, which increase metabolic heat.
- Avoid using salt tablets unless directed to do so by a physician.
- Do not underestimate the seriousness of heat illness especially if the affected is a child, is elderly, or is injured.

TEAMHERO -- Patrick White of Quincy, 11, stands with Quincy Mayor William Phelan (center) as they are honored at the first "Keeping Kids on Track" Honor Roll event. The awards ceremony, sponsored by United Way, KeySpan and WCVB-TV, celebrated the work of "after-school heroes" and more than 30 mayors from across the state. White embodies a rare combination of courage and determination. Diagnosed with cancer at age 9, Patrick played baseball during his chemotherapy treatments and after grueling surgery. An unending source of inspiration, Patrick continues to play youth baseball and his teammates have named him "Team Hero" instead of "Team Captain." Patrick was nominated by Mayor Phelan for the Keeping Kids on Track Honor Roll which highlights the importance of fostering the learning and development of children during out-of-school time. Joining them are, from left, Paul LaCamera, general manager of WCVB-TV Channel 5; Marian L. Heard, president and CEO of United Way of Massachusetts Bay; and Bob Catell, chairman of KeySpan.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

THE SOONER, THE BETTER

Although many parents think that candy poses the biggest danger to children's teeth, such healthy foods as milk, fruit juices, and formulas may also contribute to decay. These foods have sugars, which provide food for decay-causing bacteria. To nip this problem in the bud, wipe your infant's gums with gauze or a washcloth moistened with water after each feeding. After the child's first tooth appears, use a soft-bristled, child-sized toothbrush with water. Take your child to the dentist by his or her first birthday, and ask the dentist about fluoride and sealants for prevention, as well as when to start using toothpaste. Attitudes and habits established at an early age are critical in maintaining good oral health throughout life.

We believe in preventive care for the whole family. It is important to get into the habit of good dental care at an early age. Children who begin to taken care of their teeth at a young age are more likely to have good dental habits as adults. If you are looking for a family dentist who understands the needs of everyone in your family as individuals and as patients, we hope you will consider us. We're located at 44 Greenleaf St., where we emphasize preventive, functional and cosmetic dental care. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com. P.S. When children are old enough to start using toothpaste, limit the amount to a pea-sized portion, and encourage thorough rinsing after brushing.

SCOTT DEWARD

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

For centuries, letters were a principal means of communication between people. Many letters of the past have found their way into literature, and the early forms of the modern novel were written in the form of letters to and from the principals in the story.

During World War II, Kate Smith, one of our country's greatest singers, urged folks on the homefront to write military people to help keep up their spirits during one of the worst wars in history. She made famous the statement: "If you don't write, you're wrong."

This statement still rings true today. Writing to people is a concrete way to touch them. There's something about a nice letter that continues to bless with the passing of years. A person can read a letter over and over again; meaningful phrases can be reread. Letters can be "tucked away" and be brought out when a person needs assurance; sometimes a feeling of togetherness; sometimes a feeling of love.

Wouldn't today be a good time to sit down and send a few thoughts to a friend or a relative? ...

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You're wise to let your Arian skepticism question a former adversary's request to let bygones be bygones. Time will tell if he or she is trying to pull the wool over the Lamb's eyes.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Congratulations. Your hard work soon pays off with some well-deserved recognition. Meanwhile, that important personal relationship needs more attention from you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) That new person in your life seems trustworthy, but don't turn him or her into a confidante just yet. Remember: The secret you don't reveal is the one you won't lose sleep over.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your kindness makes a difference in someone's life. But by week's end, a touch of Cancerian envy could create a problem with a colleague. Take care to keep it under control.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A new spurt of energy sends you roaring back into that challenging work situation. But be careful not to overdo it, or your sizzle could fizzle before your task is completed.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your practical sense helps you see the logic of being a bit more flexible with a workplace colleague. But you still have a ways to go before there's a true meeting of the minds.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A surprise situation could cause you to spend more money than you feel you can afford. But careful budget adjustments will help. Your fiscal picture soon brightens.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) That decision you made might still have its detractors, but your supporters are growing. Meanwhile, your personal life takes on some welcome new developments.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Matters of the mind intrigue the sage Sagittarian through week's end. By then, you should feel more than ready to make room for pursuits of the heart.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The canny Capricorn can offer good counsel to others. But how about taking some advice yourself from a close friend or family member who is able and ready to help?

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A new workplace opportunity offers a variety of challenges that you might find intriguing. Best advice: Take things one step at a time so that you don't feel overwhelmed.

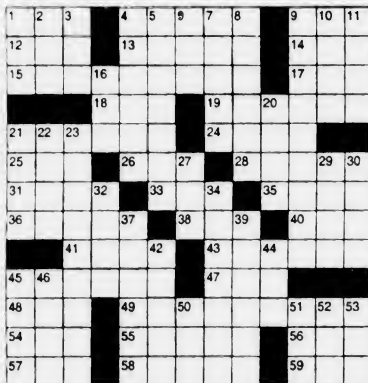

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A bid to revive a relationship that ended on a bitter note needs to be carefully thought out before you can even begin to consider plunging into a new emotional commitment.

BORN THIS WEEK: You enjoy being with people, and people love being with you. You would probably do very well in politics.

Nickerson Legion Post Participates In Activities

The R.I. Nickerson American Legion Post #382 has participated in a host of activities this year, reports Adjutant Bob Verney.

The Post was represented by a color guard and marched in the Memorial Day Parade and Independence Day Parade in Squantum. Post members also marched in the Veterans' Day Parade last Nov. 11.

The Nickerson Post Memorial Service took place at the Star of the Sea Church in Squantum on April 14 to remember their fallen members.

The Post awarded three $500 scholarship awards this year. Recipients are: Beth Houghton, Julian Mullen and Alex Gray.

The Post school awards dinner were, for the Squantum School: Jessica Howlett and Lamonte Toombs and for the Atlantic Middle School: Stephanie Buscher and Eric Vu.

The annual ROTC awards were presented to Jessica Knowles for military excellence; and Alex Yu for academic excellence.

The Nickerson Post Installation of Officers took place at the Post home on June 1. Commander is Frank Lamotoca, a veteran of World War II.

The Post also participated in the yearly bingo for the patients at the VA Hospital in West Roxbury and will host again this year the Shriners children's cookout in August.

The Post home is also available for community use when needed.

For more information, contact Adjutant Bob Verney at 617-328-8110.

Local Aid Figures In Line With City Projections

The state budget recently passed by the State Legislature and awaiting approval by Acting Governor Jane Swift provides $40,538,771 in local aid to the city of Quincy, a figure in keeping with city projections.

Initially, said Mayor William Phelan, the city's budget had been based on earlier projections which predicted a 10 percent cut in all areas except lottery. When projections improved to include the possibility of level funding, Phelan appropriated an additional $2.1 million to the city's schools.

"It's essentially level funding," said Phelan. "Their budget basically confirmed what we had projected after the additional $2.1 million."

The mayor added that an unanticipated $800,000 in local aid funds would be used as "a buffer" given the "inexact science" of revenue projections which, he added, were less than expected the year previous.

"We have to keep an eye on revenue," said Phelan, explaining that the city was waiting to determine what, if anything, it would do with possible extra funds. "There should be some buffer."

Phelan further cautioned that the budget passed by the State Legislature was not "etched in stone" because of reports that Swift was considering cuts in many areas of the budget, including local aid. However, Phelan said, discussions with Quincy's legislative delegation had indicated that, in the area of local aid, the necessary votes were there to override such a veto.

Search Begins For 5 New Quincy College Governors

resources for fundraising, corporate partnerships, policy approval, and professional expertise.

"I'd like to see individuals who not only reflect our population but who bring skills and talents to the board to guide the institution well into the future. Board members must have an absolute understanding of the college and a loyalty to the institution and not any specific constituency or issue."

Added Lord-Piatelli: "This important process provides interested citizens with an opportunity to consider the significant responsibility of serving the college. The institution is unique and has a very specific mission and purpose. The expectation is that everyone understand the substantial commitment of time and effort required, the legal obligations, and the ultimate service to the college."

The Quincy College Board of Governors was established in 1994 when governance of the college was removed from the Quincy Public School System to a separate, 13-member board. Three groups of governors were appointed that year for staggered terms. The first class of governors served an initial two-year term and was then reappointed to a six-year term. Governors may not be appointed to more than two consecutive terms.

Continuing to serve as governors are: Lord-Piatelli; Raymond; Lewis; John Farmer; Dr. Joseph Nicastro; Elizabeth Flynn; and Atty. Peter O'Neill.

The late Richard Hart, who died earlier this year, also served as governor; his term had not yet expired and is not one of the five vacancies.

Legal Question And Debate: Who Is The Chairman Of USS Salem Board?

Sheets Or Hall?

A legal debate has arisen over who is chairman of the Board of Directors of the USS Salem and Shipbuilding Museum.

Is it still former Mayor James Sheets or former Norfolk County Treasurer Robert Hall of Needham?

Mayor William Phelan appointed Hall as chairman July 17.

But an attorney representing the Salem says Sheets is still the chairman.

And, as chairman, Sheets accepted the resignation June 28 of Joanne Condon-Walsh as executive director and named her son, Michael Condon, as interim executive director July 1.

The appointment of Hall by Phelan touched off a legal debate over what rules the Salem and museum is governed.

Phelan on Tuesday confirmed he had named Hall as chairman of the board and said he did so pursuant to the home rule petition which he said had created the U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum.

Assistant City Solicitor

JAMES SHEETS

Thomas Largey said Phelan appointed Hall under the Special Act of 1992 which he said "specially designates the mayor as the appointing authority of the board and gives him the authority to designate a chairman."

Largey said Phelan informed Sheets of Hall's appointment and asked him to run over any pertinent records. The request, Largey said, was denied.

The Sun was unable to reach Sheets Tuesday for comment.

Since then, Largey said he has been in contact with an attorney representing the Salem, who contends the ship and museum are not the creation of the home rule petition of 1992 but a private, non-profit corporation created six months prior to that special legislation. And under that the mayor does not have the appointing authority.

The attorney, it was learned, is Thomas Riley. The Sun was also unable to reach him Tuesday for comment.

Largey said he disagrees with the contention of the private, non-profit corporation. He said Salem officials claimed the ship museum was the creation of a home rule petition when it entered into its

Takes Over From Gorman As He Steps Into Retirement O'Connell Named Acting Fire Chief

Mayor William Phelan has named Paul E. O'Connell to serve as acting chief of the Quincy Fire Department while the city seeks a permanent replacement for the position.

O'Connell, a fourth generation firefighter who lives in Stoughton and who once served as chief in the late 1980's, was sworn in Tuesday afternoon during ceremonies held in the council chambers of City Hall. O'Connell will fill the vacancy created this week by the retirement of former Chief Thomas Gorman, who served the city for more than a decade in that capacity.

"Paul has the administrative tools necessary to handle the job of chief as well as the experience of fighting fires," said Phelan. "Most importantly, he has the respect of his peers and a reputation as being a leader."

"The city of Quincy is lucky to have such an individual."

O'Connell, a 29 year veteran, said he was honored to serve as the city's acting chief and took time during the swearing-in ceremonies to recognize many of his family members who were in attendance.

"I'm once again honored to be able to lead the Quincy Fire Department," said O'Connell, who described himself as "a kid" when he was first chief at the age of 38. "I'm prepared to give this city 100 percent."

O'Connell joined the Quincy Fire Department in June of 1973. He was promoted to lieutenant in 1978, captain in 1984, and deputy fire chief in 1987. He was actually promoted to chief in 1989 but returned to the rank of deputy chief because, at that time, he preferred fighting fires.

O'Connell served in the Vietnam War where he received the Purple Heart. He holds a degree in Fire Science from Massachusetts Community College in Brockton. He and his wife, Judith (Venkus) O'Connell, have a daughter, Jennifer Barucci, and a son, Brian.

O'Connell's father, retired Quincy Fire Lt. "Bud" O'Connell, served in the department for 33 years.

O'Connell will serve as acting chief until a new chief may be appointed from a civil service promotion list. The next exam is slated to take place in March of 2003.

The March civil service examination reportedly will be open to five deputy chiefs and 10 captains.

Ordinarily, if four deputy chiefs applied to take the exam it would be closed to the rank of captain.

But when the last chief's exam was called, only one deputy chief - Joseph Walsh - signed up to take it.

That opened this exam to the captains.

The department has 14 captains but four of them reportedly do not have sufficient time in that rank to qualify for the exam.

PAUL O'CONNELL is sworn in as the city's acting fire chief by City Clerk Joseph Shea Tuesday in the Council Chamber of City Hall. Looking on are former Fire Chief Tom Gorman, who retired Tuesday, and Mayor William Phelan. (Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Noble)

A $1.2 Million Project License Granted For New House Of Pancakes

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

A "Shining Star" where you can eat breakfast all day long was how Atty. Robert Fleming described the new International House of Pancakes (IHOP) at Tuesday's License Board meeting.

By the end of this year, patrons will be able to eat breakfast, lunch or dinner at the new restaurant which will be located at 115-119

Parking Way, to the left of the new concourse.

The License Board granted IHOP a common victualer's license at the meeting.

Fleming, representing IHOP, showed extensive plans of the building to the board which will include 7,757 square feet with 5,000 square feet to be used by IHOP.

Fleming said there will be 65 parking spaces and 176 seats for the 24 hour operation. He said the building, which now houses several tenants, -one is Nick's Shoe Repair- all plan to leave. It will be fashioned somewhat like the new Outback Steak House with one exception- the IHOP traditional colors will be red and blue.

QFD's Newest Ladder Truck Placed Into Service

The Quincy Fire Department's newest ladder truck was placed into service this month and is being stationed at Central Fire Station.

The 100-foot, mid-mount ladder truck, which cost $570,000 fully equipped and was built by the Smeal Company of Nebraska, now gives the city three ladder trucks and three reserve ladder trucks, said Quincy Fire Department Chief Thomas Gorman. Overall, Gorman said, the department is comprised of eight engine companies, three ladder companies, and one heavy-duty rescue company.

Manning the new ladder truck are: Senior Firefighter George Menz, who is in charge of the vehicle; Senior Firefighter Richard Sullivan, crew member; and Firefighter Paul Ratti, operator.

The state-of-the-art truck has many advantages, noted Menz, including a "pre-pped" hose built right into the ladder which will eliminate the time-consuming task of firefighters carrying such hose up the ladder each time they battle a fire.

Gorman, who estimated the vehicle's lifespan to be between 20 and 25 years, thanked Mayor William Phelan and city councillors for addressing the capital needs of the Quincy Fire Department even in a period of tight fiscal budgets.

Quincy Pump Stations Operational By 2003

The Quincy legislative delegation has announced that construction of the MWRA's Quincy and Squantum Pump Stations should be completed and fully operational by the start of 2003.

The stations are the final component of the Quincy Pump Facilities Project, a capital improvement that also includes the Hough's Neck Pump Station and the Quincy and Squantum Force Mains.

"When complete these two pump stations will replace existing pump stations that are old and inefficient," said Rep. Bruce Ayers.

"These pump stations will greatly improve the MWRA's sewer service in the city of Quincy," said Sen. Michael Morrissey. "They will be safer, more efficient and more reliable."

"By increasing their capacity, they will significantly reduce the occurrence of sewage overflows and they will also include state of the art odor control technology that will be a welcome relief to the pump stations' neighbors who have at times experienced sewage odors."

"Construction of the Quincy Pump Station is slightly ahead of schedule and as a result testing of the new pump station could occur as early as this August," said Rep. Stephen Tobin.

"After successful testing, both pump stations will be in operation by the end of 2002," said Rep. Ron Mariano.

The old pump stations will then be demolished and site restoration, including landscaping, will occur in the spring of 2003.

LICENSE BOARD BRIEFS

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

•Granted a common victualer license to Lorraine Lee, doing business as Wing Dings To Go, at 1610 Hancock St. Lee said she will also add pizza to her menu of ribs and wings.

•Continued until Aug. 20 a request of C.M. Santos Inc. for transfer of the retail wine and malt license presently held by S & H Wine & Spirits, Inc. doing business as Juliano's Beer & Wine Inc. 1504 Hancock St.

•Granted a beer & wine license to Lisa Lame' doing business as Gypsy Kitchen at 1241 Hancock St. Lame' said she would sell the gourmet wines as part of gift baskets, as well as to customers by the bottle with gourmet cheese.

•Postponed a request from Man Tat Yue, Lucky Star Chinese Restaurant for a common victualer license for the premises listed at 714

Hancock St.

•Granted a auto repair license to Carmelo Locurto, owner of C & J Auto South, 169-170 West Squantum St. (It was formerly Donovan Brothers and before that Morse Radiators.)

•Continued a hearing until Aug. 20 regarding complaints of hours of operation at Friendly's Ice Cream, 213 Independence Ave. Manager Charles Clark promised he would close at 10 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and 11 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays.

•Postponed a hearing from Ocean Mist Cafe at Marina Bay to review hours of operation.

•Continued until Aug. 20 a request from Daniel J. Quirk for the inclusion of the former Quincy Ships Brewing, 579 Southern Artery to park 100-115 cars at the site. Police Chief William Falco said the issue should be taken up with the city councillors before a vote is taken fearing that Southern Artery would become a "parking lot."

•Granted a change of managers at Brooks Pharmacy, 132 Granite St., from Thomas Logan to Eugene Lacy.

•Granted a temporary gas license to Harvey Kertzman, doing business as Quincy Gas, 451 Quincy Ave., from Quincy, Ave. Global.

•Told Hancock Car Wash to restrict access to the business by 10 p.m., after complaints of noise from abutters. Owner Gaetano Cordone promised to close by 7 p.m. and construct a chain and also to close the dumpster.

•Granted an extension of the premises of Morrisette Post, Liberty St. for the South Quincy Italian Festival, Sept. 7.

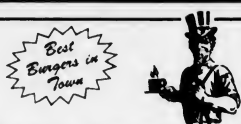

•Granted a one day license to the Quincy Sons of Italy to conduct a clam bake Saturday from noon to 7 p.m.

Romney Talks With, Listens To Local Business, Civic Leaders

By CRAIG SALTERS

Republican gubernatorial candidate Mitt Romney met Monday with Quincy business and civic leaders in an hour-long "Jobs of Tomorrow" meeting at Alba Bar and Grill, part of a day-long visit to the city highlighting his campaign's urban agenda.

Romney, accompanied by Kerry Murphy Healey, his lieutenant governor running mate, solicited input and fielded questions from a roundtable of roughly 30 participants which included such business leaders as Edward Keohane of Keohane Funeral Homes, who also serves as chairman of the Quincy Partnership; Atty. Thomas Williams; and Thomas Cataldo, a vice president of State Street.

Romney was introduced at the meeting by William Weed, Quincy district coordinator for the Romney-Healey ticket, and former Mayor and current Councillor Frank McCauley.

"Do businesses stay here, do they thrive here, or do they move somewhere else?"

asked Romney, explaining that he was there as much to gather local input as he was to put forth his "urban agenda" campaign message, a message which Romney said includes revitalizing troubled schools, attracting new business and jobs, and creating new housing.

What Romney heard were concerns over the state budget, transportation, the revitalization of Quincy Center, tourism, affordable housing, and the availability of federal funds for Massachusetts.

Business leaders also discussed the long idle Fore River Shipyard with Romney, who pointed to the tremendous potential of the site but acknowledged the yard had been "more of an anchor than an asset lately."

Responding to some of the issues raised, Romney touted his experience both as a businessman in the private sector and as the head of the recent Winter Olympics in Salt Lake City, Utah, promising to follow those models to improve services while cutting costs if elected governor.

"The list of things that we do (in state government) that are inefficient is just appalling," said Romney, who later added that, if elected, his administration would bring more balance to a heavily Democratic State House and "put in the sunlight what goes on quietly now."

Political World Turns -- A Little

The local political scene is still pretty much a man's world.

But it has been turned a little toward the plus side for women.

For the first time since Quincy became a city in 1889, women now hold the majority of seats on the school committee.

That historic milestone came about earlier this year when Elaine Dwyer was the City Council-School Committee joint convention choice to fill the school committee seat Bill Phelan vacated to run for mayor.

She topped 14 other candidates (10 male, four other female) to fill the two years left on Phelan's term.

Dwyer thus joined Vice Chairwoman Christine Cedrone, Jo-Ann Bragg and Linda Stice on the school committee.

Hardly noticed was the fact Dwyer tipped the majority on the board over to the feminine side for the first time in 113 years.

The three male members -- now in the minority -- are Ron Mariano, Michael McFarland and Phelan who as mayor is also school committee chairman.

Dwyer, incidentally, intends to keep her seat. She already has her 2003 election campaign underway.

But, women still have a long way to go to catch up to men politically.

Councillor and former Mayor Frank McCauley, researching for his book (Quincy, Massachusetts: A Political History 1889-2000) found that during that period, 456 individuals had been elected to municipal office here. Of which 436 were men and only 20 women.

(As of last year's city election, those figures now stand at: 460 individuals elected, 440 of them men with elected women remaining at 20).

There has been no woman in the mayor's office although four have tried to get there. Only three -- Edna Austin, Joanne Condon and Patricia Toland -- have made it to the city council. They have fared better on the school committee: 17 have won seats in elections. Dwyer, by convention choice, makes 18.

This despite the fact that women voters in Quincy outnumber men. If most of them got behind one woman we would have a Her Honor at City Hall.

Of course, one reason more men are elected than women is because more men run than women do.

And, why don't more women run?

Tom Mullaney of Standish Ave., a long-time political observer and a former candidate himself, thinks he may have one reason.

"I wonder," he says, "if today's world has not made it harder for women to run for office."

"Women have always been the major players in running the home and caring for the children but today they often have a full-time or part-time job to supplement family income."

"With that load, running for office is almost impossible. On the other hand, the same reason may make it easier for the male -- who might have had to work a second job -- to run for office."

Interesting observation.

But let's hope it doesn't keep women from running for elective office. Their voices are needed.

JOHN NOONAN, chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging, fondly remembers the award-winning movie, A Tree Grows in Brooklyn.

And the World War II popular song, Don't Sit Under The Apple Tree With Anyone Else But Me.

But the tree that is really special in his heart is the one that is now growing in Israel.

The Quincy Jewish War Veterans Post, Past Commander Irving Isaacson recently informed him, had a tree planted in Israel in his honor.

Noonan, who has received a number of awards down through the years, says: "There are many species of trees for all kinds of usage but having a tree planted in my honor is a most singular honor."

And, anyone who knows John will agree, a most deserving one.

LOST AND FOUND Dept.: Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, has been reunited with her gold charm bracelet she lost during the Sidewalk Festival.

We reported here last week that she lost the bracelet -- a cherished birthday gift from her son, Michael -- somewhere along Hancock St. while she was busy with festival activities.

Happy ending: Steve Costagliola of Ryder's Home Decor and More found it near that shop and was hoping someone would come back to claim it.

A fellow worker saw the item here and told Steve who returned it to a most grateful Maralin, who says: "It was like a miracle."

"I'm most grateful," she says. "A charm bracelet is so sentimental and irreplaceable. Steve made my day."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1918 POSTCARD is a view of the landing and floats of the Quincy Yacht Club at the end of Houghs Neck. The view is to the northeast with Peddock's Island in the distance. The boats in the foreground with the for-sale signs were offered through the boat livery owned by Jason Harvey. His yard and landing were just a few hundred feet from here. The Harvey name was synonymous with fishing in Quincy for over 80 years. Over the years the veranda of the clubhouse has remained a popular cooling off spot on hot summer days.

Stay Focused, Not Angry

I attended the Prayer/Healing Service at the Sacred Heart Church Tuesday, June 25, co-sponsored by Star of the Sea, Sacred Heart and St. Ann's parishes. The service was well attended. I was glad I attended, too.

At the conclusion of the service I talked with Monsignor Deeley from St. Ann's and we talked about my opinion of what St. Ann's is doing during the crisis. We apparently differ.

Monsignor Deeley wished I had spoken with him before penning my letter printed a few weeks back in The Quincy Sun. He has one opinion on Cardinal Law and I have another. However, what I do not want to do is finance an archdiocese that refuses to face up to the reality that Cardinal Law must go.

Also, and this is important: There is already enough pain out there over the crisis without me adding more pain.

I am angry because I feel everything I believed in has been affected by this abuse of power within the church. I lash out in anger and also add pain to the crisis. I can't wallow in this anger and that is why I have joined up with the voice of the people.

Monsignor Deeley, like most of our priests, is and are good. They do the best that they can. Sometimes I wish they would do more.

Anger, however, produces nothing but more anger and that's not what makes us good Catholics.

I apologize if my words have hurt people. That was not my intent. But I will continue to speak out on this issue and boycott all money appeals like the Cardinal Appeal or the Promise for Tomorrow fund. I also will continue to boycott the collection basket. When Cardinal Law is gone my money will return.

Action speaks louder than words but anger always hurts us. Stay focused, not angry.

Removal Of Water Tower Topic Of Community Meeting

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin will host a community meeting with DPW Commissioner Jay Fink today (Thursday) at 6:30 p.m. in the first floor community room of Quincy Medical Center, Whitwell St., to discuss the removal of the Cranch St. Water Tower.

The water tower is located on city property adjacent to the Highpoint development site.

Coughlin said the meeting will provide an opportunity for abutters, neighbors, and interested residents to ask questions and obtain more information about the removal process.

McIntyre Memorial Committee Presents Scholarships

The James R. McIntyre Memorial Committee announces the recipients of this year's scholarships.

The students, both from Quincy, are Caroline Maus of 3 Piermont St. and Erika Pettinelli of 51 Main St.

Maus will study engineering at The College of the Holy Cross. Pettinelli will study nursing at Curry College.

The scholarships are presented annually in memory of the late James R. McIntyre who served the city as state senator, mayor and city councillor.

Quincy's Yesterdays Boston Gear Employees Schedule Strike Vote

By PAUL HAROLD

Nine hundred employees of the Boston Gear Works, rep. resented by Local 4335, CIO Steelworkers, were scheduled to meet at Central Junior High School auditorium to consider a strike vote.

August 1 - 7

50 Years Ago

The two-year contract with the company had expired, with negotiations on going for the last month. Federal mediators were meeting in Boston to try to head off the strike which pitted union demands of a wage increase of 12 1/2 cents an hour with the company's offer of a 5 cent an hour increase.

John Walsh headed the bargaining committee for the union, assisted by Edward Baldwin, Charles Fallon, John Coddell and Clinton Sommers.

STREET CAR RAILS REMOVED FROM HANCOCK STREET

DPW Commissioner Charles Herbert announced that an 1800-foot stretch of street car tracks would be removed from East Squantum Street to the Atlantic bridge as part of a reconstruction project of Hancock Street.

Herbert estimated that the $11,000 cost of the project could be recouped by the sale of the scrap metal. The rail would be removed by the city's DPW while Old Colony Construction would do the road work, keeping the traffic open in both directions during the project.

DEMAND FOR BOOKS ON FLYING SAUCERS

Thomas Crane Library Director Gallen Hill reported an increased demand for books on flying saucers following recent news reports of sightings in the area.

"Every time flying saucers are reported or unexplained lights appear there is a usual increase in requests for books, magazines and other materials dealing with inter-planetary communications or transportation," he said. The library had increased its collection in that topic, with Scully's book Behind the Flying Saucers the most requested.

Marilyn Reisberg's Paintings Inspire Sculptor Quincy Artist Has 'The Midas Touch'

By CRAIG SALTERS

If Quincy artist Marilyn Reisberg didn't already know how sculptor Phillip Ratner felt about her work, she does now.

Reisberg, who donated a total of 15 of her paintings — all of which were inspired by Ratner's Biblically-themed sculptures — to the Dennis and Phillip Ratner Museum in Bethesda, MD, and the Isaac Frank Jewish Public Library in Washington D.C., visited the museum recently along with fellow Quincy Art Association member and photographer Nancy Santry.

"When he came into the office, I neatly went through the floor," said Reisberg, who so admired Ratner's work that she had telephoned his museum in Safed, Israel for permission to paint likenesses of them. "He put his arms around me and then he kissed every one of my fingers, saying, in Yiddish, 'It's because you have golden fingers.' It was probably the most thrilling thing that's happened in my 74 years of life."

Ratner's mention of "golden fingers" refers to Reisberg's technique of using gold foil in her artwork, delicately applying the three by four inch sheets of 22-karat gold to the canvas. "If you breathe, you lose the sheet," she says of the process.

Reisberg was then given a tour of the museum by none other than Ratner, who at one point joked that her paintings would make great sculptures if only he knew of a sculptor talented enough to make the reproductions.

A GOLDEN MOMENT: Sculptor Phillip Ratner took time recently to welcome Quincy's Marilyn Reisberg to the Dennis and Phillip Ratner Museum in Bethesda, MD, which will house some of Reisberg's paintings that were inspired by Ratner's work. Fellow Quincy Art Association member Nancy Santry accompanied Reisberg on the weekend visit.

"He was very gracious," said Reisberg, adding her personal thanks to museum curator Marcie Kostbar for making the experience possible.

Reisberg's paintings are replicas of and tributes to Ratner's works of sculpture, which include pieces such as And The Red Sea Opens and Jonah and The Whale. Two of her paintings are done on needlepoint canvas, a nod to some of Ratner's paintings done on needlepoint canvas made by his aunt.

"When I looked at his work, I saw a reconstruction of the Bible," said Reisberg, adding that Ratner's work can be found gracing Ellis Island and the base of the Statue of Liberty. "His work is incredible — there's really no other word."

Reisberg said she became determined to paint her own versions of his work after reading a recent article about him in a magazine — "I just knew I had to do it," she said — and then, with the help of Santry, mailed photos of her works to the museum. Within days, Reisberg said, she received a phone call from museum officials saying they were interested in adding her paintings to their permanent collection. "I was on cloud nine," she said.

Better still, Reisberg added, was that she was able to share the moment with her husband of more than 50 years, Bernard "Bernie" Reisberg, who died of a heart attack only a week later.

"I was able to share that initial joy," said Reisberg, "and I'm sure he was watching Nancy and I paint the town red in Washington D.C."

Reisberg has lived in Quincy for 55 years and has been working at Bernie's Formal Shop, which was once owned by her husband, for just as long, having begun work there in 1947 immediately following her marriage and three-day honeymoon. A three-time past president of the Quincy Art Association, she is also a life member of the Copley Society of Boston and has studied at the Massachusetts College of Art.

Reisberg's career as an artist began when her seventh grade art teacher asked her if she could attend art classes for a nickel at the Museum School in the basement of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

"My father said no but my mother said yes," recalled Reisberg. "I've been painting ever since."

THE GOLD FOIL technique used by Marilyn Reisberg is evident in her painting "Jonah and The Whale," a work inspired by the Ratner's sculpture.

Krisanthi Pappas Combo To Perform Aug. 8 At Library

Award-winning vocalist and songwriter Krisanthi Pappas will perform an outdoor concert Thursday, Aug. 8 from 12:30 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. on the grounds of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Square.

Pappas will be accompanied by her three-piece combo of keyboard, bass, and drums. The concert will feature lively jazz standards, swing favorites, original songs, and a special medley for children. The concert, which will conclude the library's summer concert series, is free and the site is accessible.

Pappas performs regularly at such venues as Regattabar, Scullers Jazz Club, and other clubs and restaurants in and around Boston. She recently staged a full theatrical production, Celebratin' Swing, which premiered to sellout audiences at the Orpheum in Foxborough. Her CDs have received high accolades and airplay on numerous radio stations in Boston and throughout the country.

As a full-time performer, Pappas has shared the stage with Chuck Mangione, Kevin Mahogany, and

KRISANTHI PAPPAS

Manhattan Transfer's Cheryl Bentley. She was the opening act for last summer's Metro South Jazz Festival which featured Grammy-award winning saxophonist Branford Marsalis, the Yellowjackets, Gary Burton, and Makato Ozone.

The Aug. 8 concert is funded in part by the Quincy Arts Council, which receives funding from the Massachusetts Arts Council. It will be held on the library's front lawn or, in case of inclement weather, in the library's atrium.

Concertgoers are encouraged to bring lawn chairs, beach blankets, and picnics.

Toastmasters Meet Aug. 5

Gorman Praised At Last License Board Meeting

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

At the end of Tuesday's License Board meeting, Chairman Joseph Shea asked Mayor William Phelan to speak about Fire Chief Thomas Gorman's last meeting as a license board member.

Before Phelan's talk, Shea had received a call about a family member being hospitalized, and had to leave. But before he did, he took the time to commend Gorman. He said it was hard to describe "how I feel about him" and that Gorman had attended more than 500 license board meetings.

He called him the "greatest advocate to the city that I have ever met," and said the new fire chief will have "great shoes to fill."

He said Gorman had the "most common sense of anyone I've ever worked with."

Phelan said Gorman made some of the issues he had to face since becoming mayor, much easier. He described him as a man who doesn't get excited easily or not at all with a knowledge of the city that is "unrivaled."

Calling him a "true gentleman" he said the city of Quincy appreciated him and thanked him for his many years of service.

RETIRE FIRE CHIEF Thomas Gorman.

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymond said in his 30 years serving the city, he had the "unique opportunity" to know Gorman as a constituent, a parishioner at St. John's Church and a distinguished fire chief.

He cited certain new construction in the city such as the new Thomas Crane Library, the Quincy Municipal Credit Union, Point Webster, Marshall School as only secondary to the quality of Gorman who he said, dedi-cates himself every day as loving father, husband, and a generation of public service.

Raymond described Gorman as someone "always with a level head-a sense of calm and justice."

Raymond said on behalf of all the city councillors, "thank you for the person you are, free with information, wisdom and guidance—the pulse of the city. We will miss your service and dedication."

Police Chief William Faleo said he had a lot of talks with Gorman and said he was the "most considerate person to the fire and police departments and one of the nicest people you'd ever meet—always supportive, helpful and knowledgeable."

Newly appointed Health Commissioner Drew Scheale, who said he had worked with Gorman on the license board for the past five years, also commended Gorman and thanked him for his service saying he would "miss him."

Det. Lt. Robert Perchard, liquor inspector and license board agent said it was a "pleasure to work with

Gorman who he described as "extremely fair."

He noted that when Gorman reminisced through the years, about a place or time, sometimes they were "completely forgotten" until Gorman would speak about them.

Walter White, director of inspection services said he had a "great deal of affection" and called him "open and friendly", taking White "under his wing" and thanked him for his guidance. He said he would miss their relationship and said he "looked forward to seeing him" from time to time.

After all of the accolades, Gorman who sat by continually wiping his brow, said he was "just a kid who grew up on Dysart St. with families who all helped each other."

He said his father Tom Gorman, who was also fire chief, sat on the license board for 20 years as chairman, and then recommended that the city clerk be chairman since his knowledge of the city was greater than other board members.

He said "when we were growing up, if you didn't come in to eat supper when you should have, you would get a boot."

He reminisced about working with former police chiefs Francis Finn, Frank Mullen, and City Clerk John Gillis. He said Shea is "cut from the same cloth" as Gillis and has a passion for everyone who tries to solve everyone's problems.

He said "this is a great city when you can walk safely down the streets." He said he would "miss Tuesdays and said he was proud to be a little part of it but time moves on."

He thanked "the media—the people who write for us."

BY MARIE D'OLINPIO

Dom's Colorful Entree

Picture this. A large stainless steel shallow pan with grilled chicken thighs, grilled portobello mushrooms, grilled asparagus and the colorful red, green and yellow peppers. All over rice. This one pan delicious entree was presented by our son Dom one warm night when I didn't have to cook. A rarity at our place. If I only had a camera! It even tasted better than it looked.

- 1-1/2 cups rice
- 8 chicken thighs
- 1 red pepper
- 1 green pepper
- 1 red pepper (cut in half and remove seeds in all peppers)
- 1/2 pound fresh asparagus

3 large portobello mushrooms

Cook the rice using 2 cups of chicken stock. While this is cooking, season the chicken thighs, and the vegetables and grill them on the grill at medium temperature. The vegetables will naturally be done before the chicken, just put aside.

In a large pan or platter, arrange the rice on the bottom, with the thighs placed on one corner, then the peppers alternately placed on the other, then the mushrooms and then the asparagus. What a combination. Dom kept the skin on the thighs and after removing it, they were so tasty. Joining us at this scrumptious meal was his son, Jonathan.

Ayers Urges Passage Of Child Protection Bill

Rep. Bruce Ayers recently addressed the House of Representatives urging passage of a bill to further protect children.

Ayers spoke in support of legislation regarding unlawful child enticement. The legislation would help prevent any attempt to lure, persuade or solicit small children within a vehicle, dwelling, building or other outdoor space in an attempt to violate or facilitate any crime against a child. Under this proposed new law, the adults would be prosecuted for inappropriate behavior and would be unable to remain immune to prosecution.

"What this legislation would do is establish penalties for enticing a minor under the age of 16 into a particular place with the intent to commit a sex crime or a crime against the child that would use force as an element," Ayers said.

The penalty, Ayers said, would be imprisonment in a state prison for up to five years, or in a house of correction for up to two and a half years, a fine of not more than $5,000 or both a fine and imprisonment.

"As legislators, we have an obligation to draft and adopt these laws to protect innocent children from predators and give the police and court system the power to pursue them," Ayers said. "Losing a child is a parents' worst fear and the people who prey on children and commit these evil acts belong behind bars."

Ayers praised the Committee on Criminal Justice, Chairman Steve Tobin of Quincy and Rep. Emile Goguen of Fitchburg, who sponsored the bill, for their work on the legislation.

Committee Planning 50th Christmas Parade

The Quincy Festival Committee is making big plans for the 50th anniversary Quincy Christmas Parade to be held Dec. 1.

The general public has been involved in selecting a parade theme. Mrs. Patricia Sagany of Weymouth won the contest with "Golden Jubilee of Christmas Treasures" on which the marching units and floats will be focused.

The parade will be replete with nostalgia based on the winning entries of the past years. Past Grand Marshals and past parade theme contest winners will participate on special floats.

Past winning high school bands, such as the Cotton Bowl prize-winning entries, will provide an encore appearance.

The Mount Rushmore giant flag will be unfurled in front of the Church of the Presidents. The entire marching units will pass under this flag and by the church where two Presidents of the United States, John Adams and his son, John Quincy Adams, are entombed with their wives.

6 Residents On J&W Dean's List

Six Quincy residents were named to the Dean's List for the spring semester at Johnson & Wales University in Providence, R.I.

TAKING TIME OUT From their "city day" visit to Quincy Monday, Republican gubernatorial candidate Mitt Romney and his running mate, Lieutenant governor candidate Kerry Healey, admire the statue of John Adams which graces the edge of City Hall Plaza.

Romney also vowed to be the state's leading advocate on issues such as tourism and federal funding and voiced disapproval of Chapter 40B, the so-called "anti-snob" housing regulation, insolving the state's affordable housing crisis. "It's been around since 1969 and it hasn't worked," said Romney, who instead proposed, if elected, to double the rate of new housing starts by the end of his term in office.

Romney's meeting with business leaders was just one stop in a day-long visit to Quincy, which began with his early morning arrival by the MBTA. Romney and Healey paid a visit to the Union Café on Billings Rd. and then met with seniors at 1000 Southern Artery. After their meeting with business leaders, the two held a roundtable discussion with educators at the Thomas Crane Public Library and also met with Mayor William Phelan.

Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino, whose office helped to coordinate the business roundtable, said he was impressed by Romney's understanding of business concerns.

"I think he did a very nice job listening and responding to some of the questions we had regarding employment and taxes," said Mannarino, adding that it was important that business voices be heard, especially in what is a slowing economy.

Paul O'Malley, owner of O'Malley Ace Hardware and a city captain for the Romney campaign, said he was glad his candidate could spend the day in Quincy addressing issues and meeting residents.

"Quincy is one of the top cities in this campaign," O'Malley said, "and you can't beat the personal touch, be it business or politics."

Thomas Kazanowski Loan Officer At South Shore Cooperative Bank

John O'Brien, president of the South Shore Cooperative Bank, recently announced the appointment of Thomas J. Kazanowski to the bank's growing lending team.

Kazanowski brings 25 years' experience in consumer and mortgage lending, compliance and management to his new position. Most recently, he managed the Quincy and East Bridgewater branches of South Shore Cooperative Bank.

Kazanowski will continue his involvement with the community through his participation in various organizations such as the Bridgewater Rotary, Chandler/Alden Elementary School PTA, Braintree Knights of Columbus, Hemlock Woods Neighborhood Association and Duxbury Youth Baseball. He will also represent the bank at community events and as a delegate to trade organizations.

An alumnus of Stonehill College, Kazanowski earned a bachelor's degree in history. He is a graduate of the Massachusetts School of Financial Studies (Massachusetts Savings Bank Association) and is currently enrolled in the MBA program at Boston University. He and his wife live in Duxbury with their two children.

REAL ESTATE

Quincy Community Action Homebuyer Workshops Begin Aug. 6

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. will sponsor two free workshops this month in which real estate experts teach participants about buying a home in today's tight market.

Each consisting of three sessions, the first workshop will be held Aug. 6, 8 and 13 in the second floor conference room at Quincy City Hall. The second workshop will be held Aug. 20, 22 and 27 at Tutts Public Library, 46 Broad St., Weymouth. Both will be from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Participants will receive a workbook with valuable web site and other reference material as well as a certificate, which is a prerequisite for favorable Mass. Housing mortgages and down payment closing cost assistance.

The workshops will be conducted in accordance with standards set by the Massachusetts Homeownership Collaborative. QCAP takes care to avoid directing homebuyers to any particular mortgage lender or other real estate professional.

The workshops are open to all regardless of residence or income level. For more information and to register or learn of future workshops, call Rona Goodman at 617-479-8181, ext. 115.

THROUGH THE EYES OF A SELLER

Savvy homebuyers will always purchase a home with an eye to ward selling it. That is, by setting their emotions aside for the moment and viewing a property with a critical eye, buyers can assess its investment potential. This helps buyers evaluate whether they are paying reasonable market value for the home. Then they might want to ask themselves if the property can be expected to remain competitive on the market. If now, what upgrades might be considered to make it so? Beyond that, buyers will want to rate the desirability of the neighborhood and its prospects for growth and appreciation. These are the hard questions that a real estate agent can help buyers answer so they can make better decisions.

Various investment vehicles over the past two years have proved to be less than stable. Despite the ups and downs of the economy, real estate continues to be a reliable investment. At CENTRAL REAL ESTATE, we recognize that purchasing a home is a significant financial and emotional investment. We assist buyers in identifying their preferences and making sound decisions for the long run. Call us at (617) 328-1312, or visit us at 128 McGrath Highway.

HINT: Real estate agents have information regarding appreciation rates that help prospective buyers evaluate the financial future of an area.

Golf Tourney Raises $13,500 For MainSpring Coalition For Homeless

The 18th annual MainSpring Charity Open golf tournament raised $13,500 for programs and services for the homeless in Southeastern Massachusetts.

Organizer Denis Lilla said the event, which was held June 13 at the Easton Country Club, has raised more than $200,000 since 1985 to help defray the operating costs of the shelter and its outreach programs.

Lilla, vice president of sales for tournament sponsor Jack Conway & Co., said 148 golfers representing more than 50 companies and organizations in the area participated in the tournament.

Founded in 1982, the MainSpring Coalition for the Homeless operates MainSpring House in Brockton, which provides shelter, food, clothing and services such as adult education courses, case management and referrals to individuals and families in need. The Conway House, MainSpring's facility for homeless families in Middleboro, was named in honor of Jack and Patti Conway to recognize their support of the organization.

For more information on MainSpring's programs, including how you can volunteer or contribute resources to the organization's programs, call Development Director Julie Vaitkus at (508) 587-5441.

The next major project being undertaken for MainSpring is the third annual "Dishin' it up for the Homeless" charity auction and dinner on Thursday, Oct. 17 at Christina's in Foxboro. The event will feature a silent and a live auction hosted Susan Wornick of WCVB-TV.

For tickets and information about donating an auction item, call Dawn Stevens at Jack Conway & Co., 781-871-0080, ext. 318.

Is Your Air Conditioner Too Big For Your Home?

(NU) — Can you have too much cooling power on a hot summer day? Can your air conditioner be too big for your home?

That is indeed possible, according to the manufacturer of Tempstar central air conditioners and heat pumps. If your air conditioner is too big, it may create several problems, including:

- Higher utility bills. Even the most efficient air conditioner will use too much electricity if it is too big for the house it is cooling.

- Uneven temperatures. An oversized air conditioner will operate on a short cycle, which will make it cool your house too quickly and then shut itself off. This keeps the fan from blowing long enough to spread the cool air throughout your home. Consequently, some rooms will feel too warm while others will feel too cool.
- High humidity. An oversized air conditioner may not control the humidity. High humidity can make your feel uncomfortably warm even when the air is cool.

- Mold and mildew. Poor humidity control can contribute to the growth of mold and mildew inside your home.

Before you buy a new central air conditioner, ask a qualified heating and cooling contractor to analyze your home's heating and cooling needs and perform load calculations to determine the proper size system for your home.

For added comfort, install a variable-speed gas furnace or air handler along with your new air conditioner. Variable-speed air furnaces and handlers are equipped with high-efficiency electric blower motors that make it economical to use the continuous fan mode for continuous airflow and maximum comfort. Variable-speed systems also operate more quietly.

Mini Fenway Park Field Moves Closer To Reality

Bill Creating Replica Park In West Quincy Signed Into Law

By CHRIS POISSON

Acting Gov. Jane Swift Monday afternoon signed a bill allowing Quincy-based Mini Fenway Park, Inc. to build a half-size replica of Fenway Park in West Quincy.

The non-profit organization will build the mini-Fenway on 12 acres of Metropolitan District Commission parkland off Ricciuti Drive near the Quarry Hills golf course project.

The law will take effect in 90 days from the signing. In the meantime, the foundation will be negotiating a long-term lease with the MDC and securing financing for the project with an estimated cost of $5 million to 10 million.

"This is like a nine-inning game," said Ron Iacobucci of Quincy, president of the South Shore and Neponset Valley Community Foundation, who formed Mini Fenway Park, Inc. with his brother, Rick. "We're in the first inning; we got the law passed. The second inning is the lease and third inning is the financing. We're taking it one step at a time."

The 3,000-fixed seat ballpark, which will also include some lawn seating, will accommodate Little League, T-Ball and Girls' softball. "Our focus is on young people," Iacobucci said. "It's an opportunity to grow future fans for the game and grow future baseball players."

The ballpark will include a scoreboard, lights and replicas of the famed Green Monster left field wall, Pesky Pole in right field, the Cigo Sign, the 600 Club and the Diamond Club.

"Definitely, it's going to be something that will add to the mayor's tourism initiative," Iacobucci said. "Clearly, it will be an attraction to Red Sox fans and their families."

The ballpark will also have features on Red Sox history, including one on Babe Ruth. "A lot of people are superstitious," Iacobucci said jokingly. "This is our contribution to reversing the curse. That way if the Red Sox do win the World Series, we'll get all the credit for it."

Also, there may be a dome facility adjacent to the park that would be used for clinics all year-round.

Iacobucci said he hopes construction will begin by the end of the year and that it's expected to take nine months to complete.

The idea for a mini-Fenway in West Quincy originated four years ago. Former Red Sox third baseman Tim Lincecum, who had built a "Little Fenway Park" in his hometown of Cincinnati, Ohio, wanted to QUINCY'S MINI-FENWAY — Acting Gov. Jane Swift signed a bill allowing Quincy-based Mini Fenway Park, Inc. to build a half-size replica of Fenway Park in West Quincy. bring another scaled-down version of the park to Quincy.

Gov. Paul Cellucci signed a law in 1998 allowing Nachring's Athletes Reaching Out Foundation to build the ballpark on the West Quincy site. However, the project stalled that year when Nachring sustained a right elbow injury that ended his career in Boston. Nachring returned to Cincinnati and now works in the front office of the Reds organization.

About a year ago, Iacobucci and his brother formed Mini Fenway Park, Inc. to move forward with the project.

"We're thrilled," Iacobucci said. "We now have the authority to move forward on the project. The project was dead and now we're reviving it. We still have a lot of work to do to make this a reality."

Mini Fenway Park, Inc. received strong support from Mayor William Phelan and the Quincy legislative delegation of Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps. Bruce Ayers, Steve Tobin and Ronald Mariano.

"I want to praise the Quincy delegation for their support and help in moving forward with this project," Iacobucci said.

In addition, the project also has the support of former Red Sox greats Luis Tiant and Carl Yazstremski, Quincy's Mary Pratt and Ted Spencer, curator of the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown—all of whom are Mini Fenway Park, Inc. board members.

15-Year-Old Babe Ruth Team Wins State Title

The Quincy 15-Year-Old Babe Ruth baseball team captured its first Eastern Massachusetts state championship since 1969 last Saturday afternoon with a 1-0 victory over Cambridge at King Field in South Boston.

Quincy will now compete in the New England Regional Tournament beginning this Saturday in Newport, Vt. The winner will advance to the World Series in Indiana.

The eight teams participating in the tourney, including Quincy, are the Maine, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Vermont state champions, the host team for Vermont and the Western Massachusetts state champion.

In championship game against Cambridge, pitcher John Folino tossed a mesmerizing two-hit shutout and struck out 10 and walked none to earn MVP honors.

Folino gave up both hits in the first inning. With runners at second and third and one out, he escaped the jam by punching out the cleanup hitter and inducing a weak groundball back to the mound.

In the bottom half, Quincy scored the lone run. Catcher Kevin Richardson led off with an infield single, moved to second on a throwing error and crossed home plate on Dave Jaehning's one-hop, ground-rule double over the right-center field fence.

Folino and Nick Malvesti collected the only other hits for Quincy, which is coached by Peter Williams, Bill Richardson and Chris DeLise.

Football Physicals Start Aug. 7

The Quincy High School football program announces several important dates for the preseason.

Physicals will be held Wednesday, Aug. 7, from 8 a.m. to noon at the nurse's office. North Quincy will hold physicals the following week, Aug. 15, from 8 a.m. to noon at the nurse's office.

Quincy will issue equipment to seniors and juniors Monday, Aug. 5, and to sophomores and freshmen Wednesday, Aug. 7, both from 6 to 8 p.m.

The Pigskin Skill and Conditioning Camp will be held Aug. 12-16 at Braintree High School from 9 a.m. to noon. Cost is $80 plus an additional $5 for the bus, which leaves the high school at 7:45 a.m.

Mandatory conditioning days will take place Aug. 19-21 from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. Players can wear T-shirts and shorts and must participate in three conditioning days prior to a practice that includes contact.

BRAKE FLUID FLUSH

Because the brake fluid that powers your vehicle's brake system attracts moisture and may eventually become contaminated, it should be flushed regularly. This is especially important on ABS-equipped vehicles because small dirt particles in the fluid or other contamination can destroy the pump that is critical to the operation of the ABS (antilock braking system). Without ABS, wheels can lock up in an emergency stop and throw the vehicle into a dangerous skid. Regular flushing of the brake system and replacement of the brake fluid, as per the recommended service interval listed in the owner's manual (typically every two to three years, or so) will prevent ABS damage and preserve braking optimum power.

For safety sake it is important to keep your car's braking system in top operating condition. This includes flushing the brake fluid. Here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, we are small enough to provide friendly, personal service and large enough to have the latest, most modern equipment and outstanding ASE Certified technicians. We also use the AllData CD-ROM based system for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. Here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550) we are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored.

FORTY MEMBERS of the New York fire and police departments participated in the recent Jim Kane Sugarbowl 5 Miler. They were guests of the I. Street Running Club.

Quincy Firefighters Salute NYC Firefighters, Police At Jim Kane Road Race

The Quincy Fire Department joined the Boston and Cambridge fire departments in saluting 40 members of the New York City fire and police departments at the recent Jim Kane Sugarbowl 5 Miler.

The New York City police and fire department runners were in Boston as guests of the I. Street Running Club.

Prior to the start of the race, the New York guests were driven to the starting line in a procession led by a motorcycle contingency of police representing Boston, Milton, the MBTA and the State Police.

Police runners rode in MBTA police vans and the firefighters followed in on trucks from Quincy, Boston and Cambridge. Quincy's new ladder 1 truck, guided by Fire Chief Tom Gorman with Mayor William Phelan also on board, took part.

A heroes salute was provided by the Boston Fire Boat and a small navy of police boats as the procession passed the South Boston waterfront. Upon reaching the starting line at the Bayside ExpoCenter, the crowd broke into a raucous applause that humbled the honored guests. At the close of the pre-race program, a Massachusetts State Police helicopter provided a fly-by salute.

This year's race attracted a competitive field of runners from all over New England and beyond. The record proceeds will be distributed to a number of local charities, including Father Bill's Place homeless shelter in Quincy.

Tracy Gaines Cycling To Fight Lung Disease

Tracy Gaines of Quincy will pedal from Plymouth to Provincetown in September with other bicycling enthusiasts to raise awareness and funds for the American Lung Association.

This will be Gaines' first year participating in the trek. She will ride with fellow members of the Power Puffs Team.

"We're really excited about it," said Gaines, who was motivated to cycle since one of her sons struggles with asthma. "We feel positive about it because it's for a good cause. We're psyched."

The 18th Autumn Escape Bike Trek will be held Sept.

20-22. Individuals from local towns are putting their time and energy into the fight against lung disease. Many suffer from lung disease or know someone who does.

"What is unique and special about this event is that these people come together for a weekend, united in making a difference in the fight against lung disease," said Martha Waldron, executive director of the American Lung Association.

Over the three-day, 160-mile trek, cyclists will tour the Cape Cod Canal, the Falmouth Shining Sea Bike Trail, the Old King's Highway and the Cape Cod National Seashore. Each cyclist pays a $50 registration fee and raises a minimum of $500 in pledges.

A two-day Saturday to Sunday option is also available. Those who participate in this level must raise a minimum of $400 in pledges. Money raised through pledges and donations will qualify cyclists to win incentive prizes. Prizes include a gift certificate, a four-day stay on Cape Cod and more.

For more information contact the American Lung Association of Greater Norfolk County at 508-668-6729.

Quincy Granite Host Randolph Saturday

EASTERN FOOTBALL

The Quincy Granite will host the Randolph Oilers Saturday night at 7 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Coming off a bye week, the Granite sits atop the EFL's Eastern Conference with a 2-0 record, including a sensational 27-22 victory over the mighty Marlboro Shamrocks in Week 2.

In that game, first-year wideout Jeff Lange caught two touchdown passes, including the game-winner, to earn EC Offensive Player of the Week honors and safety John Skabeikis had two interceptions to pick up EC Defensive Player of the Week honors.

Quincy will be facing a Randolph team that has dropped its last two games. After winning its season opener, Randolph (1-2) has fallen to the Middleboro Cobras and to the Roxbury Panthers, 20-15, last week.

Quincy leads the series history, 3-0. It won 14-12 and 19-14 last season and won 26-16 in 2000.

Pat McDermott To Bike Ride In 11th Pan-Mass Challenge

Former City Councillor Patrick McDermott will take part in his 11th Pan-Massachusetts Challenge this weekend.

Now in its 23rd year, PMC is a 194-mile bike ride from Sturbridge to Provincetown. McDermott will leave Sturbridge Saturday morning at 6 and ride to Bourne, where he'll spend the night in the Mass Maritime dormitories. He'll ride to Provincetown Sunday morning.

The PMC serves as the largest single fund-raiser for the Jimmy Fund of the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, having raised over $68 million for cancer treatment and research. These efforts have saved untold lives and resulted in innumerable cancer research breakthroughs.

McDermott continues to see the ride as an opportunity for self-rehabilitation, having undergone double hip replacement surgery in 1998.

"I was grateful to hear that cycling plays an important role in the recovery from hip replacement surgery," McDermott said. "I made it my own personal challenge to be back in the ride every year. To know that a patient is enduring a chemotherapy treatment, struggling for his or her life, makes my own recovery seem quite minimal. I ride for them."

McDermott, who in years past has rode alongside his brother, Quincy police patrolman Chris McDermott, has raised over $35,000 for the Dana Farber Cancer Institute.

"This event is truly remarkable," McDermott said. "Over 3,500 riders, 75,000 sponsors and countless volunteers make PMC weekend a unique event."

In order to participate, each rider must raise a minimum of $2,000.

'Battle Of The Beach' Boxing Event At WaterWorks Saturday

Local amateur boxers will participate in "Battle at the Beach" Saturday, Aug. 3, at WaterWorks in Marina Bay, Quincy.

Featuring 12 three-round fights, the event will be held from 4 to 8 p.m. Tickets, which may be purchased the night of the fight, cost $12 for adults and $6 for seniors and children under age 16. Proceeds will benefit the South Shore Police Athletic League. For more information about the event call 617-689-0600.

The event will feature Silver, Gold and New England champions, including Mark DeLuca, Nick Morganelli, Vinny Workman, Matt DeLuca, Zack DeLuca, Ryan Kilzinski, John Paul Keene, Chris Traietti, Sean Kennedy and Jason Kelly.

The boxers train at the gym at 1452 Hancock St. and are looking for sponsors for the event. For more information about becoming a sponsor, call Duxbury police chief Mark DeLuca at 781-389-0118.

Lung Association Golf Tourney Aug. 19

The American Lung Association of Greater Norfolk County will hold its 11th annual Clean Air Classic Golf Tournament Monday, Aug. 19, at the South Shore Country Club.

The tourney will tee off with a 1 p.m. shotgun start. Fee is $150 per individual and $600 per foursome, which includes 18 holes of golf, cart, awards dinner, auction and raffle.

There are also sponsorship and donation opportunities, including sponsoring a tee or a foursome, or donating a raffle/auction item, gift certificate or items for the golfer's goodie bags.

Proceeds from the tourney will benefit the Lung Association's efforts to fight lung disease through research, education and advocacy. Lung disease is the No. 3 killer in the nation, claiming more than 350,000 lives every year.

Last year's tournament raised more than $30,000.

For more information contact Alicia Greene, golf tournament coordinator, at 508-668-6729.

Wollaston Beach Volleyball Challenge Nets $1,200

REMINGTON'S OF BOSTON captured the championship at the recent fourth annual Wollaston Beach Volleyball Challenge. The event raised $1,200 to benefit the Wollaston Beach Clean-up Fund designed to promote educational and recreation events along the beach. Front row, from the left: Andrew Smith, Ed Smith, Beth Veneto and Jackie Niosi. Back row: Erin Barry and Jared Downey. They received a $25 gift certificate to Decathlon Sports, beach chairs and championship T-shirts.

"IT WASN'T ME" of the South Shore YMC in Quincy finished in second place for the fourth straight year. From the left are: Marcia Harris, Victor Moquin, Bernadette Wisniewski, Wing Chau, Ken Shurtluff, Scott Toupin and Makini Thompson.

Quincy Recreation Holds Knock-Out Tournament

The Quincy Recreation Department recently held its third annual Knock-Out Tournament at the Fenno Street Playground.

Over 50 children from each of the city's 19 playgrounds were in attendance. The event was founded by retired sports supervisor Patrick McDonough and continued by sports specialist Ryan Herlihy, specialist Kevin Walsh, Joe MacRitchie and Jonathan Brillo.

The tourney was divided into three age groups for boys and girls. Each age group competed against other children in their own district with the top three finishers in each district moving onto the finals.

In the Midget Division, Michelle Connolly of Kincaide Park captured the championship on the girls' side, while Chris Connolly of Kincaide Park secured the title on the boys' side.

In the Junior Division, Catherine O'Connell prevailed over last year's champion and Tim Kerins topped Mike Lemay to give Adams Park its first title in three years.

In the Senior Division, Elyse O'Connell defeated Aileen Croke, both of Montclair Park, to claim park bragging rights, while Matt Jaehnig knocked off Joey Carita in the final matchup of the day.

Son of Mary and John Orlando of South Quincy, he used an 8-iron on the 150-yard 10th hole.

Saturday On Wollaston Beach

Tony's Clam Shop to Host Children's Sand Castle Contest

Tony's Clam Shop will host its annual Children's Sand Castle Contest on Wollaston Beach Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Registration for the event will take place across from Tony's Clam Shop on Quincy Shore Drive at 10 a.m. the day of the event. There is no cost to participate. Free pails and shovels are available while they last.

Prizes will be awarded to winning creations, compliments of Rhyme & Reason, a Quincy-based toy store. All children who participate will receive a coupon for a free kids slush puppy at Tony's Clam Shop. Age groups for judging purposes will be 6 and under, 7-10 and 11-14.

"This is another exciting event for us and for local families," said Karen Djerf of Tony's Clam Shop. "Each year, for the past eight years, we have enjoyed the creative sand castles and smiling faces of the children who take part in this fun-filled day. It is always a festive, family event."

In addition to Tony's

Clam Shop, the event is sponsored by Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro, Rhyme & Reason and the Metropolitan District Commission.

Although the event is free, those who wish to contribute to the Wollaston Beach Clean-up Fund, which is designed to promote educational and recreation events along the beach, may send a donation to: The Wollaston Beach Clean-up Fund, 230 Marlboro St., Quincy, MA 02170, or drop it by Tony's Clam Shop.

Joe Thurston Wins Three Gold Medals In Tae-Kwon-Do

Joe Thurston captured three gold medals in tae-kwon-do at the recent Canadian-American Police and Fire Games in Spokane, Wash.

A lifelong Quincy resident and Hull policeman, Thurston placed first in Forms, also called "Kata," successfully defended his title in Point Fighting and turned the hat trick by winning the Olympic-style full contact fighting event.

A 14-year veteran of martial arts, Thurston first learned the sport from John Payton of Payton's Professional Karate Center, 223 Parkingway, Quincy, where he is still a student as well as a teacher.

"I enjoy it," Thurston said. "You get a little bit of everything, the whole fighting aspect of it, and tae-kwon-do is a very traditional martial art."

Thurston has also been an instructor at the Quincy branch of the South Shore YMCA for the past year, teaching tae-kwon-do to adults and children in addition to women's kick boxing and women's self-defense classes.

Although he won't be competing in the Olympics — "I've always wanted to do it, but I just don't have the time between my job and teaching" — Thurston will still be busy the next couple of years.

He plans to travel to Barcelona, Spain, next year to take part in the World Games — an event in which he earned a bronze medal a year ago — and in 2004 he will try to defend his gold medals at the Canadian-American Games to be held in London, Ontario.

"Overall, it keeps me in great shape and keeps me focused in life," Thurston said. "It definitely helps on the job. Not that I'm kicking people, but it gives you the confidence you need every day."

Skin Cancer And The Summer Sun: Precautions You Can Take Today

The American Academy of Dermatology (AAD) says skin cancer is the most common form of cancer and that overexposure to sunlight is its most common cause. The AAD also notes skin cancer rates and deaths from skin cancer are on the rise in the United States.

People who burn repeatedly are at the highest risk, but even those with dark pigmented skin who rarely burn can get skin cancer. The best defense against skin cancer brought on by overexposure to the sun is to guard the skin against the sun's ultraviolet (UV) rays.

Precautions

- Avoid the sun between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. when ultraviolet rays are the strongest.
- Wear tightly woven, light colored clothing, and a wide brimmed hat.
- Use sunscreen with a Sun Protection Factor (SPF) of 15 or more.

The AAD says the use of sunscreen should be considered part of a sun avoidance program, not as an excuse for increasing exposure to the sun to get a suntan.

Understanding And Selecting Sunscreen

Sunlight is divided into three ultraviolet categories: UVA, UVB and UVC. UVC is blocked by the earth's ozone layer. UVB is largely responsible for sunburns, and UVA causes tanning, wrinkles and some sunburns.

If you can't avoid sunlight altogether, there are many sunscreen products on the market that offer some protection. These products have varying levels of SPF, which refers to the amount of UVB protection they provide.

Properly applied products with an SPF of 15 will allow a person to be out in the sun without getting a sunburn 15 times longer than if they were not wearing a sunscreen. Products identified as "broad spectrum" or "UVA block" provide protection from UVA and UVB rays and will prevent both burning and tanning. If you're looking for a product that will afford the most protection, choose a sunscreen with an SPF of 30 or more.

When And How To Apply Sunscreen

If you wait until you're in full sunlight before applying sunscreen or if you don't use enough, you may find yourself getting burned. The AAD has some simple recommendations to follow:

- Apply sunscreen 15 to 30 minutes before going outside so the skin can absorb it.
- Pay particular attention to those parts of your body that receive the most sunlight: your face, hands and arms.
- Don't skip. Most adults need one ounce (the amount that would fill a shot glass) to cover exposed areas adequately.
- Reapply normal sunscreen at least every two hours and waterproof sunscreen after no more than 80 minutes in the water.

"I always tell my patients about the ABCs," says Dr. Karen Rothman, a dermatologist. "Avoid the sun. Block it if you can't avoid it. Clothe yourself protectively."

For more information about skin cancer and protecting yourself from the harmful effects of the sun, visit the American Academy of Dermatology Web site (www.aad.org).

A Message From South Shore Mental Health Reduce Stress In Your Life

By PHILIP QUINN, Sc.D.

Stress is a common problem in modern day society and can be caused by any number of things, such as having too much to do in too little time, not getting enough sleep, changing careers, buying a house, divorce or even just sitting in traffic.

But too much stress can be very harmful to our health and well-being. It can cause physical, emotional and behavioral disorders, as well as affect our personal and professional relationships. However, there are many things that we can do to reduce the stress in our lives.

Take A Personal Inventory

Take a personal inventory to look for the sources of stress in your life. Ask yourself: is your stress coming from your job, family, environment or personal life style?

How do you respond to stress? During stressful times do you experience stress physically (backache), emotionally (feel sad), cognitively (think bad things about yourself) or behaviorally (eat or drink alcohol more)?

Remember The Three A's

Alter, Avoid or Accept your situation. Try to alter your situation. For example, ask for help from a friend when you have a difficult task to complete. Try to avoid some unpleasant tasks. Sometimes we have to be assertive and say no to things we do not have the time to do. Try to accept certain situations. Sometimes we get upset over little things that we just have to accept.

Change Your Health Habits

Eat healthier foods. Stay away from high fat and greasy foods. Remember, healthy foods increase energy, while unhealthy foods reduce energy.

Exercise More

Engaging in exercise activities (walking, jogging, dancing, swimming) for 30 minutes a day, approximately four times a week increases our body's ability to resist physical stress. Remember to consult your primary care physician before starting any exercise program.

Make It A Point To Relax

Practice relaxation, meditation, yoga or self-hypnosis.

Take Mini Stress Breaks

Several times a day stop what you are doing, take a deep breath and think of a relaxing scene. For example, visualize a relaxing beach scene or a beautiful mountain vista.

Develop A Hobby

Do something that you always wanted to do, such as join a book group or take up tennis.

Have Fun

Plan at least one fun thing to do each week. Learn to balance work and play.

Plan Ahead

If you have a major change coming in the future, plan ahead. With appropriate planning we can reduce the impact of stress.

Remember, we all have stress in our lives, but there are things we can do to help minimize the effects of this stress. If you think you or someone you know may be under significant stress and could benefit from talking to a professional, Bayview has licensed psychologists, social workers and psychiatrists who can help.

Quinn is a license psychologist with Bayview Associates, a program of South Shore Mental Health. South Shore Mental Health is a community resource providing mental health and substance abuse services throughout the South Shore, southeastern Massachusetts and Cape Cod. For more information call 617-847-1950 or visit www.ssmhl.org.

PIERCING QUESTIONS

Recent research shows that people who have tongue piercings are most likely to have receding gums and chipped teeth. Almost 20% of the people studied who wore tongue jewelry experienced some gum recession. The percentage jumped to 50% among those who wore long barbells (longer than 0.64 inches) for more than two years. It is thought that the longer barbell may scrape up against the gums during talking or eating. In addition, about 30% of those who wore short barbells for 2-4 years had chipped teeth, while about 45% who wore the short version for more than four years had chipped teeth. Almost half who wore the long barbells for more than 4 years had problems with chipped teeth.

This column on tongue piercing is prepared as a public service. Teeth are meant to last a lifetime. They will take care of you, if you take care of them. If you need answers to questions about any dental health care issue, don't hesitate to contact us at (617) 479-6220. We will discuss all your options with you, and our recommendations for dental treatment are always in the best interest of the patient. We're located at 44 Greenleaf St., where we're currently accepting new patients. We offer the services of anesthesia and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. The study mentioned above is the first to look at the long-term implications of wearing jewelry on the tongue.

SCOTT DEWARE*A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK*GOALS FOR LIVING TODAY

I will live through the next 12 hours and not try to tackle all life's problems at once.

I will improve my mind. I will learn something useful. I will read something that requires effort, thought and concentration.

I will be agreeable, I will look my best, speak in a well modulated voice, be courteous and considerate.

I will not find fault with my friend, relative or colleague. I will not try to change anyone but myself.

I will have a program. I might not follow it exactly, but I will save myself from two enemies—Hurry and Indecision.

I will exercise my character in three ways. I will do a good turn and keep it a secret. If anyone finds out it won't count.

I will do two things I do not want to do just for the exercise.

I will be unafraid to enjoy especially what is beautiful and believe that as I give to the world the world will give to me.

Salome's Stars
 ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A turn in a relationship upsets the amorous Arian, who is puzzled by Cupid's romantic antics. Be patient and considerate. The confusion will soon sort itself out.
 TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a good time for travel-loving Taurans to take off for fun-filled jaunts to new places. And don't be surprised if Cupid tags along for what could be a very eventful trip.
 GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You appear to be of two minds about continuing a relationship that seems to be riding roughshod over your emotions. A frank talk could help you decide one way or the other.
 CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Stepping back from a relationship problem provides a new perspective on how to deal with it. Meanwhile, watch your words. Something said in anger now could backfire later.
 LEO (July 23 to August 22) A changing situation makes the Big Cat uneasy. But hold on until things settle down around the 4th. Meanwhile, continue your good work on that still-unfinished project.
 VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A decided improvement in a work-place situation results in an unexpected, but very welcome, added benefit for everyone. Personal relationships also improve.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Money matters remain a bit unsettled but will soon ease into the kind of stability you appreciate. Meanwhile, an expanding social life offers a chance to make new friends.
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Use an unexpected roadblock in your monetary dealings to reassess your financial plans and make changes, if necessary. It will soon be smooth sailing again.
SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Aspects of love are strong for both single and paired Sagittarians. Professional dealings also thrive under the Sag's clever handling of difficult situations.
CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Set a realistic goal and follow it through to completion. Remember: You're more likely to impress the right people with one well-done job than with lots of jobs left undone.
AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You like to plan ahead. That's fine. But be prepared to make some changes because of an unsettled period that influences your aspects through the 4th.
PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A brief phase of instability affects your usual work cycle. Use the time to catch up on chores around the house or office. Things settle down soon after the 4th.

BORN THIS WEEK: You love being the center of attention and would probably be a big success in show business.

The workshop is in celebration of National Kids Day. More than 150,000 children and their parents are expected to participate in the free nationwide event.

Supported by the Boys & Girls Clubs of America, KidsPeace and other leading youth organizations, National Kids Day was established to celebrate and honor children through the gift of meaningful time. As a national sponsor of Kids Day, the Home Depot Kids Workshop shops are designed to demonstrate the importance of quality time shared between children and their parents or guardians and the sense of accomplishment instilled through do-it-yourself skills.

At the Saturday workshop at all Home Depot stores, each child and an accompanying parent or guardian will work together to build a window box planter to take home.

Children will receive a free, kid-sized orange apron and a National Kids Day "Making Memories" guide.

Aug. 3 from 10 a.m. to noon.

The workshop is in celebration of National Kids Day. More than 150,000 children and their parents are expected to participate in the free nationwide event.

Supported by the Boys & Girls Clubs of America, KidsPeace and other leading youth organizations, National Kids Day was established to celebrate and honor children through the gift of meaningful time. As a national sponsor of Kids Day, the Home Depot Kids Workshop shops are designed to demonstrate the importance of quality time shared between children and their parents or guardians and the sense of accomplishment instilled through do-it-yourself skills.

At the Saturday workshop at all Home Depot stores, each child and an accompanying parent or guardian will work together to build a window box planter to take home.

Children will receive a free, kid-sized orange apron and a National Kids Day "Making Memories" guide.

Michael Joyce Candidate For County Treasurer

Braintree Town Treasurer Michael J. Joyce announces his candidacy for Norfolk County treasurer.

A Democrat, he has been Braintree town treasurer since 1988 and a resident of the town for 31 years.

Joyce was awarded the Certified Massachusetts Municipal Treasurer (CMMT) certificate from the Massachusetts Collectors and Treasurers Association in 1992, the first treasurer in the town's history to receive it. He has been recertified for the past 10 years.

Joyce is a member of the Knights of Columbus, the Braintree Men's Club, American Legion Post 86, and a charter treasurer of the Braintree Lodge of Elks.

He is a graduate of Northeastern University with a degree in accounting.

He and his wife, Catherine (Ruddy), live at 418 Elm St. and will celebrate their 34th wedding anniversary next spring. They have one daughter, Michele, who is married to Mark Blair, and two grandchildren, 7-year-old Alexandra Catherine and 3-year-old Cameron James.

Those interested in joining his campaign for county treasurer or seeking more information may contact the committee at 781-848-5397.

docking lease with the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority and when it received $2 million from the state to refurbish the ship.

Informed there was a report that the Salem was having trouble paying its bills, Condon-Walsh said that was not so.

"We are doing well raising money with our special activities."

She pointed to the Scout Overnight Program that has been run by her son as a volunteer.

The program, in which boy scouts spend the night aboard the Salem, drew 5,000 scouts and raised over $200,000 to help support the ship the past year, she said.

Condon-Walsh has returned to volunteer work handling the ship's financial books and matters.

Executive director since April 2000, and a volunteer and board member before that, Condon-Walsh said she asked to step down, as executive director, because:

"I was tired and I thought it was time for someone younger to take over."

She said her son, who had been a volunteer aboard the ship for a year and a half, expressed interest and was appointed by Sheets.

Hall, acknowledging there is debate over who appoints the chairman, said:

"My interest is whatever I can do that is in the best interest of the Salem. I want to be sure the ship is preserved and so is the image of the U.S. Navy."

License Granted For New House Of Pancakes

(Cont'd From Page 1)

In giving a little history about IHOP, Fleming said the first one opened in 1958 in Taluca Lake in Los Angeles. He said at the present time, there are well over 1,000 IHOPs both in our 40 states and in Canada.

Fleming said it has publicly been traded in the New York Stock Exchange for 44 years.

He noted that after the Sept. 11 attack on the World Trade Center in New York City, IHOP gave daily meals at Ground Zero, depicting their "warm tradition" which will now be "part of the Quincy community."

At a cost of $1,200,000 Fleming said the restaurant will have a state of the art equipment, handicapped parking, properly sprinkled and will be an "asset to the city of Quincy."

Right now, the closest IHOP is in Norwood.

Chairman Joseph Shea asked Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association what she thought about IHOP coming to Quincy.

Manning said it was a "fantastic" move and one addition that we don't have in the city.

As Fleming concluded his presentation about IHOP, he told Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, who attended his last license board meeting that he would be "sorely missed" and thanked him for his "professional fairness"

Removing Weeds, Brush Overgrowth Inmates Pitch In To Help Clean Quincy Point Area

Inmates from the Norfolk County House of Correction have been helping to clean debris and clear tall weeds and brush overgrowth in the Quincy Point area.

Nine inmates from the House of Correction work release program were assigned to the cleanup by Sheriff Michael Bellotti at the request of City Council President and Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi.

The inmates are supervised by House of Correction officials and Quincy Police Department community police officers.

Assisting in the work are members of Local 1139, Department of Public Works, and Park Department.

Last Week, the cleanup was along East Howard St., portions of South St., Des Moines Rd., Cleverly Ct. and Quincy Ave.

This week the crew returned Wednesday for the second annual cleanup at the Martensen Street Senior Complex which will continue through Friday.

The inmates are removing trash and brush overgrowth and weeds.

"I want to express my thanks and appreciation to all involved in this project with special thanks to Sheriff Bellotti for authorizing the use of the inmates to provide this meaningful public service to clean many Ward 2 sidewalk areas, making them more passable for pedestrians," Raymondi said.

"My special thanks also to the leadership and membership of Local 1139 for allowing this much needed work to be accomplished."

Raymondi and Bellotti are hosting a free cookout Saturday from noon to 3:30 p.m. on the Martensen Street complex grounds.

The cookout, Raymondi said, is to celebrate the successful Neighborhood Watch program and the completion of the Martensen Street cleanup.

Participating with Raymondi and Bellotti will be representatives of the Quincy Housing Authority, the Police Department and the Quincy Citizens Police Academy Alumni Association.

The cookout will feature entertainment, music, hot dogs, hamburgers and cold drinks for children and adults.

Undergoing 8 Weeks Training Fire Dept. Gets 14 New Firefighters

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Quincy has 14 new firefighters replacing recent retirees. Mayor William Phelan announced Tuesday.

He said the 14, - 11 of those from Quincy - were sworn in and began training Monday at the Fire Department's training facility at the Fore River shipyard.

They will undergo eight weeks of training and then be assigned to various fire stations in the city.

Phelan noted, however, that with the 14 new men, the Fire Department is still down 10 to 12 firefighters from last year.

Personnel Director Roberta Kety said it has been determined that 25 firefighters were needed, but because of budgetary restraints only 14 could be hired at this time.

The new firefighters are:

John T. Austin, Michael S. Carroll, Michael F. Furey, Paul M. Kearns, John J. Killen, William C. Knox, John V. Scribi, Andrew P. Smith, Jason B. Tierney, Raymond R. Waldron and Jason R. Walker, all of Quincy; Robert P. Johnson of Whitman; Timothy A. Marks of Billerica; and Thomas McGovern of South Boston.

Panel To Hear Shipyard Plans Aug. 15

Potential developers of the Fore River shipyard will meet with a panel Thursday, Aug. 15 at City Hall to present their plans.

The panel, proposed last month by Congressman William Delahunt and Mayor William Phelan will hear public presentations from would-be developers at the shipyard.

The panel, they said, will keep residents of Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and the region informed in the development process.

And it will also, they noted help fulfill a U.S.

Maritime Administration (MARAD) promise that any federal request for redevelopment proposals would contain explicit commitments to the region's best interests.

They also said that the meeting would permit potential bidders to make informal public presentations to a panel of local, state, and federal elected officials.

Phelan said many shipyard development proposals have been brought to many different groups and that the panel would serve to weed out the proposals and give serious consideration to those proposals which deserve it.

"It will be good to have everyone on the same page as to what the options are," he said.

MARAD officials are in the process of taking title of the more than 100-acre parcel formerly in the hands of failed shipyard developer Massachusetts Heavy Industries (MHI), which defaulted on MARAD guaranteed loans and whose reorganization plans were dismissed in March of this year.

Hancock Park Raises Money For American Heart Association

Hancock Park Assisted Living Community and Rehabilitation Center recently raised several hundred dollars to give to the American Heart Association.

Staff, residents, and families baked cupcakes for a cupcake sale, and a raffle was held for a handmade blanket, a limo ride, and a night at the Sheraton Tara.

Proceeds from these events were donated to the American Heart Association.

Hancock Park is owned and managed by Norwell-based Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group, and is a 142-bed skilled rehabilitation and nursing center that also Hancock Park Recreation Directors Christine Martin (L), and Melissa Haas (R) pose with Kerri Meadr (C) from the American Heart Association.

$7.5 Million Included In Bill To Complete Town Brook Flood Control

The long-sought completion of the Town Brook Flood Control Project has taken an apparent major step toward reality.

State Rep. Ron Mariano reports that $7.5 million earmarked to complete the project is included in an environmental bond bill passed by the House of Representatives and the Senate.

The bill, he said, will now go to Acting Gov. Jane Swift for review and her approval.

If signed by her, the Metropolitan District Commission would be granted the power to choose which projects get funded under the legislation.

"All we can hope is that the MDC understands the need to complete this project in as timely a manner as possible," Mariano said.

"You can be sure that I will be working with the MDC to highlight the importance of this construction," Mariano offered an amendment to the bond bill in June to include the study, design and construction of the Town Brook Flood Control Project. It includes the $7.5 million to fund the project.

"I am very happy with this compromise, having worked on this project since first elected," said Mariano. "The residents of Bigelow and Elm Streets as well as Miller Stile Road and the surrounding area have waited patiently for the completion of this project."

"Over the years, I have had the opportunity to visit residents and witness first hand the severity of the flooding conditions. It is my hope that this will finally bring some relief to these residents."

Severe flooding after storms affects hundreds of homes in the area and has been increasing in severity as the flood zone expands, Mariano said.

The Army Corps of Engineers opened a 4,000-foot storm tunnel in 1997 which helped alleviate some of the conditions but the final phase of the $55 million project has yet to be completed.

In addition to solving the flooding problem for homeowners, completion of the project would also give a boost to plans for a residential development at the Hancock municipal parking lot.

National Park Service staff and members of the Quincy Tourism Advisory Council to welcome visitors to Quincy and provide them with cultural, recreational and historical opportunities.

Assignments for volunteers include assisting with visitor center operations and visitor orientation; serve as a tourism representative at the kiosk information center at City Hall Plaza, participating in, or assisting with, special events and living history programs; and providing clerical support.

For those interested in these opportunities and would like to find out more information, a volunteer recruitment reception will be held in the park's Visitor Center today (Thursday) at 6:30 p.m. The Visitor Center is located at 1250 Hancock St. in the Presidents Place Galleria, Quincy Center. Validated parking is available in the adjacent Presidents Place Parking Garage.

For more information contact Park Ranger John Stanwich at 617-770-1175 and/or Kristin Priscella, executive assistant to the mayor, at City Hall at 617-376-1990.

Adams National Historical Park was established in 1946 as a unit of the Department of the Interior, National Park Service, to commemorate the distinguished men and women of the Adams family who dedicated their lives to the development and service of the United States.

The 13-acre park is comprised of the Birthplaces of John Adams and John Quincy Adams; the "Old House," home to four generations of the Adams family.

TV, Radio Campaign

Cahill Accents 'Tim' In Run For State Treasurer

By TOM HENSHAW

One of the most unusual features of Tim Cahill's campaign for the Democratic nomination for State Treasurer is a political handout card that reads simply: "Tim for Treasurer."

It's Tim Cahill's innovative way of emphasizing to the primary voters of Massachusetts the importance of a first name — especially when the name just before yours on the ballot is Michael Cahill.

"Our ads will be starting Monday (Aug. 12) on radio outside of Boston," said Tim Cahill. "Our Tim Cahill Infomercials will differentiate ourselves from the other candidates." — most importantly, the candidate named Michael Cahill, a state representative from Beverly.

The other Democratic candidates to succeed Shannon O'Brien in the treasurer's office are Stephen Murphy, a Boston city councillor and former State Rep. James Segal.

"Our polls show that the race has come down to Murphy and myself on the top tier and Segal and Michael Cahill on the bottom tier," said Cahill (Tim), but still with a nervous glance over his shoulder at the other Cahill.

Cahill (Tim) figures that so far he's raised about half a million dollars in the effort to win the Democratic nomination and most of it will be spent on radio and television in the two weeks before the Sept. 17 primary.

"We're spending $135,000 for one week of TV leading up to the primary," he said. "We've bought a 30-minute block of time on New England Cable on the 16th, the night before the primary."

"It's important because none of the candidates is known statewide. I've been as visible as I can be so far. Radio and TV will remind people that they met me or saw me before. It'll put a face with the name on the ballot."

Meanwhile, Cahill (Tim) has been doing all the little things that candidates for public office have been doing from time immemorial.

"I still try to focus on the grass roots," he said. "Like getting people out to hold signs, dropping flyers and going door-to-door in high concentrated areas."

He's up at 5 or 6 o'clock in the morning to meet commuter trains at the stations and he's spending weekends in strange, far away places, attending celebrations and marching in parades.

Last weekend it was a Portuguese parade in New Bedford and on the Fourth of July it was a parade in Chelmsford where it was so hot that the tar on the street was melting under his feet.

But a critical part of the campaign is the four or five hours Cahill (Tim) spends on the telephone each day, establishing contact with the politically hip around the state and, of course, raising campaign funds.

Fund-raising is usually a distasteful chore to political candidates, but in a day when expensive TV time rules even a primary campaign, it's a vital necessity.

"I enjoy campaigning," he said. "But fund-raising is a challenge I accept. You have to do it every day. It can be a grind but it's a measurement of your success, too."

"It's like starting a new business. You've got to impress people who don't know

Police Seek Assailant, Weapon In Custodian's Death

Police continued their investigation this week into the homicide death of a Quincy city custodian whose body was found Saturday morning behind the main Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center.

Investigators said an autopsy showed Daniel DeCosta, 43, died of injuries from being struck in the back of the head with a blunt instrument.

Police were still looking for the weapon and clues that might lead them to the assailant.

DeCosta's wallet was found with his body but said, not knowing if anything was taken, were still considering robbery a possible motive.

DeCosta worked the 2 p.m. to 10 p.m. custodian shift at City Hall Friday night and then spent time at Sully's bar on Chestnut St., Quincy Center, leaving around 1 a.m.

His body was found around 7 a.m. Saturday morning on the rear walkway on the Spear St. side of the library, not far from the Francis Ave. rooming house where he lived. A man walking his dog made the discovery.

Police said there had been no reports of DeCosta having any words or argument with anyone earlier that night.

Those who knew him described him as "a nice guy, well liked who kept to himself mostly."

They were surprised to hear of his death.

Police ask that anyone with information that might

Tired of your bank?

There is a good alternative!

You want your bank to be convenient. And why not?

Convenient means being fully-staffed, so you don't have to wait in line.

It means having employees who know what they're doing — people who like their jobs and actually like helping customers. It means having the bank products and services you want and need along with the "neighborliness" you may have thought was gone forever.

Neighborhood banking is alive and well at Colonial Federal Savings Bank.

We are strong, stable, independent and 100% true to our South Shore roots.

And we really want to be your bank. Had it with being over-charged and under-served?

You do have a choice. Come see us!

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Aug. 11, 1921, Alex Haley is born in Ithaca, N.Y. After 20 years in the U.S. Coast Guard, Haley retired and wrote books, including "The Autobiography of Malcolm X." In 1976, he published his best-known work, "Roots: The Saga of an American Family."

• On Aug. 6, 1928, Andy Warhol, one of the most influential artists of the latter part of the 20th century, is born Andrew Warhola in Pittsburgh. Warhol was a major pioneer of the pop art movement of the 1960s but later outgrew that role to become a cultural icon.

• On Aug. 5, 1962, Marilyn Monroe is found dead in her home in Los Angeles. After a brief investigation, police concluded that her death was "caused by a self-administered overdose of sedative drugs and that the mode of death is probable suicide."

• On Aug. 8, 1974, in an evening televised address, President Richard M. Nixon announces his intention to become the first president in American history to resign.

• On Aug. 10, 1981, the body of 6-year-old Adam Walsh, who disappeared from a shopping mall two weeks earlier, is found in Hollywood, Fla. John Walsh, Adam's father, became a national spokesman against crime. He went on to host TV's "America's Most Wanted."

• On Aug. 9, 1995, Jerry Garcia, lead singer of the Grateful Dead, dies just days after his 53rd birthday. Garcia helped form the psychedelic rock group and toured with it for more than 30 years, developing a tremendously loyal following.

• On Aug. 7, 1998, a massive truck bomb explodes outside the U.S. embassy in Nairobi, Kenya. Minutes later, another truck bomb detonated outside the U.S. embassy in Dar es Salaam. The dual terrorist attacks killed 224 people. The United States accused Osama bin Laden of masterminding the bombings.

Phelan Has Early Impact

There's no way of telling at this early stage how many terms Bill Phelan will serve as mayor.

Or, for that matter, how many terms he would want to serve.

One, two, three -- or more?

Former Mayor Jim Sheets whom Phelan defeated by 17 votes in one of the biggest -- if not the biggest -- local political upsets in history, put in six terms -- 12 years -- all under Plan A.

Amelio Della Chiesa also served 12 years but four were under Plan E when a city manager was the chief executive and the mayor was actually a city councillor who served as the ceremonial head and presided over the city council.

So, that should make Sheets the undisputed mayoral longevity champ.

But no one thinks Phelan has any thoughts of putting in that kind of time at City Hall. Even though that third floor office is the most politically coveted one in town.

City Council President Dan Raymondi, who now looms as the main and probably only threat in the city council, no doubt wouldn't mind helping to make Phelan's stay a lot shorter than Sheets'.

Phelan has indicated he ran for mayor to do a job and when he feels he has done it, he will have no problem about leaving City Hall and returning to his law practice.

But regardless of how long Phelan is mayor, he is already certain of having an impact on the future public safety of the city.

Before his first term is up, he will have named the next police chief and fire chief to succeed Thomas Frane and Thomas Gorman who have retired. These are two of the most important appointments a mayor can make as they affect the entire city.

What makes it more interesting is that the mayor does not have to appoint the top man on the civil service exam eligibility list.

He can pick from the top three but has to give a reason if he by-passes the No. 1 man. In the past, mayors have sometimes leaned to the second or third man because of their experience in the department.

The naming of a permanent successor to Frane should come fairly soon. And he will be one of three captains who took the exam this spring: William Falco, who has been acting chief; Robert Crowley, community policing captain; or James McNeil, day platoon captain.

A fourth, Fred Laracy, who was night platoon captain, signed up for the exam but did not take it and retired.

PHELAN

GORMAN

This kept the exam from being opened up to the rank of lieutenant.

The fire chief's exam is scheduled for next March with five deputy chiefs and at least 10 captains eligible to take it.

It was opened to captains after the prior chief's exam was called and only one deputy chief -- Joseph Walsh -- signed up to take it. At least four are required. This opened the coming exam to captains.

Phelan has named Deputy Chief Paul O'Connell acting chief in the interim. O'Connell was appointed chief in 1989 after topping the exam but in 1990 decided to return to deputy chief. Gorman then succeeded him as chief.

Some speculation was added to the picture at last week's swearing-in ceremony when O'Connell said he was honored to serve as acting chief and introduced a number of family members there to see him sworn in.

This had some thinking O'Connell might now like to return to permanent chief and wondering if he will take the civil service exam hoping to win back the badge he gave up 12 years ago.

Who will the new police chief and fire chief be?

Both will be Phelan's call. And both very important calls.

O'CONNELL

TIM CAHILL, running for state treasurer, has a fundraiser coming up Tuesday, Aug. 13, 6 to 8 p.m. at Coddington's in Quincy Square.

Hosting the event are James Timmins, former assistant city solicitor; Paul Connolly, Ward 4 Councillor Bryan Connolly's father; and John Vignoni, campaign treasurer.

Tickets are $100 each.

WOULD LIKE TO wish a quick get-well to Agnes Costello, long-time active in the Quincy Republican City Committee who is a patient at the Quincy Medical Center.

Agnes is one of those nice people who give generously of themselves to help others in need.

She was a hard working volunteer for 10 years when The Sun was the Quincy-South Shore pledge center for the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon. And helped us raise over $1 million to fight muscular dystrophy.

Agnes, now 89 years young, is in Room 556 in the Transitional Care Unit at Quincy Medical Center.

She's like to hear from old friends.

MILESTONE: Joanne Dondoro, owner of Abigail's Crossing shop in Quincy Sq. and her husband, Hank, are proud grandparents -- for the first time.

Daughter Jennifer and son-in-law Joseph Crespi of Quincy bestowed that honor on them with the arrival of their first child, Madison Elizabeth, June 18 at South Shore Hospital.

And sharing in the honor are grandparents Dick and Helen Crespi of Hanover. Dick is a retired Quincy police officer.

Congratulations all around.

Scenes From Yesterday

Quincy, Mass. Point Bridge.
OPENED FOR TRAFFIC 100 years ago in 1902, this bridge across the Fore River in Quincy Point was built by Thomas A. Watson. Watson, who was the founder of the Fore River shipyard and the first person in the world to answer a telephone call, completed the bridge just in time to allow passage of the USS Des Moines. It was the first US Navy cruiser built at the yard and was too large to fit through the older wooden bridge this one replaced. This bridge swiveled sideways to open. Typical of truss bridges built at the time this one probably didn't win any architectural design awards but readers might think it more appealing than the one being built today.

READERS FORUM

Chris Peter Memorial Blood Drive Successful

On behalf of everyone connected with the Chris Peter Memorial Blood Drive, we would like to thank you and The Quincy Sun for the coverage your gave us.

Our blood drive was successful, in that we collected 97 pints of blood. That brings our 18-year total to over 1900 pints of blood that have been collected. It is a veritable flood; it is also something we cannot do by ourselves.

Without the coverage The Quincy Sun gave us, we would still be running the blood drive, but being able to get the word out to the community through your newspaper helps us to be more successful.

The only way to get blood is when a person will roll up their sleeve and give an important part of themselves for someone they do not even know; it humbles us to be part of the process.

We enjoy reading The Quincy Sun and look forward to being in touch with you next year.

Again thank you for your continued support and all the best in the coming year.

Has Concerns Over Making Long Island A Tourist Site

As a resident of North Quincy who grew up in Boston, Long Island to me has always existed in some kind of geographic limbo. Technically, it is located inside the City of Quincy while it is owned by the City of Boston. Over the years both cities have tangled with one another over access to the island. Several years ago during a visit of Tall Ships, Boston Mayor Tom Menino and former Quincy Mayor Jim Sheets seemed to be acting like the prime ministers of India and Pakistan.

Menino is talking about opening up Long Island to tourists. Sounds both good and bad. Right now the island is home to a number of social service programs run by state, Boston and private agencies. There is one very large city homeless shelter that houses some 500 homeless residents who are bused back and forth across the Neponset bridge on a daily basis. The state has a smaller shelter.

Recently, I had a chance to drive across that aging and rotting bridge from Squantum. Looks about 500 years old. Menino seemed to be implying that there is little opposition to making Long Island a tourist site. But has he checked out folks in Quincy, especially Squantum, the only way in and out of Long Island? The last thing we want in Quincy are hordes of Boston-bound tourists using Quincy Shore Drive to visit Long Island.

I suggest rather than fixing the old bridge they just close it and carry all those tourists on boats out of Boston's waterfront over by the New England Aquarium. I can remember as a young boy taking the ferry from the North End to visit my father's stepfather who was a patient at the old chronic care hospital nearly 50 years ago.

If Boston wants to make Long Island a tourist site, do it from the water and not from Quincy.

McIntyre Won't Run For Mayor, Brett Will

By PAUL HAROLD

Rep. James McIntyre took himself out of the running for this year's mayoral race, opening the way for an announcement two days later by Rep. Joseph Brett that he would challenge Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa.

In a prepared statement McIntyre said he decided not to run because a candidate should not aspire to two different political positions that require his presence in two different places at the same time.

A challenge by McIntyre had been speculated for the last few months and would have resulted in a hot race based upon McIntyre's vote-getting ability as seen in his totals for state representative and city councillor and his strong challenge two years ago.

PLANNING DIRECTOR SUPPORTS SEA ST. SITE FOR INCINERATOR

In a letter to the mayor and city council, Planning Director James Lee lent his support to the Sea St. site as opposed to the Quarry St. site for the city's proposed incinerator.

Discounting traffic, proximity to residential neighborhoods and prevailing winds, Lee said the Sea St. site would have less impact than the Quarry St. site by all measures. Even costs of construction were discounted. A Sea St. facility would have to be built on pilings since it would be located on reclaimed swamp land adjacent to the DPW complex.

PENSIONS GRANTED

The City Council on the recommendation of the mayor, granted pensions to three long-time employees this week.

Awarded pensions were Fire Captain Fred Mullaney, Police Patrolman John Sheehan and Peter Giglio of the Department of Public works. All three were World War I veterans.

Storyteller Series At Library Ends Aug. 13

The Summer Storytellers Series at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center, will conclude Tuesday, Aug. 13, at 7 p.m. with storyteller David Mello.

The program for ages 5 and older will take place in the larger meeting room at the library. Campfire tales will be featured.

At the same time, a Panama Story Hour with Cheryl Dunford will be offered for younger siblings accompanied by an adult and families with children under the age of 5. Teddy Bear tales are the subject of this week's stories. This program will be held in the children's room.

Both programs are free and do not require registration. For more information call 617-376-2411. These and other summer events at the library are funded in part by the Quincy Arts Lottery.

Drop in Craft programs continue with Sun Visors for the week of Aug. 12 from 2 to 4 p.m. These programs travel around the city to each library branch in turn, Monday, Main Library; Tuesday, Adams Shore; Wednesday, Wollaston; and Thursday, North Quincy.

Drop in Storytimes for ages 4-5 will be held at the Main Library Wednesdays, Aug. 14 and 21 at 10:30 a.m. The program will take place in the Children's Story Room and consist of a half hour of stories, songs and rhymes. No registration is required.

The Star Spangled Reading Club continues at the library. Stop by any library location to sign up by Friday, Aug. 23. Participants can take the Star Spangled Web Quiz and earn 30 minutes reading time. Those who need three hours may stop by to collect their summer reading certificates. There are over 125 on display. Monday, Aug. 26 is the last day to add time to your reading certificate.

Former Quincy Dentist Wins Camera Club Award

A former Quincy dentist, Marshall Goldin, won an honor award at the recent annual New England Camera Club Council's photography conference in Amherst.

His winning entry, entitled "Flags," showed several tent tops which were receding into the distance at last fall's Scallop Festival in Bourne. Goldin's print was selected as one of the five best out of over 300 entered in the Council's contest.

The New England Camera Club Council is devoted to the art of photography and has been sponsoring educational conference for 57 years.

Goldin is a member of Quincy's South Shore Camera Club. His award-winning print will be circulated to camera clubs throughout New England the next year.

Tickets Available For Beechwood Benefit Cruise

Tickets are still available for the Beechwood on the Bay Boston Harbor Benefit Cruise Wednesday, Aug. 14.

Proceeds will go to programs and services for at-risk senior citizens including installation of smoke detectors in their homes.

Executive Director Sharron Beals notes that sponsors are essential to the success of the cruise as a fund-raiser.

"Sponsors help us defray the cost of our cruise each year," she said. This makes the ticket price affordable to everyone and proceeds from the tickets can be targeted directly to services."

Tickets are $35 per person and $50 per couple.

The three-hour cruise aboard The Frederick Nolan will feature complimentary food, a DJ and planned activities.

Sponsors include Murphy, Hesse, Toomey and Lehan; Bay State Federal Savings Charitable Foundation, Lincoln Property, Consumer Home Mortgage and Signature Signs.

"We hope there will be more sponsors," Beals said.

Tickets are available from the Event Committee:

Sharon Fernandes, Helen Gallahue Irvin, Michael Joyce, Janet Lanham, William McDonald, Tom McFarland, Terri Lord Piatelli, Peter Racicot, Paul Reynolds, Lee Anne Ryan, Judith Paul, Brendan Smith, Caryn Smith, Brian Spillane, Don Uvanitte and Maralin Manning.

Tickets may also be obtained by calling the Beechwood Center at 617-471-5712.

Dixie Whatley To Narrate 'Peter And The Wolf' Aug. 16

Veteran broadcaster Dixie Whatley will be the narrator as the Boston Landmarks Orchestra, Charles Ansbacher conductor, performs Sergei Prokofiev's beloved classic Peter and the Wolf Friday, Aug. 16 at 10 a.m. and again at 11:30 a.m. at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater next to Pageant Field.

Whatley is nationally known as the principal host, weekend anchor, and New York City correspondent for Entertainment Tonight. In Boston, she covered Boston's arts community for WCVB-TV's NewsCenter 5 as its Arts and Entertainment editor for 14 years. She co-hosted, with Rex Reed, the nationally syndicated At the Movies and has also hosted a nationally syndicated celebrity talk show, Star's Table.

The Quincy concert, which is sponsored by State Street and the city of Quincy, will be one of 14 free Landmarks Concerts for Children performed this summer. The Landmarks Concerts for Children are made possible by Fidelity Investments through a grant from the Fidelity Corporation.

The Boston Landmarks Orchestra receives generous support from Fleet, State Street, The Boston Foundation, The Germeshausen Foundation, The Musicians Performance Trust Fund, The Forest Foundation, Borders Books and Music, Doubletree Hotels, The Boston Globe, WBZ Newsradio 1030, WGBH 89.7 FM, and WCVB-TV 5.

Barbara's Tuna Wiggle

Why is it when our friends get together once a month, and the guys go in one room and the gals in another, we talk about recipes, we suspect the guys are discussing baseball?

And so it was last week at Barb and Chap's place when I got this great recipe for tuna fish. It's so easy and delicious, you will love it, I'm sure. And you can make the sauce ahead of time, and then when you're ready, just throw it over the pasta.

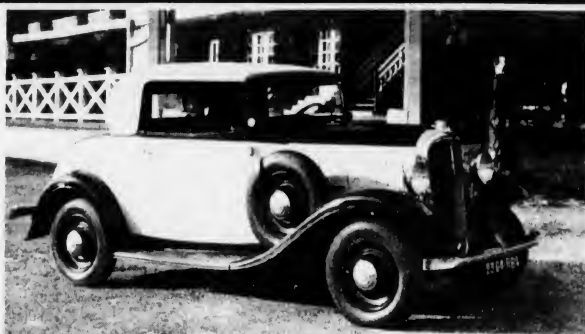

Barbara's Tuna Wiggle

- 12 ounce package medium noodles
- 2 cups chopped celery (this is the hardest part)
- 1/2 cup chopped onion

- 4 tablespoons melted butter to saute' one large can tuna (white) (tuse juices)
- one large can Pastene tuna (dark) (tuse juices)

- 1/2 cup chopped pimentos
- 1/2 cup grated parmesan cheese
- 2 cans cream of mushroom soup
- 1 1/2 cups milk

Boil the noodles as directed. In the butter, saute' the celery and onion. Add the soup, the milk, tuna and the pimentos. Cook until blended. Pour over noodles and add the parmesan cheese. Barbara said her husband Chap loves this recipe so much, she has took it once a week.

HISTORIC CITROEN VEHICLES like this 1933 Rosalie Cabriolet will be on exhibit at the International Citroen Car Club Rally to be held Aug. 9-11 at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. The rally is being organized by Quincy native Michael Cox, a 1965 graduate of North Quincy High School.

Michael Cox Coordinator International Car Club Rally

Quincy native Michael Cox, president of International Citroen Car Club Rally/USA (ICCCR/USA) and publisher of Citroen Quarterly Automotive Journal USA, is coordinating efforts for the first International Citroen Car Rally ever held in the United States.

The event, scheduled for Aug. 9-11 on the campus of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, will feature more than 750 of the French-made automobiles and bring together car enthusiasts from all around the world. Cox is scheduled to make a presentation entitled "The History of the ICCR and its Historic Relevance for America" at the event, which will also be attended by Henri-Jacques Citroen, grandson of company founder Andre Citroen.

The event will be the twelfth such rally but the first held outside of Europe. The original event was held in 1972 in Porec, Yugoslavia.

Citroen cars have been manufactured since 1919 and have earned a loyal following both in the United States, where they have not been sold since 1972, and internationally.

Cox, the son of William and Mildred Cox of Quincy and Marco Island, FL, is an Eagle Scout and a graduate of North Quincy High School, Class of 1965.

Sand Castle Contest A Hit At Wollaston Beach

More than 100 spectators turned out Saturday at Wollaston Beach to watch 120 children show their artistic talents in the eighth annual sand castle contest.

Karen Djerf of Tony's Clam Shop and Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro, two of the sponsors of the contest, were pleased with the turnout, calling it another sign that the beach is making a comeback as a summer attraction, after hardly being used for a number of years due to water quality problems.

The cleanup of Quincy Bay is helping people to rediscover Wollaston Beach.

In addition to Tony's Clam Shop and Gutro, the contest was also sponsored by the Metropolitan District Commission and Rhyme & Reason, a Quincy-based toy shop.

Rhyme & Reason donated $25 gift certificates for the first-place winners, $15 gift certificates for second-place winners and $10 prizes for third-place winners.

The winners in each age category are:

Ages 11-14

First: Taylor Breen, Matthew Breen and Bobby Marsters with "Tony's Castle"

Second: Emily Smith, Ryan Murphy and Katherine Dulger with "Baboon Lagoon"

Third: Erik Johnson and Zac Deegan with "911"

Ages 7-10

First: Emily Sullivan, Caroline Sullivan and Tara Sullivan with "Future of Wollaston Beach"

Second: Trevor Hiltz with "Alligator"

Third: Emily Hannon, Shaun Patrick Hannon and Matthew Hannon with "Tornado Castle"

Ages 6 and under

First: Amy Wayland with "Becky's Beach Party"

Second: Kaitlyn Quinlan and Ryan Quinlan with "Castle Island"

Third: Tony Kandallat, Brian D. and Bridget McAdams with "Bowser's Castle"

Adams National Historical Park To Host Civil War Days

The Adams National Historical Park will host Civil War Days Sunday, Aug. 11, from noon to 4 p.m. at 135 Adams St., Quincy Center.

The public will have an opportunity to experience what life was like for soldier and civilian before and during the American Civil War with costumed interpreters and historical re-enactors.

Those attending will return to the 1860s, enter the U.S. Congress and debate Secession, cast their lot with the Union or the Confederacy and find themselves in either blue or gray preparing for battle.

They will meet the members of the 1st Massachusetts Battalion, made up of units from the 1st Massachusetts Cavalry, the 22nd Massachusetts Infantry and the 54th Massachusetts Glory! Brigade, at their camps. Confederate forces, represented by the 5th Alabama Fire & Drum Corp. will also be on hand.

Festivities for the day will include military skirmishes, Civil War era games, period music, historical photography and an address by President Abraham Lincoln.

The program is free of charge and open to participants of all ages.

The 13-acre park is comprised of the Birthplaces of John Adams and John Quincy Adams; the "Old House," home to four generations of the Adams family; and the still-active United First Parish Church.

final resting place of Presidents and First Ladies, Abigail and Louisa Catherine Adams.

105 Years Combined Public Service A Shared Value For Menz Family

Retired Quincy Fire Department Deputy Chief John Menz thinks the tragic events of Sept. 11, 2001 have strengthened the bond between police and firefighters.

But that bond was already a strong one, as evidenced by the Menz family itself, which has a combined total of more than 105 years of public service.

In addition to Menz, who retired from the Quincy Fire Department more than two decades ago and jokingly admits that he's "creeping up to age 84," there is his son, retired Quincy Fire Lt. John Menz Jr., who is also an ordained deacon at St. Elizabeth Ann Seton Parish; another son, Quincy Firefighter George Menz; a grandson, Quincy Police Officer John Menz III; and another grandson, Corporal James Menz, a police officer at Suffolk University and a graduate of the Special State Police Academy.

The five put on their uniforms this past Father's Day for a photo taken at the elder Menz' Babcock St. home, part celebration of the their public service patriarch and part celebration of public service itself, which is a shared value in the family.

"I think we're doing something worthwhile," said Menz, who also has a nephew serving in the Boston Fire Department. "I'm glad that they're following up on the tradition."

Menz, a graduate of Quincy High School who is a Hall of Fame member for both football and baseball, served in the Navy during World War II. Sons John Jr. and George served during the Vietnam War in the Yankee Division of the National Guard and the Air Force, respectively.

Menz thinks that the events of Sept. 11 have placed greater focus on what he called "public service loyalties" and a greater appreciation of those loyalties by the American people.

"I think it even drew fire and police departments closer together even though they have very distinct duties," Menz added.

In other words, the hardships of Sept. 11 made all those involved in public service reaffirm their commitment to one another as a special kind of family, which is an idea the Menz family knows a little something about.

To Develop Housing For Very Low Income Families $35,000 Grant To Help Fr. Bill's Place, NHS Form Unique Partnership

Father Bill's Place and Neighborhood Housing Services (NHS) have been awarded a $35,000 grant by the Boston Foundation to form a unique housing partnership.

The money will be used to support the start-up of a new partnership to be formed between NHS and the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition to develop housing for very low-income families and individuals.

The Interfaith Coalition operates Father Bill's Place, a shelter for the homeless. NHS is a public-private partnership that promotes, develops and maintains affordable housing.

"We are grateful for the Boston Foundation's support on this important collaboration between NHS and the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition to prevent homelessness," said Normand Grenier, executive director of NHS. "This is the first collaboration of its kind on the South Shore where a nonprofit community development organization is partnering with a homeless shelter."

The NHS and Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition have worked together on specific projects in the past to develop permanent housing for extremely low-income individuals and families who might otherwise become homeless. The two organizations have developed 50 units of housing and administer another 64 tenant-based rental units.

This new partnership will seek to build on this past work to develop substantially increased amount of affordable housing. The two will develop housing for families, individuals and individuals with special needs. The collaborative will transform deteriorated properties or vacant parcels into high-quality, permanent, affordable housing. Residents will receive the services they need to enable them to live with dignity and achieve full independence, Grenier said.

"The escalating cost of housing across the South Shore is putting many at a substantial risk of homelessness, especially the working poor," said Grenier. "It's imperative we develop partnerships to combat homelessness and help the working poor achieve the dream of home ownership and independence."

Communities serviced by these organizations include Quincy, Abington, Avon, Braintree, Brockton, Canton, Cohasset, East Bridgewater, Hanover, Hanson, Hingham, Holbrook, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Pembroke, Randolph, Rockland, Scituate, Sharon, Stoughton, West Bridgewater, Weymouth, Whitman.

Since its inception in 1981, NHS of the South Shore has grown from a neighborhood-based rehab loan program into a well-known organization that provides a wide variety of housing and neighborhood services to South Shore residents.

The Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition (QISC) was founded in 1984 by a group of community leaders and social service professionals to provide shelter for the homeless and address the causes of homelessness. From its inception it has grown into a full-fledged community-based shelter, housing and social service agency. The QISC provides more than 100 shelter beds for adults at two sites, Father Bill's Place and the South Shore Emergency Shelter.

The Boston Foundation, one of the nation's oldest and largest community foundations, has an endowment of nearly $630 million and made grants of close to $50 million to non-profit organizations this year in the Greater Boston area.

Coughlin Speaks In Support Of Recycling Initiative At Local Government Forum

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin recently spoke in favor of legislation that would mandate a solid waste system by which producers of products and packaging take financial and physical responsibility for the collection and proper recycling of their products after the end of their useful life.

KEVIN COUGHLIN

Coughlin addressed a Local Government Forum held at the State House attended by legislators, municipal officials and leaders of Clean Water Action. The legislation is called "Producer Takeback" (H-4716).

Coughlin sponsored a resolution passed by the City Council in January calling upon representatives and senators to pass and the governor to sign what Coughlin termed a "environmentally sound and fiscally responsible legislation" which targets waste products that currently create a financial burden for cities and towns. Coughlin said the legislation has received support from 100 cities and towns, the Massachusetts Municipal Association, South Shore Recycling Cooperative and other organizations. The measure has received a favorable report by the Natural Resources Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee, Coughlin said.

Since April of 2000, Massachusetts has banned the disposal of CRTs (which are contained in TV's and computers monitors) and thus CRT recycling has become an added expense and burden on cities and towns, Coughlin said, "in effect has become an unfunded mandate for which local taxpayers are responsible."

"The problem will continue to grow," Coughlin said, "especially as technology advances rendering obsolete products consumers presently own. The amount of electronic waste, presently at about 75,000 tons per year, is projected to increase to 300,000 tons by 2005."

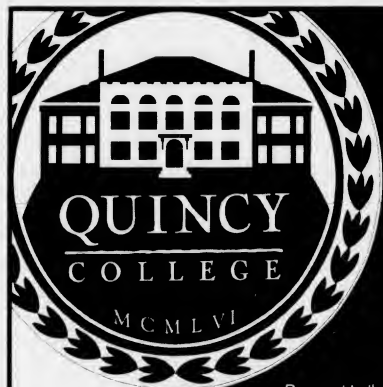

"In hard numbers the costs for cities and towns will jump from $22.5 million to $90 million or more by 2005," Coughlin said. "In Quincy, costs have risen from $6,000 in 2000 to $48,000 to date in 2002 just for the first six months. Those costs could easily reach $160,000 or more within the next three years."

Coughlin said the issue is a matter of corporate responsibility.

"In a time when we have witnessed the serious impact upon citizens and the economy, or corporate mismanagement and profiteering such as with Enron, Polaroid and WorldCom, there is no better time for corporations here in this country to step to the plate, follow the lead of many European nations and take responsibility for the waste associated with the products they produce."

"Certainly in these difficult financial times for municipalities the money we expend for the proper disposal of these products would be far more beneficially expended in providing important local services and could be better utilized in areas such as retaining teachers for the education of our children," he said.

The Appointing Council for the Quincy College

Board of Governors

Announces that all individuals wishing to be considered for appointment to the Quincy College Board of Governors for a six (6) year term commencing in September 2002 must indicate such an interest in writing and include a current resume, no later than August 9, 2002 to:

Board of Governors Appointing Council
c/o President Sean L. Barry
QUINCY COLLEGE
34 Coddington Street
Quincy, MA 02169

Individuals who submit a resume and letter by the August 9, 2002 deadline shall have an opportunity to address the appointing council, and to perhaps answer questions from the council on August 19, 2002 in Saville Hall, Quincy College Campus, at 7 pm. The appointing council shall meet again at noon on August 20, 2002 to select the five new governors. Both meetings are open to the public and are held in the Sullivan Room, Saville Hall.

The Five New Governors of the college will participate in training workshops in the fall, and shall be expected to attend subcommittee and full board meetings throughout the calendar year. Additionally, by law, all governors must annually file financial disclosure forms with the Quincy City Clerk.

All interested parties are encouraged to apply for consideration.

Fleet Mortgage Corp. Donates $10,000 To Neighborhood Housing

Fleet Mortgage Corporation donated $10,000 to Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore to help benefit their homeownership program.

Neighborhood Housing Services has developed one of the area's most successful first time homebuyer programs on the South Shore. NHS holds free monthly first time homebuyer workshops throughout the South Shore area.

Since their program began, each workshop is full to capacity and they have had waiting lists for many of their scheduled classes.

This year, NHS has graduated over 1200 first time buyers and even with the tight real estate market, over 200 of those attendees have been able to purchase their first home through this program.

In addition to the educational component of NHS's program the non-profit also offers down payment and closing cost grants up to $10,000 to qualified applicants.

"It is our honor to be working with such a committed organization," says Ron Stroup, Fleet Mortgage Corp. Marketing Manager.

"This free program offered by NHS not only benefits the potential new homeowner, but also the entire community."

Fleet Mortgage Corporation will co-sponsor a certified homebuyer workshop with Neighborhood Housing Services Saturday, Aug. 17 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Sons of Italy in Quincy. The free workshop will include breakfast and lunch with many door prizes throughout the day including multiple weekend get away packages.

To register for this workshop call 617-770-2227 ext. 31.

DONALD STROUP (center), marketing manager for Fleet Mortgage Corporation, presents a $10,000 donation to Normand Grenier, executive director of Neighborhood Housing Services of the Shore to benefit their homeownership program. At left is Debbie Kidd, homeownership program manager.

First Time Homebuyer Workshop At Mass. Co-Op Bank Aug. 22

Neighborhood Housing Services, an MHA & HUD approved First Time

Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will be holding a FREE informational First Time Homebuyers Workshop in partnership with Massachusetts Co-Operative Bank and the MBTA.

This unique partnership was established to better serve the housing needs of public transportation commuters.

The workshop will be held Thursday, Aug. 22 at the Massachusetts Co-operative

Bank, 75 Quincy Avenue, Quincy from 6 to 8:30 p.m.

Agenda will be comprehensive as well as individualized with a concentration on the "Take the T Home" program.

The focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within budget, how to make an offer, and determining the best mortgage program.

Each participant will have the opportunity to meet individually with a mortgage professional from Massachusetts Co-Operative Bank and receive a free mortgage pre-qualification.

Participants will learn how they can purchase property with little or no money and how to best utilize local down payment and closing costs grants now available across the South Shore.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited.

Contact Neighborhood Housing Services at (617) 770-2227 ext. 31 to register for this workshop.

Tips To Help Homeowners Increase Energy Efficiency

(NAPS) — The Department of Energy estimates that a typical U.S. family spends close to $1,300 a year on home utility bills. Part of this cost is a direct result of air that has been heated or cooled for the inside escaping to the outside. With this in mind, homeowners planning to remodel should consider different steps to increase the energy efficiency of their homes.

While increasing home energy efficiency may make a project seem more costly at the beginning, it will increase the return on investment by lowering monthly bills and possibly increasing the value of the home. Consider the following home improvements that will not only make a home look better, but also feel better by improving energy efficiency:

- Adding insulation in the attic is the easiest and most cost effective way to improve the energy efficiency of a home. After determining how much insulation is necessary based on the local climate and building design, homeowners can use rolled or blown insulation in the attic. If a home is still drafty, it may be necessary to hire a contractor to add insulation to the exterior walls as well. If an attic is already well-insulated, make sure there is proper ventilation, which will contribute to moisture control and reduce summer cooling bills.

- Re-siding a home can also increase energy efficiency. For example, CraneBoard Solid Core Siding, a new insulated siding produced by Crane Performance Siding, has a rigid insulation backing to increase energy efficiency, impact resistance and noise reduction over traditional siding. Solid core siding carries the Energy Star logo, which means it meets the energy efficiency guidelines set by the EPA and Department of Energy. And, it has an R-value of up to 4.0 compared to 1.0 or less for traditional vinyl, fiber cement, or wood. R-value is a measure used for insulation that denotes how much insulating power the product has. The higher the R-value, the better the insulation.

- Replacing old doors and windows with energy efficient products that carry the Energy Star logo can also save money. This kind of upgrade should be considered if the current windows are single pane or if the doors are not filled with proper insulation. If existing doors and windows are in good shape but feel drafty, simply caulk around the seams to seal off the cracks where air enters the home.

- Upgrading appliances such as refrigerators, clothes washers, dryers and dishwashers and comparing their EnergyGuide labels can increase energy savings. The EnergyGuide label provides important information such as estimated energy consumption compared to similar models and estimated yearly operating cost. Appliances account for 20 percent of household energy consumption.

Homebuyer Workshop At Quincy Sons Of Italy Aug. 17

Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore will sponsor a free First-Time Homebuyers Workshop, in collaboration with Fleet Mortgage Corporation, Saturday, Aug. 17, at the Sons of Italy Hall, 120 Quarry St.

The one-day workshop will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and breakfast and lunch will be included. Door prizes will be given away, including a weekend getaway vacation.

All potential first-time homebuyers are encouraged to attend this educational workshop. Topics covered include mortgage options, legal aspects of the homebuying process, how a home inspection works and other presentations from real estate related professionals.

Down payment grants up to $10,000 per family are available. Participants must complete this workshop to qualify for grant programs.

Advanced registration is required. For more information and to register for the workshop call 617-770-2227, ext. 31.

They are Jacqueline Dugas, Julia Free, Molly Heissner and Julia Nee (girls ages 9-10 4x100-meter relay) and Kevin Borst, Benson Luc, Akil Benjamin and Jade Pina (boys ages 13-14 4x100-meter relay).

Due to previous commitments, two of the youngsters will not participate in the national championships. Pina will be replaced by Mark Jordan and Heissner will be replaced by Emily Hannon.

In their road to the national championship, the Quincy youngsters won the Quincy championship, the state championship and then had their times compared with other New England champs and several provinces in Canada.

"This continues the long tradition of Quincy youngsters getting the final taste of international competition at Hershey Nationals," said Recreation Director Barry Welch.

"The most notable being Karen Cashman, who qualified for five Hershey National Championships and then she went on to win an Olympic bronze medal. This is a great opportunity for our youth and we appreciate the generosity and commitment of Hershey Foods," Welch added.

World War II Memorial Golf Tournament Sept. 9

The World War II Memorial Golf Tournament will be held Monday, Sept. 9, at Presidents' Golf Course in Wollaston.

Proceeds will go toward the construction and installation of Quincy's World War II Memorial in the soon-to-be renovated Merrymount Park.

The tourney will tee off at 9 a.m. Foursomes will compete in a Florida-style shotgun format. Following the tourney there will be a dinner and raffle at the Sons of Italy, 120 Quarry St., Quincy.

Fee is $100 per person and $400 per group. Checks can be made payable to "The City of Quincy-World War II Memorial" and mailed before Sept. 2 to: Ron Donovan, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169.

For more information contact Donovan at 617-376-1990.

Quincy Access TV Sports Production Workshop Starts Aug. 12

Quincy Access Television, 88 Washington St., will offer a sports production workshop beginning Monday, Aug. 12, at 6:30 p.m.

Robert Morrill, QATV access coordinator, will provide instruction on state-of-the-art digital equipment.

The course is for anyone interested in becoming a part of a sports crew or who would like to produce sports individually. To be eligible to become a member of QATV, you must be a Quincy resident 18 years or older.

Parents of students who may be scholarship candidates can learn how to put a video production suitable for college recruiters together.

In September, studio workshops, camcorder and editing classes will begin. An orientation to community television will be held Thursday, Sept. 5, and classes will form in the following weeks.

For more information contact QATV at 617-376-1440 or e-mail (gatv@gatv.org).

Deadline Aug. 29; Tourney Starts Sept. 5 Entry Forms Available For City Tennis Tournament

Entry forms are now available for the Quincy Recreation Department's 32nd annual City Tennis Tournament, announces Recreation Director Barry Welch.

The Quincy Municipal Credit Union has once again agreed to serve as co-sponsor.

"This is the 32nd consecutive year we have supervised this event and are grateful to the Credit Union for its seventh year as a co-sponsor," Welch said. "This is a wonderful activity for Quincy residents of all ages to take part in a tournament that has no equal in tradition, size and quality of play."

Entry forms can be picked up at the Quincy Municipal Credit Union, the Recreation Department office, City Hall, the Quincy Sun and at various tennis courts throughout the city. Deadline for entry is Thursday, Aug. 29, and the tournament will start Thursday, Sept. 5.

Cost is $11 for adults and $8 for youth. There are T-shirts for all participants. Matches are played nights and weekends at the Russell Park Tennis Courts on the grounds of the Center for Technical Education.

The tournament, believed to be one of the largest municipal tournaments in New England, has events for men, women, boys and girls, as well as mixed doubles. The director is John Franceschini, who has guided the tourney for over 20 years.

Events scheduled are:

men's singles, women's singles, men's 50 and over, men's 35 and over, women's 35 and over, men's doubles, women's doubles, boys' 16 and under, girls' 16 and under, and mixed doubles.

There is also a special event, men's B, which is open to all participants in men's singles who are defeated in the first round. And there is a division for men or women who are employees of the city.

For more information call the Recreation Department at 617-376-1394.

WHERE THERE'S SMOKE . . .

Worn engines can produce smoke due to oil leaking into the cylinders around worn valve guides or worn oil rings, or both. White smoke coming from the tailpipe is indicative of these problems while black smoke is an indication of burning fuel. If a white puff of smoke is noted when the engine is first started, the problem is probably worn valve guides. Oil laying on the cylinder heads leaks into the cylinders while the vehicle sits idle. This oil accumulation is enough to cause visible smoke when the engine is started. This sign should prompt some planning for an eventual engine rebuild. If the engine suddenly begins belching white smoke, the need for an engine rebuild is immediate.

Is your engine smoking? It's important to determine the cause and have repairs made. If you need maintenance or repairs, don't hesitate and bring your car to us. At LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO we want you to be well informed about every system in your car. Our friendly, professional, ASE Certified service staff here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550) will gladly answer all your questions. Give us a try. We'll learn your trust! Open: Mon-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. We're "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." We are your local source for propane for grills, motor homes, and converted vehicles.

HINT: In high-mileage vehicles, it may make sense to rebuild the engine and transmission at the same time.

Granite Rout Randolph, 42-6

By CHRIS POISSON

Unlike last season, there was nothing close about the Quincy Granite's backyard battle with Randolph last Saturday night. Except for the time elapsed between their touchdowns.

Showing no signs of rust after a bye week, Quincy scored on its first two plays from scrimmage en route to a 42-6 romp (all scoring in the first half) of the Oilers at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

And after four weeks of the 111 season, it's clear the Granite has no hangover from last year's disappointing finish and is primed to make another run for the pot of gold that rests with the Shamrocks in Marlboro.

"All week long we just keep telling the guys to take it one step at a time," said quad-captain David Harris. "Last year we didn't finish the way we wanted to. We feel the road to the Super Bowl goes through Quincy. We feel we're a strong team, we're focused and we're heading in the right direction."

Right to the top, Quincy (3-0) shares the top spot in the Eastern Conference with Charlestown and will travel to Middleboro Saturday night at 7 to face the Cobras (3-1) — a team it ousted in the quarterfinals last season.

"I'm not surprised at how we're doing," Harris said. "I expect the best. A lot of the guys dedicate themselves. We have guys that come down to practice straight from work in their work clothes. The guys take it serious. The dedication and morale is higher than the last couple of years."

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth Bows In League Playoffs

The Wollaston baseball team's season came to an end last week in the first round of the South Shore Senior Babe Ruth league playoffs.

Seeded second with a 12-8 record, Wollaston was swept by Milton in the best-of-three series, dropping Game 1, 4-1, last Wednesday and Game 2, 4-2, last Thursday.

"I would like to thank the players and coaching staff for a fine season," said manager Steve Reardon. "Most importantly, the parents of all the players who helped support the team through the last two months. They made it a more enjoyable season and I hope we made it enjoyable for them."

Wollaston received its usual strong pitching in the series, but the offense fizzled against the Milton pitching staff.

In Game 1, Ryan Conley, who went 4-0 in the regular season, gave his team a shot at winning by allowing four runs on only five hits. The offense, though, managed only four hits. And the lone run came in the seventh inning when Chris Dolbears singled, stole second and scored on a single by pinch-hitter James Zapata.

Marc Lopez had two hits. Defensively, Matt MacNeil, Steve Reardon, Jason Fidalgo and catcher Andy McAllister played well. Gary Dalton pitched a perfect seventh inning in relief.

In Game 2, Reardon, who had tossed three perfect innings, was hit on the elbow leading off the fourth and was taken out of the game after the inning because of the injury. Down 2-0, Dolbears came on in relief and allowed two runs on four hits in three innings.

Wollaston scored its first run in the fifth inning on Zapata's RBI double that scored MacNeil (single).

Trailing 4-1 in the seventh, MacNeil singled and Mark Dondena walked before Zapata knocked in MacNeil with a single to left. With two outs and two on, Dolbears drove a ball to right only to be run down with a good catch by the Milton fielder.

Other team members included Dan Cosgrove, Shawn Gibbons, Chris Kirshner, Matt Lavery, Mike McLaughlin, Jeff Tan, Chris Traietti and Rich Zapata. Reardon's coaching staff included Les Fidalgo, Rich Zapata, Wendell Cosgrove, Peter Delgado and general manager Ed Duff.

Quincy.com Runner-up In Softball Travel League

Quincy.com, a 19 and under softball travel team, recently finished runner-up in its division of the Norfolk County league.

In the championship game, Quincy (8-2) played Dedham evenly but came out on the short-end, 5-4.

Working on short rest, pitcher Rachel Sorensen kept Dedham batters off-balance and took away many scoring chances with timely strikeouts (5).

Offensively, Casey Lorman went 2 for 2 with a run and stolen base and Sorensen went 2 for 3. Keri O'Connell drove in two runs, May Ho, Lisa Schifone, Sheila Lynch, Marilyn Power, Caitlin Miller and Kendra Ciccone also added hits.

In the semi-finals, Sorensen allowed only one runner to reach third as she blanked Newton, 2-0, giving up just five hits and punching out nine.

O'Connell knocked in Ashley Nee for Quincy's first run and Schifone stole home for the second run.

In the first round, Sorensen's sister, Rebekah, pitched Quincy to a 6-3 win over the Notre Dame Cougars, allowing six hits and striking out eight. She also went 2 for 4 at the plate, including the game-winning triple.

Schifone had eight putouts from her shortstop position and went 2 for 4 with a run and stolen base. Catcher Beth Goodrich went 2 for 4 with two runs and a stolen base and she also gunned down two base runners and was the recipient of a perfect throw from Lorman in center field to cut down another runner.

Miller (2 for 4), Lynch, Ho, O'Connell and Ciccone (game-winner run) all added hits.

Lung Association Golf Tourney Aug. 19

The American Lung Association of Greater Norfolk County will hold its 11th annual Clean Air Classic Golf Tournament Monday, Aug. 19, at the South Shore Country Club.

The tourney will tee off with a 1 p.m. shotgun start. Fee is $150 per individual and $600 per foursome, which includes 18 holes of golf, cart, awards dinner, auction and raffle.

There are also sponsorship and donation opportunities, including sponsoring a tee or a foursome, or donating a raffle/auction item, gift certificate or items for the golfer goodie bags.

Proceeds from the tourney will benefit the Lung Association's efforts to fight lung disease through research, education and advocacy. Lung disease is the No. 3 killer in the nation, claiming more than 350,000 lives every year.

Last year's tournament raised more than $30,000.

Granite Rout Randolph

Middleboro features an explosive offense, averaging 25 points per game (second behind Quincy), that will test Quincy's defense like no other team so far.

And the defense that steps onto Battis Field Saturday will look slightly different than previous ones.

In addition to the retirement of all-star middle linebacker Ryan Craig, defensive end Steve Jones and corner back John Murphy in the offseason, defensive tackle/middle linebacker Sean Halpin, a quad-captain, has stepped back into management because of work restraints.

Derrick Wright was chosen by the coaching staff and his teammates as the new captain. An all-purpose player, Wright played for the Oilers last year after the Boston Cowboys disbanded.

Despite the changes, Quincy still boasts one of the league's top-ranked units (11.7 ppg) as it has been able to plug in the holes. Jimmy Davis and Vic Jean have filled in the vacant positions, including middle linebacker when Anthony Caputo went down with a broken thumb in the Marlboro game.

Against Randolph, the Granite scored early — with many fans still finding their seats — when running back Jackson Vetiace jetted 50 yards for a touchdown 35 seconds into the game.

After its defense stymied Randolph, Quincy struck on its second play from scrimmage when quarterback Liam Higgins hooked up with speedy wideout Jeff Lang (how quickly we've forgotten Billy MacDougall) for a 47-yard score and a 14-0 lead after just 2:46.

This was just the beginning of this one-sided slugfest. On its third possession, the Granite actually needed more than a play to score as Vetiace rumbled in from 35 yards for a 21-0 lead after about 11 minutes of play.

"We never really let them in the ballgame, from the first play from scrimmage to the last," Harris said.

Vetiace, who took a breather in the second half while his younger brother, Maxwell, carried the load, finished with 110 yards on seven carries to earn EC Offensive Player of the Week honors.

Late in the second quarter, Randolph scored its lone touchdown of the game on quarterback Anthony Comer's 5-yard TD pass to Mike Green, cutting the deficit to 21-6.

In the second, Quincy continued the onslaught with a pair of Ed Mazzuchelli TD runs (20, 3) for a 35-6 advantage. Fullback Randy Campbell rounded out the scoring with a 5-yard TD run.

Recreation Department Holds Bombardment Tournament

The Quincy Recreation Department recently held its first annual Bombardment Tournament at Fenno Street playground.

Bombardment is played when one team tries to get the opposing team out by throwing the ball at them without passing the centerline.

In the Senior Division, Welcome Young eliminated

Fenno Street in a heated battle by winning two of three games. Matt Jaehnig, Dave Jaehnig, Bill Glennon and Rose Pasquantonio played well for Welcome Young, led by recreation leader Meaghan McLean.

For Fenno Street, captained by veteran leader T.J. Bell, Paul Doolan, Joey Carita, Bobby Harrington and Paul Kustka turned in strong efforts.

In the Junior Division, Squantum, led by Rick McAllister, defeated Kincaide/O'Rourke, skippered by Robby Bell, for the crown. Bill Kiley, Jen Hines, James Flaherty and Tommy Dow powered Squantum.

For Kincaide/O'Rourke, Michelle Connolly, Chris Connolly, Shane LaCort and Joe Colletta played well.

Numbers Tell Story Of Hope For Those Suffering From Infertility

By ALAN S. PENZIAS, M.D.

One in 10 couples suffer from infertility. Most do so silently. These are your friends, neighbors, colleagues, family members and perhaps yourself.

Infertility is defined as the inability to conceive a pregnancy after one year of unprotected sex (though waiting that long to seek medical attention is not recommended for anyone who believes he or she might be infertile). Infertility is a medical disease, not an inconvenience.

Across many cultures, women often take the blame if a couple is childless, but about one-third of infertility problems can be traced to identifiable and often correctable male factors. An equivalent percentage of infertility is attributable to female factors. The remaining third cannot easily be attributed to either partner. A number of medical problems can cause infertility, and there is increasing evidence that female age plays an important role.

It is time to recognize the great advances that have been made to alleviate the medical conditions that cause infertility — advances that give hope to those who suffer with the disease. Treatment options have never been more varied or easily accessible.

The 1978 introduction of in vitro fertilization (IVF) has dramatically improved the odds for infertile couples — odds that have risen steadily each year since. Since 1978, one million babies have been born as a result of IVF.

If you are part of the one in 10 couples affected by infertility, there are one million reasons to feel hopeful. The majority of those who do seek treatment will get pregnant. Seeking help early can increase a couple's odds.

Still, many couples wait years before they see a specialist, wasting valuable time because they are unaware of just how accessible highly successful treatment is and hope their problem will just disappear. We must hone our awareness; take infertility and its causes, prevention and treatment out of hiding, and discuss them in public and medical community, so that the millions of infertile couples can get the help and hope they deserve.

Only education, openness and consideration for others, along with access to proper treatment, will allow us to improve the odds for ourselves and for the people we care about.

A board member of the Infertility Association, Alan S. Penzias, M.D. is on the staff of Boston IVF, which has a center in Quincy. He is an Assistant Professor of Obstetrics, Gynecology and Reproductive Biology at Harvard Medical School.

Safe Summer Exercise Safety

Swimming, cycling, jogging, skiing, aerobic dancing, walking or any of dozens of other activities can help your heart. They all cause you to feel warm, perspire and breathe heavily without being out of breath and without feeling any burning sensation in your muscles. Whether it is a structured exercise program or just part of your daily routine, all exercise adds up to a healthier heart.

The American Heart Association offers the following tips for exercise success:

- If you've been sedentary for a long time, are overweight, have a high risk of coronary heart disease or some other chronic health problem, see your doctor for a medical evaluation before beginning a physical activity program.

- Choose activities that are fun, not exhausting. Add variety. Develop a repertoire of several activities that you can enjoy. That way, exercise will never seem boring or routine.

- Wear comfortable, properly fitted footwear and comfortable, loose-fitting clothing appropriate for the weather and the activity.

- Find a convenient time and place to do activities. Try to make it a habit, but be flexible. If you miss an exercise opportunity, work activity into your day another way.

- Use music to keep you entertained.

- Surround yourself with supportive people. Decide what kind of support you need. Do you want them to remind you to exercise? Ask about your progress? Participate with you regularly or occasionally? Allow you time to exercise by yourself? Go with you to a special event, such as a 10K walk/run? Be understanding when you get up early to exercise? Spend time with the children while you exercise? Try not to ask you to change your exercise routine? Share your activity time with others. Make a date with a family member, friend or co-worker. Be an active role model for your children.

- Don't overdo it. Do low to moderate-level activities, especially at first. You can slowly increase the duration and intensity of your activities as you become more fit. Over time, work up to exercising three or four times per week for 30-60 minutes.

Keep a record of your activities. Reward yourself at special milestones. Nothing motivates like success.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustlin, D.M.D.

BRUXISM

Unless your bedmate has told you, you may not be aware that you are grinding your teeth while sleeping. Otherwise, the dentist may notice signs of ground-down teeth that are also indicative of bruxism, the technical term for tooth grinding. Symptoms also may include morning headaches, jaw pain, a clicking sound in the jaw, sensitive teeth, and damaged crowns. Tooth grinding can also adversely affect the quality of your sleep. Some experts believe that heavy grinding can lead to temporomandibular disorder (TMD). To alleviate the problem, the dentist can create an individually fitted mouth guard or splint made of soft or hard acrylic, which is worn at night to redistribute the forces exerted while grinding.

If you grind your teeth, let us help you with a properly fitting mouth guard. Let us show you how to care for your teeth. By having regular checkups, you can avoid many problems and spend fewer dollars. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where all the members of our staff are dedicated to serving you -- we will be happy to answer any questions you may have. Our concern is your comfort and confidence -- our goal is to help preserve your natural teeth for a lifetime. Please call (617) 479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. It is estimated that one in ten adults grinds his or her teeth while sleeping.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"We are debtors" - Romans 8:12. In an age when the word is "Give me this" or "Give me that," words like "we are debtors" are not popular. Our first reaction is to deny it and say that we have met all our obligations and are not in debt to any man. But when we begin to think on the matter we come to realize that there is not a single moment in our lives when we are not obligated to someone or to something. We were born into a world where for centuries men and women have been laboring to make the burden of life a little lighter for us. Wars have been fought and blood has been shed so that we might have liberty. Churches and organizations have endeavored to foster and nurture the good in men, and through their combined efforts most of the people we met on life's highway are reasonable and kind. Schools have banished much of our ignorance, and Medical Science has conquered many of our diseases, and for these and countless other blessings "We are debtors."

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A turn in a relationship upsets the amorous Arian, who is puzzled by Cupid's romantic antics. Be patient and considerate. The confusion will soon sort itself out.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a good time for travel-loving Taurans to take off for fun-filled jaunts to new places. And don't be surprised if Cupid tags along for what could be a very eventful trip.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You appear to be of two minds about continuing a relationship that seems to be riding roughshod over your emotions. A frank talk could help you decide one way or the other.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Stepping back from a relationship problem provides a new perspective on how to deal with it. Meanwhile, watch your words. Something said in anger now could backfire later.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A changing situation makes the Big Cat uneasy. But hold on until things settle down around the 4th. Meanwhile, continue your good work on that still-unfinished project.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A decided improvement in a work-place situation results in an unexpected, but very welcome, added benefit for everyone. Personal relationships also improve.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Money matters remain a bit unsettled but will soon ease into the kind of stability you appreciate. Meanwhile, an expanding social life offers a chance to make new friends.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Use an unexpected roadblock in your monetary dealings to reassess your financial plans and make changes, if necessary. It will soon be smooth sailing again.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Aspects of love are strong for both single and paired Sagittarians. Professional dealings also thrive under the Sag's clever handling of difficult situations.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Set a realistic goal and follow it through to completion. Remember: You're more likely to impress the right people with one well-done job than with lots of jobs left undone.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You like to plan ahead. That's fine. But be prepared to make some changes because of an unsettled period that influences your aspects through the 4th.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A brief phase of instability affects your usual work cycle. Use the time to catch up on chores around the house or office. Things settle down soon after the 4th.

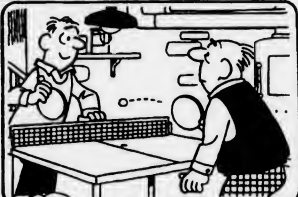

BORN THIS WEEK: You love being the center of attention and would probably be a big success in show business.

Dennis Sweeney Funeral Director Receives Pre-Planning Designation

A national certification program for consultants who help families plan funeral services in advance has awarded the designation of Standard Certified Preplanning Consultant (CPC) to Joseph M. Reardon of Milton, a funeral director with Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home of Quincy.

"The CPC designation means that families who are planning funeral services in advance should receive the highest quality most ethical service possible", said Colleen Murphy Klein, who coordinates the program for the Funeral Service Educational Foundation (FSEF) in Brookfield, Wisconsin.

"Those who have earned the CPC designation are uniquely qualified to help families plan appropriate and sensitive services while also dealing with ethical, contractual, funding, customer service and consumer protection issues."

The CPC program was instituted in 1995 by FSEF, a foundation dedicated to advancing professionalism in funeral service and enhancing public knowledge and understanding through education and research.

In order to earn the CPC designation, a funeral service professional must demonstrate a sustained commitment to excellence in funeral service, Klein said. Each candidate must submit professional qualifications, pass the course of study prescribed by FSEF and pass a comprehensive examination before the designation may be awarded. In addition, each CPC must fulfill annual continuing education requirements and adhere to the CPC Code of Ethics.

"The CPC program is a wonderful way for our firm to maintain our commitment to providing the best possible service to the families who call on us," said Dennis S. Sweeney, president of Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home. "It will be an invaluable tool for us to use when helping families with funeral prearrangements."

"I am proud to be a part of the long tradition of caring and compassionate service offered by Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home", said Reardon. "The CPC program and CPC Code of Ethics will help me to continue to serve families in the tradition."

The Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St. serving Quincy families since 1917, provides traditional funerals, cremation services, graveside and memorial services, and also offers a comprehensive prearrangement program.

Brian Glennon Admitted To U.S. Supreme Court Bar

Brian E. Glennon of Quincy, a 1997 graduate of Suffolk University Law School, was recently sworn in as a member of the Bar of the United States Supreme Court.

He and 45 of his Suffolk Law School alumni colleagues traveled to Washington, D. C. to be sworn in.

The 46 appeared before six of the nine justices of the U. S. Supreme Court.

They took their oaths after Suffolk University Law School Dean Robert R. Smith made the motion to have them admitted to practice before the Supreme Court.

Cahill Accents 'Tim' In Run For State Treasurer

you if you expect them to give you money. If people are willing to invest in you then you are doing all right."

Even at the tender age of 43, Cahill (Tim) is a veteran office-holder who is serving his eighth two-year term on the Quincy City Council and finishing his first and only six-year term as Norfolk County treasurer.

"I'm the only treasurer who's running for treasurer," he constantly reminds voters.

He doesn't see his family — wife, Tina, and daughters Makenna, 18; Nicole, 15; Devin, 13; and Kendra, 10 — as much as he would like but, with campaign headquarters in Quincy (100 Penn St.), he's able to duck home as much as possible.

"The girls are at a good age for me," he said. "It would be hard to be away for any length of time if they were smaller."

Already, Cahill (Tim) knows what he is going to do when (not if) he is elected state treasurer.

"I'm going to set up the state pension fund by diversifying stocks," he said. "I'm going to do the schools and educate students on the perils of credit card debt."

"And the next treasurer is going to play a role in the casino debate. Massachusetts has to make a decision on casinos and the proper place is in the treasurer's office, not just the legislature."

"The time has come for casinos in the state. People in the western part of the state support it. So do people in New Bedford. People like to gamble. We're losing too much business to Connecticut."

Cahill (Tim) says he feels casino gambling would succeed aim Massachusetts tied in with a good cause.

"The state of Georgia had trouble convincing people that a lottery would be a good thing," he said. "Then they attached a scholarship to it. The Hope Scholarships in Georgia have been a success."

"But all that is not going to be done in a year or two. I plan to be state treasurer for eight years. That's the time it will take to accomplish what I want."

Five Vacancies To Be Filled Aug. 20 21 Respond To Search For College Governors

A search by Quincy College to fill five vacancies on its Board of Governors has attracted 21 individuals, including nine residents of Quincy.

The five vacancies will be filled Tuesday, Aug. 20.

"We probably had twice as many individuals call and inquire as to the expectations and time commitments," said Quincy College President Sean Barry. "Response was exceptional and I was thrilled to have so many folks interested in learning more about us. I credit the advertisements, letters, and media attention. Nearly every call was supportive and enthusiastic."

The deadline for letters of interest was Aug. 9, but Barry said additional letters postmarked Aug. 9 would also be accepted. Packets of the applicants credentials will be forwarded to the appointing council today (Thursday).

The appointing council will hold an open meeting Monday, Aug. 19 at 7 p.m. in the Sullivan Room, Saville Hall, Quincy College. The meeting is optional for applicants, who met the Friday deadline, to address the council and to perhaps answer questions from the

Closing Out 36 Year Public Career

LaRaia Stepping Down As Assessor

By LANCE MORGANELLI

Quincy assessor and former mayor Joseph LaRaia said he will retire at the end of August, bringing to an end a 36-year career of public service.

LaRaia, who served one term as mayor from 1976 to 1977, has also served as a city councillor and in the state welfare office.

Mayor William Phelan said LaRaia, who was appointed an assessor by then

Mayor James Sheets in 1995, is taking a "well deserved" retirement. Phelan said LaRaia had planned to retire earlier this year but stayed on because he wanted to serve the city with his experience for at least the first six months of the year as Quincy experienced some uncertain financial times.

LaRaia, who will turn 70 on Aug. 25, said he is retiring (Cont'd On Page 13)

Paul Harold: 'He Put People First'

By TOM HENSHAW

"Since high school, I knew that my career would be in law and politics..."

Thus Paul Harold began his memoirs that were still a long way from finished when death caught up with the veteran Quincy politician early Monday morning at the untimely age of 53.

Politics had been his life for more than 30 years, starting as an intern in the Washington office of Congressman James Burke, through the city council, the state senate and, finally, county register of deeds.

He traveled around the world, sowing the seeds of democracy at the behest of the U. S. Information Agency but always he returned to the city he loved and the people for whom he cared.

"He loved the city," said Ann Knafelz, his longtime secretary when he was state senator. "I spent 14 years with him. People were so important to him. He made sure the people came first."

"He tried to help everyone," said John Gillis, now retired after many years as city clerk of Quincy. "He didn't know how to hurt people. It's a great loss to Quincy."

Tributes to Mr. Harold came from Quincy's City Hall to Washington's Capitol Hill.

"Paul had the unique ability to be able to see right from wrong and the courage to stand up and speak out on what he believed in whether it was popular opinion at the time or not," said Mayor

William Phelan. "People knew they could trust Paul to do the right thing."

"When I think of Quincy I think of Paul Harold," said Congressman Bill Delahunt. "Collectively, we suffered a great loss. I see him overlooking this community with a big smile on his face."

Paul Harold was born in Dorchester but the family — father Joseph, mother Marguerite (Burke), sister Marybeth and brothers Joseph and William — moved to Quincy when Paul was an infant. He grew up in Adams Shore.

He attended the Nathaniel Hunting School, Broad

Meadows Junior High School, Sacred Heart High of Weymouth, UMass-Amherst (a degree in government in 1970) and, later, Suffolk Law School and the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard (a master's degree in Public Administration).

He worked as a Patriot Ledger carrier boy, a tour guide at the Adams Birthplaces, a dishwasher at Howard Johnson's, a bundle boy at Star Market and a clam digger on the flats of Adams Shore, Houghs Neck and Wollaston.

Then, at 23, he was ready for his first plunge into the (Cont'd On Page 15)

Mayor Welcomes Applicants For City Tourism Council

Interested parties who would like to submit an application to be a member of the city's newly formed Tourism Board have until Sept. 2 to do so, announces Mayor William Phelan.

In February, Phelan established the Quincy Tourism Advisory Committee which was charged with developing an action plan to achieve the maximum economic impact possible from tourists for the City of Quincy. Since its creation, the Advisory Committee has submitted an action plan to Phelan, which he approved in July.

Part of the Advisory Committee plan calls for the creation of a non-profit organization run by a 15-member board of directors, who will be elected by a nominating committee and approved by the mayor. The members will include three seats for each of the main tourism groups: hotel, restaurants, businesses, and sites/attractions; a mayoral appointee; the chairman of the City Council's Economic Development Committee; and a Quincy resident.

Anyone interested in serving on the board should submit a letter of interest and a resume (if available) to the nominating committee, no later than Monday, Sept. 2. Letters and/or resumes may be sent via e-mail to kpriscella@ci.quincy.ma.us, or mailed to:

Area Without Water 36 Hours

Connolly Wants DPW Report On South Quincy Water Main Break

Ward 4 City Councillor Bryan Connolly has called on the Quincy Department of Public Works to prepare a public report on the major water main break in South Quincy July 16, a break he says that is considered one of the worst in the city in 20 years.

Connolly introduced a resolution that passed unanimously at Monday's City Council meeting requesting the DPW "to prepare a report on the causes of the South Quincy water main break on July 16, 2002, on the reasons for complications which required such a lengthy repair effort, and on its proposals and plans to prevent a comparable interruption in water service in South Quincy homes and businesses in the future."

The break caused many

South Quincy homes and businesses to be without running water for approximately 36 hours, Connolly said. Staff at the DPW brought water to people in need during this time.

"A lack of water service for such a long time is something that we cannot accept in this city," Connolly said. "A public report is necessary so that those affected by the break get the explanation they deserve and so that we can assure our neighborhoods that we are taking every step we can to prevent an event like this from recurring."

"Fortunately, we have many dedicated employees at the DPW who worked tirelessly overnight to contain and repair this break. They should all be commended for their hard work and commitment." The break of a 16-inch water main occurred in the area of Malnati's Block near the intersection of Liberty Street and Brook Road. An aging water and sewer infrastructure complicated the repair effort.

Connolly said that this event reinforces the need to reinvent in South Quincy's water, sewer and drain infrastructure. Dating to the late 19th and early 20th centuries, the current systems are among the oldest in the city, he said.

"This water main break reminds us how crucial it is that we make a major commitment to improving the water systems that serve our neighborhoods, especially those in South Quincy affected by this recent break," Connolly said.

The Quincy Animal Shelter will host a benefit cruise on Boston Harbor aboard The Spirit of Boston Sunday, Sept. 8, from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Boarding will be at 5:30 p.m.

The cruise departs from Commonwealth Pier, 200 Seaport Blvd., Boston. Proper dress is required.

Tickets at $100 per person ($50 is tax deductible) and include gourmet dinner buffet, live musical floor show, celebrity guests, dancing and six hours parking at the Seaport Hotel Garage. All proceeds benefit animals currently waiting for homes.

Sponsors are still needed. For tickets and sponsorship information, call Leigh Gledhill at 617-376-1349.

The Quincy Animal Shelter (QAS) is a volunteer-run organization. It was incorporated in November, 1999, as a non-profit Massachusetts charity. It is also a recognized charity under the Internal Revenue Service code. In its first two and a half years, it has placed 1,500 unwanted dogs and cats into loving homes.

As a "no-kill" shelter, QAS makes every effort to find an appropriate placement for every animal rendered into its care. This means QAS exercises the same ethical and humane treatment of animals in its care that you would for your own family feline or canine friend.

Every animal receives age-appropriate vaccinations and, if old enough, is neutered before finding its family.

Education Funding, Squantum Gardens Focus Of Phelan's Washington Trip

Mayor William Phelan recently traveled to Washington, D.C., to meet with federal officials relative to Quincy's allotment of Title I educational funding and with representatives of U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) concerning Squantum Gardens.

Phelan met with the senior education counsel to Sen. Ted Kennedy, the legislative assistant to Sen. John Kerry, and the executive assistant to Cong. William Delahunt to discuss the specific method used to determine the amount of Title I funds allocated pursuant to the "No Child Left Behind Act of 2001." Phelan is questioning the amount of Title I educational funds the city received this year.

Phelan also called on Quincy's legislative delegation for assistance, since the state Department of Education is responsible for dispersing the funds to cities and towns.

"Title I educational funding for the City of Quincy has been reduced this year," Phelan said. "This troubles me, particularly since overall amount of Title I educational monies dispersed to the Commonwealth this year increased significantly. I was, however, encouraged by reports I received with regard to competitive federal grants in the areas of early literacy, afterschool programs and technology."

The mayor also met with the Acting Associate Deputy Assistant Secretary for Multifamily Housing Programs concerning the plan by Elder Housing Corporation, Inc., to build affordable senior housing at Squantum Gardens. Phelan discussed possible alternatives in the event that Elder Housing Corporation, a non-profit corporation created under the Sheets administration, is unable to obtain financing. Elder Housing Corporation is currently in breach of its contract with HUD.

City Council Vote Unanimous McFarland Re-appointed Auditor For Three Years

By LANCE MORGANELLI

The Quincy City Council Monday night unanimously reappointed City Auditor Michael McFarland to a three-year term effective Oct. 1.

McFarland apologized to city councillors for his actions associated with paying city bills with unappropriated funds.

McFarland agreed to Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro's request to submit a memo to the City Council detailing the set of new procedures that will be followed to avoid future non-regulatory payments of city bills.

MICHAEL MCFARLAND

and will prevent the acts from happening again.

After the meeting, McFarland said he is ready to get on with the business at hand and put the matter behind him.

"At this point in time with the monies appropriated for the budget versus what we anticipate for the revenues the city is in solid financial shape," McFarland said.

"At some point I do believe we will have some additional appropriations that will come in and we will have to deal with those as they come, but right now based on the amount of money we have received for our revenue and also the amount of money we have projected for our expenses we are in balance."

McFarland said and announced the Cherry Sheets -- the amount of local aid from the state -- indicates Quincy's accounts are in currently in balance.

$15M QMC Bond Issue Sent To Committee

A requested $15 million bond issue for the city to meet its financial obligations to Quincy Medical Center was sent to the Finance Committee at Monday night's City Council meeting.

A home rule petition authorizing the city to issue general obligation bonds to meet its financial commitments to QMC was signed into law by Acting Gov. Jane Swift last month.

The home rule petition allows the city to issue bonds or notes in amounts not to exceed $15 million to make the payments.

When the hospital was privatized, the city, Boston Medical Center Corporation, Quincy Hospital and Quincy Medical Center entered into an affiliation agreement ob-ligating the city to make certain payments to Quincy Medical Center.

The remaining payments totaling $14,570,152 have to be made over the next three fiscal years.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Aug. 18, 1227, Genghis Khan, the Mongol leader who forged an empire stretching from the east coast of China west to the Aial Sea, dies in camp during a campaign against the Chinese kingdom of Xi Xia. He was over 60 and in failing health and may have succumbed to injuries incurred during a fall from a horse the previous year.

• On Aug. 13, 1928, WRNY in Coytesville, N.J., became the first station to broadcast a television image. The studio broadcast an image of a woman's face to New York City, where it was viewed by 500 people. The transmitted image was only 1.5 inches square.

• On Aug. 17, 1943, U.S. Gen. George S. Patton and his 7th Army arrive in Messina several hours before British Field Marshal Bernard L. Montgomery and his 8th Army, winning the unofficial "Race to Messina" and completing the Allied conquest of Sicily.

• On Aug. 14, 1945, comedian, actor and writer Steve Martin is born in Waco, Texas. Martin moved to Garden Grove, Calif., and as a teen worked at Disneyland, entertaining crowds with magic tricks and later with banjo music and comedy.

• On Aug. 15, 1961, East German authorities begin building a wall — the Berlin Wall — to permanently close off access to the West. For the next 28 years, it stood as the most tangible symbol of the Cold War — a physical "iron curtain" dividing Europe.

• On Aug. 16, 1977, popular music icon Elvis Presley dies in Memphis, Tenn., at age 42. The death of the "King of Rock and Roll" brought legions of mourning fans to Graceland, his mansion in Memphis.

• On Aug. 12, 1985, a Japan Air Lines Boeing 747SR crashes into Mount Otsuka. There were 524 people aboard, and all but four were dead by the time rescuers reached the remote crash site 12 hours later.

Remembering Paul

We knew the bad news was coming but it didn't lessen the pain when it did early Monday.

Paul Harold, one of Quincy's all-time brightest and most popular political stars, was gone after a two-year battle with stomach cancer. At 53, in the prime of his life.

Those close to him had hoped — and prayed — that he had more time.

He certainly fought for it. He was upbeat — despite pain — throughout most of his ordeal right up to the very end when he quietly slipped away with his family gathered around him and May or Bill Phelan holding his hand.

Paul endorsed Phelan in last November's city election which was seen as a good sized factor in the latter's 17-vote upset win over six-term incumbent James Sheets. He and Phelan became good friends.

Paul, the past few months, was still making future plans and talking about projects he would like to do.

One was to have the Dorothy Quincy Homestead become part of the Adams National Historical Park under the supervision of the U.S. National Park Service.

This would guarantee, he said, the proper upkeep and maintenance of the beautiful Colonial home where John Hancock wooed and won the pretty Dorothy Quincy.

Years before, he had worked with U.S. Senator Morris Udall to have the city turn the Presidents Adams birthplaces over to the National Park Service for the same reason. If John and John Quincy Adams were still around they would have given their blessing as the two birthplaces were beginning to sag with age.

Paul had a great love and respect for American history — especially Quincy's.

Despite his illness, he stayed busy and had just started writing his memoirs.

So many things to do. So little time, it turned out, to do them.

"I can get some of this done by November," he said. But November wasn't to come for him.

His political career spanned 27 years: city councillor, city council president, state senator and Norfolk County Register of Deeds. Many believed he could have been mayor if he wanted it. He didn't.

What he did want was to go to Washington. He gave up his state senate seat in 1992 to run for Congress which seemed like a good idea at the time. Good friend and incumbent Brian Donnelly was stepping down.

An open seat was worth taking a shot at and Paul had a good shot at that one. Until the open seat vanished when Quincy was redistricted into Gerry Studds' 10th Congressional District. Paul would have needed dynamite to get Studds out of there.

Paul's introduction to politics wasn't what you would call spectacular. He was politically baptized into politics in 1971, losing a bid for state representative to Thomas Brownell, now a presiding court justice.

Two years later he entered the city arena when incumbent Edward Graham decided not to seek reelection to the Ward 1 council seat.

Leo Kelly won the seat by 48 votes.

Two quick strikes on Paul. But he was far from out. Two years later he came back to win an at-large seat. And his career was off and flying.

In 1977, he set the all-time council at-large vote-getting record with a smashing 21,243. That was 7,416 more than runner-up John Quinn in that election and 7,615 more than third-place winner Frank McCauley, a couple of heavy hitters.

Paul, you might say, was the Marco Polo of local elected officials, traveling all over the world lecturing for the State Department's U.S. Information Agency.

Among the countries: England, Ireland, Italy, China, Japan, Russia, Burma, to name a few.

Paul, a graduate of Broad Meadows Middle School, made a sentimental trip to Pakistan. It was in the late 1990s, carrying the Broad Meadows school banner to the school Broad Meadows students raised money to build in memory of Iqbal Masih, the 12 year old former child labor slave who had visited Broad Meadows in 1994 seeking students help to end child labor.

He was murdered on his return home. The Broad Meadows students, in his memory, spearheaded a drive that raised $147,000 to build a five-room school in his name. The Broad Meadows banner hangs prominently on a wall in that school.

Paul got to meet many notables of the world — both here and overseas — and was as at ease with them as with a Quincy constituent.

Among them: Pope John Paul II, Queen Noor of Jordan, Mother Teresa, Lord Mayor Briscoe of Dublin, Presidents Jimmy Carter and Bill Clinton, now Senator Hillary Clinton, would-be presidents Gary Hart and George McGovern, U.S. House Speaker Thomas (Tip) O'Neill, and more.

Quincy Sun readers knew Paul for another reason besides politics and traveling. He wrote the popular Quincy Yesterdays column for many years. In fact, he originated it.

He also came up with the idea of The Quincy Sun Citizen of The Year Award honoring reader nominees for outstanding community service.

Paul actually got his public career started here at The Sun.

I remember the day back in 1969 or 1970 when The Sun was located on the second floor of the Kincaide building on Hancock St.

And a young fellow came bounding up the stairs and burst into the office.

"I want to be a reporter," he said. "I want to get out and meet people and get to know them and write about them."

Well, things were pretty tight for The Sun back then. We were only in our second year and the future was anyone's guess.

"I like your enthusiasm," I told him. "But right now we don't have anything open."

He was determined.

"I really want the job," he continued. "I don't want any money."

Those were the magic words. "Well," I told him. "Maybe we can find something for you."

And that's how Paul came to work for The Sun as a reporter. And he did get out to meet a lot of people. Who probably later voted for him.

We often laughed about that day he came running up the stairs. Especially when he started picking up a paycheck.

Paul always remained loyal to The Sun as he did to his constituents.

He would have made a good reporter if he stayed. He would have been a good diplomat. He had as good a grasp on the world scene as he did on the local.

I had the privilege of knowing him some 32 years. I liked and respected him those 32 years. I just wish we had 32 more.

He was a good friend. And in many ways, a son.

Gonna miss you, Paul.

100 Degrees Breaks 77-Year Record

By PAUL HAROLD

A 77-year record was broken this week as the temperature reached 100 degrees.

Deputy Fire Chief Thomas Maloney said the fire peril in the city was the worst it had been in 20 years, with 15 grass and woods fires in a single day.

This Week
1949

53 Years Ago

One fire behind the Pollard School reached a foot below the surface, requiring firefighters to dig trenches around the perimeter of the fire.

5,000 WORKERS IN SHIPYARD STOPPAGE

Some 5,000 of the 6,700 daytime production workers at the shipyard staged a 45-minute work stoppage to demonstrate their support for union demands in the current contract negotiations.

The workers heard Local 5 CIO President Donald Edmonston and Vice President James Mortimer outline the union's contract strategy. They then marched past the administration building to show their support for the union leaders.

A company spokesman said the protesting workers would not be paid for the 45 minutes they were off the job.

Meanwhile, at Baltimore, workers demonstrated at Bethlehem Steel's Sparrow Point and Key Highway shipyards.

NO WRONG DOING FOUND IN CHIEF'S EXAM

Attorney General Francis Kelly reported to Mayor Charles Ross that he found no evidence of fraud in the action of the state civil service commission relative to the recent Quincy Police chief exam.

As a result, the list would stand as corrected, with Capt. James Kemp in sixth place, instead of first place he held on the original list.

READERS FORUM

Paul Harold: A Man Known By His Deeds

When they write the history of Quincy politics, one of the biggest chapters will be the one on Paul Harold. At his death he was the Norfolk County Register of Deeds, an office he won only in 2000. Before that he was a city councilor and a state senator.

For 27 years he was an important part of the Quincy landscape. Back in 1975 at 27 years of age he got himself elected to the Quincy City Council. Three years later he unseated the incumbent state senator Arthur Tobin, a former Quincy mayor in the 1978 state senate primary. He stayed in the state senate for seven terms. In 1992 he took on U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds for Congress in the old 10th district and suffered his only loss in his 27 years of public service. In 1996 he bounced back and won a return to the City Council.

Many thought he would run for mayor but two years ago he decided to run for his Register of Deeds county post. He was a rare politician. A real person. A quiet man. A doer. He never forgot who elected him; he called you right back. You had a question. He had the answer.

Paul Harold was my friend. Few people ever had anything bad to say about him. As Quincy Mayor Bill Phelan said, "He had integrity and he loved the city. He had the ability to speak his convictions whether everyone else was behind him or disagreed. He formed his own judgments. He made a career of helping others and was someone who cared. The city will miss him."

Quincy District Court Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin, the man Harold upset back in the 1978 election for state senate, said of Harold, "Paul was never malicious...Paul loved politics. It was never personal with him. He loved the city and what he was doing."

Over his entire political career Paul always fought with passion. He was a tireless fighter for the causes he believed in. He rarely lost. Over the past two years Paul continued to fight his worse opponent. He battled daily against his cancer. Fighting to stay alive and win another day. In the end, his cancer beat him but Paul Harold left this life a winner because he never gave up despite any odds or that the deck had been stacked against him when he got sick.

The Paul Harold I will remember is the friend and fighter. The man who was trying to make a difference for those he served. He did not go quietly into the night, he fought all the way like every campaign he ever waged.

So long Paul, you were one of the good guys!

Political Compass For President Bush

I would like all my "fellow citizens of the world" to love America as much as the most patriotic, "my fellow Americans."

To achieve that I would like to offer my President, President Bush, this political compass:

"Glory to God in the Highest, Peace on Earth, Good will towards men."

I feel that it would be also useful, for all of us, if we remembered Dr. Martin Luther King's warning:

"If we don't learn to live together as brothers, we will surely perish together as fools."

Walking Tour Of Merrymount Park Sept. 14

Frederick Law Olmsted National Historic Site will sponsor a walking tour of Quincy's Merrymount Park Saturday, Sept. 14, at 1 p.m.

Merrymount Park, the heart of the Quincy Park System, is a site rich in natural beauty and cultural history. The walk will explore the trails and natural features of the park as well as its connections to the Adams family of Quincy and the landscape architectural firm of "America's parkmaker," Frederick Law Olmsted.

The tour will start at 1 p.m. at the entrance to the Quincy Park Department Headquarters, 100 Southern Artery, Quincy. It will be held rain or shine and is free and open to the public.

For more information on this walk and other programs, call Frederick Law Olmsted National Historic Site at 617-566-1689, extension 207.

'Rock & Roll' 50's Party At The Highlands At Faxon Woods

The Highlands at Faxon Woods, 2001 Falls Blvd., Quincy, recently celebrated a step back to the 1950s, with a "Let's Rock in Roll" party in the courtyard of the brand-new premier apartment community.

Residents, families, and friends from the Quincy community joined in the festivities, which included a disk jockey playing favorite fifties tunes and a hula-hoop contest. Johnny Rockets of Braintree catered the event, with its staff serving up hot dogs, hamburgers, fries, malts, sundaes, and flavored sodas. "Johnny Carson" even made an appearance.

"This was a terrific kick-off event for our community. We all enjoyed a fun summer evening. Not only did our residents enjoy the great music and food, many members of the Quincy community came to tour The Highlands at Faxon Woods for the first time," said Jennifer Landry, director of Operations.

"We also had a terrific turnout by fellow members of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce. Because of the enormous success of this party, several other events are planned for the next few months, including a "Fall Swing" in September, a Black & White Masquerade Ball in October, and a charity fashion show event in conjunction with Macy's in November."

Lori Allen Wed To Brian Molkenhuth

A reception at Lake Pearl Luciano's in Wrentham followed the recent wedding of Lori Allen and Brian Molkenhuth. The Rev. John Connolly officiated at the ceremony in St. Mary's Church, Wrentham.

The bride, formerly of Quincy, is the daughter of Margaret and Paul Allen of East Bridgewater. The groom is the son of Deborah and Kenneth Molkenhuth of Nutley, N.J.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by her cousin, Jeannine Clifford as Matron of Honor. Julie McLaughlin was Maid of Honor.

Bridesmaids were Cynthia Molkenhuth, sister of the groom, Kimberly Motto and Jennifer Smith.

Kenneth Molkenhuth was Best Man for his brother. Ushers were Paul Allen, brother of the bride, Michael Mascitello and Donald Peters.

The bride graduated from Quincy High School and Northeastern University with a BS in Criminal Justice. She is employed as a special education teacher by the Jersey City Board of Education.

The groom is a graduate of Nutley High School in New Jersey and Northeastern University, also with a BS in Criminal Justice. He is vice president of KRM Electric, INC. Bloomfield, NJ.

After a cruise to the Caribbean, the couple are living in Belleville, NJ.

Mr., Mrs. Kipp Caldwell Parents Of Daughter

Nicole and Kipp Caldwell of Quincy, are parents of a daughter, Ashley Laura born May 5 at South Shore Hospital, Weymouth. She joins a sisters, Samantha and Jessica.

Grandparents are Robert and Diane LaRocca of Weymouth, and Charles and Gladys Caldwell of Quincy.

KAILA SAXE (far right) is shown in Costa Rica where she spent three weeks with a Spanish speaking family and attended the Forester Institute in San Jose.

Kaila Saxe Studies In Costa Rica

Kaila Saxe of 80 Sea Ave., Hough's Neck, a student at Quincy High School, spent three weeks in July living with a Spanish-speaking family in San Jose, Costa Rica, to improve her command of the language.

She attended the Forester Institute in San Jose, which has an immersion program in Spanish especially designed for teens. But the time spent in the Central American country was not all work for the teenagers in the program.

"In the morning we had different activities planned," said Kaila. "We went to museums, took a trip to see a volcano, visited a coffee plantation and, of course, went shopping."

"I was there during the rainy season so it rained every afternoon. Spanish classes were held in the afternoon so the rain did not bother me."

"I loved my host family. I lived with a family that had two teen-aged boys."

"My Costa Rican mom was very caring, but she was very strict. In Costa Rica, girls are not supposed to go out at night. I am used to going out with my friends so it seemed weird to stay in at night. There was another student from Atlanta who stayed with my host family so I had fun hanging out with her."

The most difficult problems confronting Kaila were communicating with others as well as she would have liked, figuring out the bus routes and just getting around.

"In San Jose," she said, "the bus only stops if you wave it down. The first couple of times I did not flag the bus down correctly and it passed right by me."

Costa Ricans, she said, give directions by landmarks and not by street addresses, which can be confusing. But the simplicity of home life in San Jose appealed to her.

"We have way too much stuff in our houses," she said. "Since there is no home mail delivery in San Jose, they do not have piles of junk mail like we do."

She can't wait to return next year.

"I wish my mother had sent me for six weeks," said Kaila. "I was just getting used to the lifestyle and then it was time to come home."

To Them He Was Someone Special

Colleagues, Friends In Tribute To Paul Harold

Mayor William Phelan
"It was fortunate to have the opportunity to get to know Paul much better in the last year. I came to admire him as a public servant and respect him as a friend. I was especially proud to receive his endorsement in the most recent election and I know it was a significant factor in my being elected mayor."

Paul had the unique ability to see right from wrong and the courage to stand up and speak out on what he believed in, whether it was popular opinion at the time or not. People knew that they could trust Paul to do the right thing and that is why he was such a well liked public official.

The city is deeply saddened at the loss of an honest, forthright and dedicated public servant and I am personally saddened by the loss of a friend."

Arthur Tobin, former mayor who Paul Harold defeated for the state senate in 1978. "I was shocked when I heard he had died. He was only 53. It was shocking to see someone go so young. He loved his role in government. I don't remember him holding malice toward anyone. He spoke to the issue but nothing personal. It was refreshing. I knew he was sick so I'm glad we had an opportunity to talk before he died. He never had a cross word for anyone. It was a misconception that we were enemies. They were never a bother to him. When the death came, we were shocked."

Frank McCauley, former mayor and city councillor. "It was deeply saddened to hear of the untimely passing of my good friend and colleague in government Paul Harold. I have known Paul for over 30 years. We served five years together on the City Council as councillors at large."

Paul dedicated his life to public service as city councillor, Council president, state senator and currently register of deeds for Norfolk County. Many organizations benefited from Paul's active participation, the Boy Scouts and the Quincy Historical Society to name just two. He was also a member of the Kiwanis Club for many years.

"On a personal note, Paul crossed party lines to support my candidacy for mayor. The McCauley family held Paul in such high regard that at times it seemed he was part of our extended family. He will be sorely missed. Our family extends condolences to the members of Paul's family."

Dan Raymondi, president of the City Council. "It is a tremendous loss to the city of Quincy. Paul was dedicated to his family. He loved his city. He loved politics. He loved the Council and he loved this (Council) Chamber as evidenced by the chandeliers above us that he appropriated the funds for in memory of his mother and father."

"Paul exemplified all those characteristics and attributes that we look for in human beings. He loved his family, was a loyal friend and, as an elected official, he cared about all the issues his constituents brought before him. He was thoroughly prepared, easy to talk to and easy to listen to."

Those of us who served with him, those of us who were his constituents, will miss him and as a city politician, we will mourn his loss."

Bill Delahunt, congressman, former city councillor and county district attorney. "I share the sadness that everyone feels. When I think of Quincy, I think of Paul Harold. We have all suffered a loss. I called him 10 days ago. Immediately, he reminded me that we have to save the Josiah Quincy Homestead. I told Mayor Phelan that we have to save the Homestead as part of Paul's legacy. Collectively we share a great loss. Paul is probably overlooking this community right now with a big smile on his face."

Phil Johnston, chairman of the Massachusetts Democratic Party. "Paul was a tireless champion of the people of Quincy and the South Shore, from his long and distinguished tenure as state senator, a Quincy city councillor, and his most recent assignment of Norfolk County Register of Deeds."

"He was a passionate voice of liberal Democratic causes for many years and in many capacities. He was a true reformer fighting for his constituents on a daily basis and irrefragable when it came to taking up a political cause in the name of those who elected him to political office."

"I consider it an honor to have known Paul on a political level, but more importantly, as a trusted friend. He will be deeply missed by all of us on the South Shore."

Susan Connolly, assistant to the Norfolk County register of deeds. "I can't help thinking of the four poems that James Michael Curley told Tip O'Neill to learn and he'd always have something to say. One of them was About Ben Adhem. When the angel writing in the book of gold asked him how to describe him, About Ben Adhem said, 'Just write me as one who loved his fellow men.' That was Paul. He really did."

Ann Knafetz, his personal secretary as a state senator. "He loved the city. I spent 14 years with him at the State House. People were so important to him. I handled constituent problems for him. He made sure the people came first. He would say, 'Let's try this, or let's work around this.' He was always helping people."

Greg Hanley, city councillor. "Three years ago, Councillor Z(Joe) Newton and I had the pleasure of nominating Paul Harold as City Council president. Through those few years we didn't have the benefit of council college and took us under his wing. Recently, we spoke with him for over three hours and the way he carried himself with dignity and the way he bore his pain and hid his illness was evident to the very end. He was a very private man."

Joe Newton, city councillor. "I had the opportunity to see Paul with Joe Shea, a couple of weeks ago to see how he was doing, to see how great he was in fighting his illness. He was a very genuine person. That you saw is what you got."

"To have the opportunity to be friends with Paul the last couple of years, to visit with his friends from different nations around the world, some I couldn't even pronounce."

"You look at Paul's life and what he did here but he did so much around the world. His work with education, teaching in different countries, helping other countries with world problems. Today the city and the world has lost a good friend."

Doug Gutro, city councillor. "As a student of public administration for 20 years, I admired Paul Harold from afar. Over the past five years as president of the Ward Association, I had the opportunity to get to know him as a man, a candidate running for city councillor. I had the opportunity to watch him closely here in this body and have nothing but the utmost respect for him as a teacher and a leader and an inspiration."

"I think his legacy in the city is a strong one and I and my colleagues hope to emulate many of the terrific qualities that Paul Harold had as a councillor, teacher and a leader and as a man."

Kevin Coughlin, city councillor. "Like some of the other new colleagues here, I did not get the opportunity to serve with Paul. I came to know Paul through my work in the community close to a decade ago when I was becoming active and involved in certain issues that came before the licensing board and the city council."

"I had spoken to Paul on a number of occasions seeking his mentoring and advice. He was so approachable, so easy to speak with about issues and certainly possessed a great deal of wisdom that I know I benefited from. I certainly was pained to learn of his loss. The city tonight is less of a place because of his loss."

Bryan Connolly, city councillor. "My first memory of Paul was at St. Mary's as a fifth grader heading into the State House for a field trip. I remember Paul

PAUL HAROLD and William Phelan shake hands at 1000 Southern Artery after Harold endorsed him and promised to campaign for him for mayor shortly before the city election last November. Harold's endorsement, along with that of former Mayor Frank McCauley, was seen as helping to make a difference in Phelan's 17-vote upset win over 12-year incumbent James Sheets.

coming out of the chambers to talk with us for a half hour or so, and talking about parks and things we cared about. Paul Harold was our state senator. You don't forget these first impressions."

"Paul was someone who started in politics when he was even younger than I am and I'm certainly young to figuring out what I'm doing in these chambers. He just led a great example as someone who dedicated his life to public service, something we all here hope to follow."

Joe Finn, city councillor. "My relationship with Paul Harold centered around the time he was in the state senate. Often I was going up to speak as director of Father Bill's Place on behalf of people that others did not have the time of day for and he was always very open and very receptive to the needs here in Quincy."

"I can't help to be struck, however, over this past year or so that Paul Harold died pretty much the way he lived with quiet dignity and honor. I think that is something that should provide inspiration to us all."

Tim Cahill, city councillor and county treasurer. "His legacy will be as a representative of the citizens of Quincy. There was no one more in tune with the history of the city with its past and for its future. He wrote the column in the Quincy Sun (Quincy's Yesterdays) that reminded us of what had gone on before us."

"It was important for us here today to remember that there were great leaders here then that made the city what it is today and I think Paul bridged the generations. Paul was the string that held it all together. He will be missed not only in the political world but in the history and the fabric of this city."

Jack Lydon, who served with him on the City Council in the 1970s. "We were friends for more than 30 years. We served on the City Council together. Paul was a person who myself and my family grew to love. I have seen him through the good times and the bad times. My family will miss him tremendously."

Mike Linnane, a campaign worker for 30 years and campaign manager for 15 years. "He always remembered the little guy first. He used to sponsor kids' teams in baseball and hockey and other sports. Paul was the only guy who sponsored a team who came out to see their games. The kids used to get all excited. It meant a lot to them. It was typical Paul to be there for the little guys."

"As a lawyer, he used to draw up wills for gratis for people with no money. He loved the city. Just last Thursday he was conferring with the National Park Service about taking over the Dorothy Quincy House I've known him for 30 years. He was a great guy."

Pat McDermott, who was administrative assistant to the register of deeds. "Paul was the kind of a person who is needed in public service. I look on him as a mentor, personally, professionally and politically. We had the opportunity to run together for the City Council in 1995. We became colleagues and good friends. I consider the years with him a gift. He cared about people. In the last week he was concerned about his employees. He will be missed."

Sen. Michael Morrissey, who succeeded Paul Harold as state senator in the election of 1992. "He was a good friend. He was very helpful to me in my campaigns for the senate. The bad news for me was that he was a tough act to follow. He was people oriented and he worked hard. I saw him for the last time Friday night. He was still very alert but you could tell he was losing some steam. I went to see him Sunday night but by the time I got there he had passed away."

James Sheets, former mayor. "I knew him for a number of years. In fact, we started in Quincy politics together. The man was dedicated to the common people. He felt that his calling was to protect the common people in need. He was very gracious. It's hard to think of him as gone. He will be greatly missed."

George Burke, former state rep and city councillor. "I held the record for the number of votes cast for a city councillor. Paul broke it. If anyone broke it I would want it to be Paul. He was one of the finest public servants that the city of Quincy has ever known. I was a good friend of his brother, Joe, and when Joe died I continued the friendship with Paul."

Neil Murphy, longtime friend and political ally. "I've been a pal of his and a close personal friend. I've been around politics for a long time and Paul Harold was the most compassionate and wonderful, wonderful individual I have ever known. He is not only going to be missed by me but by everyone whose life he ever touched."

Sean Barry, president of Quincy College. "Paul taught courses in government here for a number of years. We were all saddened by his passing. The students will remember him as an excellent teacher. He was a real supporter of students here. We'll miss him."

John Gillis, county commissioner and former city clerk. "It's a great loss to the city of Quincy. He tried to help everybody. He didn't know how to hurt people. His mother used to work in my office. I gave him his first job as a census taker. I can't think of words to describe him. He lived life and he enjoyed it. We'll miss a great person."

Joe Shea, city clerk. "We lost a great guy, a great public servant. I enjoyed working with him. He did all the little things that make people comfortable. He will be sorely missed."

Jim Papile, former city assessor. "He was always there. He was always available. He never let me down. He and Kathy O'Donnell helped me when I ran for state rep from Quincy Point. When he ran for city council he asked my advice. I hosted his first campaign party at my outdoor pool in Quincy Point. I'll miss him."

Decided On Career In High School

Harold Was Writing His Memoirs: 'My Life In Politics'

Paul Harold had started to write his memoirs shortly before he died.

Entitled "My Life In Politics" he was nearing the end of the first chapter "Off And Running."

His family made the chapter available to The Sun for publication.

The text follows:
Since high school I knew that my career would be in law and politics, but I thought I'd be a staffer, not the elected official. However, having served in Washington and seeing the politicians up close I figured I could do as good a job, if not better myself, and be the boss.

I came home from Washington in the late summer of 1971, filled with enthusiasm to run in the special election for state representative to fill Arthur Tobin's seat. Jim McIntyre had announced earlier in the year he would take the job as Senate counsel, stepping down from both the mayoral and senate posts.

The plan of the McIntyre-Tobin group was to fill the vacancies in an orderly way with Tobin taking the senate seat. Tom Brownell taking the rep seat and Walter Hannon taking the mayor's seat.

I figured that under a democracy anyone could run for whatever they wanted without getting permission. Plus I thought I could win. The so called experts predicted that a special election would only draw a twenty per cent turnout, meaning you could win with as few as 800 votes. I got 800 votes but the campaign generated a forty per cent turnout.

Fired up for another campaign, I ran for the open Ward One council seat the following year. I bested Leo Kelly in the preliminary, but lost in November by forty-eight votes. At the time it was a heart breaker, but as I told Leo years later it was the best thing that ever happened because it forced me to run city wide the next time around which put me in the position to capture the real prize, the senate seat.

At age twenty-two I figured I was too young to retire from politics, and in a real sense my defeats helped build up my visibility and reputation city-wide as someone independent from what was commonly referred to as the "machine."

I announced for councilor-at-large in April of 1975 for what proved to be both an exciting and winning campaign. It's always more fun when you win.

In retrospect the field for councilor-at-large was pretty tough. What attracted me to the race was the vacancy created when Joe LaRaia decided to run for mayor. The vacancy also attracted Bill Delahunt and Hal Davis. Half-way through the campaign Governor Mike Dukakis named Delahunt District Attorney to replace George Burke. With Delahunt out and with his pledge of support my candidacy got the boost it needed. In the preliminary I placed fourth, behind Tobin, Quinn and Davis, but only sixty votes behind Davis.

We had no unique strategies for winning, just hard work, consisting of an extensive door-to-door effort, led by Mike Linnane, Kathy O'Donnell, Paul Bregoli, Phil Shea, Dougie Lloyd and John Slomkowski. Ann Leahy and Anne Corcoran pumped out so much mail from our second floor headquarters on Maple St. that the post office gave us our own set of bins. My college classmate and later a colleague in the legislature, Steve Karol served as campaign manager.

One gimmick that we used in the campaign was "The Harold Traveler." It was so successful, we used it in almost every subsequent race. It worked for us for a couple of reasons. First, most people called me Herald, rather than Harold, a reference to the newspaper. Second, by using a tabloid format we re-enforced the Herald/Harold name and got the biggest bang for the buck. It was cheaper than the simple palm card and it gave us four pages to develop in a news format articles and photos about the me, priority issues and stories about the people in the campaign. Edited by Bob Flavell, it was well written and helped develop a clear theme of what the campaign was all about.

As I stated earlier, it's always more fun when you win and we had some fun times from the Moonlight Cruise fund raiser aka booze cruise, to the late night pizza parties.

The latest and best pizza party was an impromptu one at Frank and Jeanne Myett's house. It was the night before the election and we still needed more signs for the polls. Frank ran the electric saw well past midnight. It was ok though because the neighbors were there hammering and stapling. Jeanne and Mary Lou McGrath threw together a spread for the workers that included Elio's Pizzas. For some reason the campaign associated our victory not just to the hard work of our volunteers, but to the Elio pizzas, so we re-created the Myett party every election eve for the next twenty years, just in case.

When the votes were tallied election night, I was elected councilor-at-large, leaping over Quinn and Davis, placing second with xxx votes. I'd be sworn in January and after some detours along the way I was starting my chosen career in elective politics.

Developers To Present Shipyard Plans At Public Forum Tonight

Prospective developers of the former Fore River shipyard will present their plans to officials and the public at a forum tonight (Thursday) at City Hall.

Congressman William Delahunt and Mayor William Phelan have invited developers to present their ideas to a panel and the public at a 6 p.m. forum in the City Council chambers.

Representatives of the U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD) have also been invited to speak on the status of its proceedings to take title and seek purchasers before developers make presentations and take questions.

Goal of the public forum is to create a mechanism for the community to stay informed of the development process and to assist MARAD to carry out its commitment to the region's public interest.

Officials invited to join Delahunt and Phelan on the panel include Congressman Stephen Lynch, Sen. Michael Morrissey, Rep. Ronald Mariano, Rep. Joseph Sullivan, Council President and Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond, and Braintree Selectmen David Shaw and Joseph Driscoll.

"As MARAD prepares to dispose of the property, I am deeply concerned as to the impact of any potential redevelopment plan on our community," Phelan said. "This forum will assist us and members of the public to obtain information that may not otherwise be available to us."

"The meeting provides a method by which local officials and members of the public may understand the opportunities ahead — before permanent commitments are made," Delahunt said. "It is our responsibility to embrace the challenge of restoring the commercial potential of this site in ways consistent with the public interest."

Quincy College Food Drive Benefits N.E. Food Bank

Quincy College recently welcomed the Greater Boston Food Bank for a campus food drive to collect donations from the Quincy College community.

Students, faculty and staff combined efforts to present the charitable organization with dozens of canned goods to be distributed by New England's largest hunger relief program.

The event was organized by college administrators in cooperation with Boston radio station WKKX-FM.

"Quincy College was thrilled to become part of the Food Bank's network of donors," said college President Sean Barry. "As a community, we're always seeking avenues to reach out to our community. This food drive was an example of our commitment to that perennial goal."

The Food Bank annually distributes 13 million pounds of food, for a total resale value of over $16 million. The food is distributed to a network of more than 900 member feeding programs, including soup kitchens, food pantries and homeless shelters throughout nine counties in eastern Massachusetts.

Geriatric Assessment Program For Seniors Aug. 19

Sharon Giordani, nurse practitioner at Quincy Medical Center, in conjunction with John Adams Continuing Care Center, will present a program on how a geriatric assessment can help seniors remain independent with the ability to do every day activities.

The program will be held Monday, Aug. 19, from 1 to 2 p.m. at the Squantum Gardens Community Center. The program is free and refreshments will be served.

For more information call Jane Lynn at 617-479-0837.

21 Respond To Search For College Governors

The six-member appointing council consists of Governors Theresa Lord-Piatelli and Geraldine Lewis; School Committee members Michael McFarland and Elaine Greene; and City Council President Daniel Raymond and Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton.

"I'm looking forward to working with five new governors," Lord-Piatelli said. "This process has provided a broad base of applicants, and the appointing council has some tough decisions to make. In the next six years the entire composition of the board will change, and the fiscal and educational improvements must continue."

"This year's recognition from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges recommended Quincy College on substantive improvements in finances, governance and programmatic success," she said.

Governors are appointed to a six-year term, and be reappointed once. The 13-member board of governors was established by the state legislature in 1994 when the governance change from the school committee created an autonomous governance structure.

Five members of the board had already been reappointed, and therefore could not be reappointed. They were part of the original board, having served a two-year term and then a full, six-year term.

"President Barry is organizing orientation and training for new members," Raymondi said, "similar to the training provided for new city councillors earlier this year. There is a learning curve to fully understand the legal obligations and expectations by accreditors and higher education in general. The new governors will find this useful and it will make their first year much more effective."

Raymondi said the recent success of the institution in its fifth year report, as well as improvements in disbursement of financial aid, speaks to the success in governance. Further, he said, Quincy residents comprise the largest percentage of students, as a percentage of the population, than any other community.

"The economic impact of the more than 100 full-time employees, and hundreds of adjunct instructors, as well as over 4,000 students, means Quincy College is a major business in Quincy Center," Raymondi said.

Nearly 50 years old, Quincy College serves more than 4,200 students each semester, and has been a self-supporting institution since the time of Proposition 2 1/2. The college receives no tax dollars from the state or city, and reimburses the city for services provided on its behalf. Governors are responsible for policy and fiscal oversight, and hire the president and chief financial officer.

The college placed advertisements in The Quincy Sun and The Patriot Ledger, and promoted the process on WJDA radio. Barry contacted hundreds of recent college graduates informing them of the process and encouraging them to participate.

Under the original legislation, two of the original governors were appointed from the School Committee and the City Council. Rep. Ronald Mariano, a member of the Quincy School Committee and then City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio were the two selections.

Alan Lambkin On Dean's List

Alan A. Lambkin of Quincy has been named to the spring term dean's list at Hartwick College, Oneonta, N. Y.

The son of Patricia and "Representative Mariano brought a number of skills to the board," Barry said. "He represents Holbrook, Weymouth and Quincy at the State House. He was a teacher, and he continues to be an advocate for education at all levels. Mr. Fabrizio continues to play a role in our foundation, a separate non-profit fundraising entity that supports college projects and scholarships."

Also departing: The Rev. Michael Wayne Walker, of Messiah Baptist Church, Brockton; Atty. Matthew McDonald of Quincy; and John McKenna Jr. of the Quincy Housing Authority.

Gov. Richard Hart Jr. died after the process began. Seven governors remain. They are: Lord-Piatelli, Raymondi, Lewis, John Farmer, Elizabeth Flynn, Joseph Nicastro, and Peter O'Neil.

Under the legislation, no more than four governors may reside outside of Quincy. Presently, only Flynn lives outside of Quincy, in Braintree.

Although letters of interest postmarked through the deadline of Aug. 9 will be honored, as of Monday, the college received interested from, in alphabetical order:

Robert Barra of Hingham; Raymond Cadogan, Quincy; Barbara Cannon, Hull; Simon Chan, Quincy; Barbara Clarke, Quincy;

*OFFER EXPIRES AUGUST 31

River Bay Club To Host Senior Fair Sept. 10

River Bay Club, a Brookdale community, will host its 11th Annual Senior Fair Tuesday, Sept. 10, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at River Bay Club, 99 Brackett St., Quincy.

The event has been planned as part of the observance of National Assisted Living Week. Sixty area vendors will participate in the event.

Planned activities include free health screenings, hearing testing, blood sugar testing, stress tests, blood pressure screening, bone density testing and more. In addition, there will be providers of a variety of services for seniors providing information on health, wellness and other services like financial planning, exercise, banking and relocating.

There will be some just for fun activities like Kountry Krafts, massage therapy, Reiki therapy and Tarot card readers.

Door prizes, raffles and free giveaways have been donated by all of the providers and will be raffled off throughout the day. WJDA is planning on broadcasting from River Bay Club during some parts of the day. The River Bay Club Cafe will be open for refreshments at lunchtime.

For more information about the Senior Fair events and screenings, call Albert Faving, director of Sales and Marketing, at 617-472-4457.

Landmarks Concert Friday

The Boston Landmarks Orchestra.

Charles Ansbacher conductor, along with State Street and the City of Quincy, will present two free performances of Prokofiev's children's classic, "Peter and the Wolf" at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre, One Merry Mount Parkway, Quincy, Friday, Aug. 16 at 10 and 11:30 a.m.

The concerts will be narrated by entertainment television reporter Dixie Whitley.

The concert is geared toward children ages 4-8, and runs about 40 minutes. In the event of rain, the performances will move indoors to Quincy High School.

For more information, call 617-520-2200 or visit www.LandmarksOrchestra.org.

The Boston Landmarks Orchestra receives support from Fleet, The Boston Foundation, State Street, Gerneshausen Foundation, Music Performance Trust Funds, The Boston Globe, WBZ Newsradio 1030, WGBH 89.7 and WCVB-TV 5.

The Landmarks Quincy Concerts are made possible in part by a grant from State Street, and the support of the City of Quincy, William J. Phelan, mayor.

This is the last in a 14-concert series of Landmarks Concerts for children, which have been performed in communities all over eastern Massachusetts. The Landmarks Concerts for Children are made possible by a grant from Fidelity Investments, through a grant from the Fidelity Foundation.

Bao Truong Selected For Research Project

Bao Truong, a senior at Quincy High School, was selected to do chemical research at Stonehill College this summer.

He worked under the direction of Leon Tilley, associate professor of chemistry, who is researching the synthesis of 4-trimethylsilyl-2-trifluoromethyl-2-butanol and derivatives with leaving groups appropriate for solvolytic rate studies.

Truong was one of five student applicants chosen to spend eight weeks at Stonehill as part of the American Chemical Society's (ACS) Project SEED (Summer Educational Experience for the Disadvantaged) program. Project SEED provides grants to academically gifted, economically disadvantaged students to participate in summer research at an academic, government or industrial laboratory.

In addition to obtaining hands-on experience in advanced laboratories, SEED students were also introduced to possible career paths and higher education options in the natural sciences. Special lunch programs were built into the summer schedule at Stonehill to inform the high school students about financial aid, admissions and student activities.

Twenty-two students applied for the SEED spots at Stonehill through a competitive process. During the eight weeks, Truong also worked with a Stonehill undergraduate student, a unique feature of the Project at the college.

Each SEED student received a $2,080 stipend along with transportation and research supply stipends. The Project SEED Endowment, the American Chemical Society and Verizon Foundation's EdLink program provided funding for the project.

Carolyn Housman Joins South Shore Mental Health

Carolyn Housman of Marshfield has been named program coordinator of South Shore Mental Health's Caring Connections program.

The program offers support for caregivers of elderly family members but, unlike support groups, focuses on the specific needs of the individual; or family.

Previously, Housman was supervisor of Social Work and coordinator of the Alzheimer's/Dementia Program at Affiliated Community VNA/Hingham Visiting Nurse and Community Services.

In addition, she maintains a private practice where she counsels adults and couples.

Housman received an undergraduate degree from Smith College and a graduate degree from Simmons School of Social Work.

LaRaia Stepping Down As City Assessor

to pursue other personal interests.

"I'll be devoting my time to traveling," LaRaia said. "For the past 19 years I did little traveling because I ran the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater Summer Fest performances."

LaRaia will also concentrate on his jazz singing hobby, which he has been practicing for the past five years. He will be performing in the North Shore and some Boston area locations.

During his career, LaRaia said he enjoyed developing the concert programs which evolved from small music performances outside City Hall to the annual Summer Fest attraction at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater.

Politically, he said he enjoyed being with and working with all his colleagues in city government. Getting serious with his colleagues while in council chambers and then being very humorous outside those chambers made his city government experience fondly memorable and worthwhile, he said.

LaRaia said he entered city government with a "visionary and textbook" idea of what it should be. He recalls quickly finding out the reality is people make the actual workings conversely different to whatever he learned in the classroom.

"It's nice to know the ground rules, but you have to combine them with people's own actions, hopes and dreams," LaRaia said.

"Having been in both the mayor's office and the council, I've found that the mayor's role is creative whereas the council is critical [of actions] and performs checks and balances," LaRaia said.

LaRaia's book, A City Under The Influence, assessed Quincy politics. It received both praise and criticism by Quincy residents and officials. He gave semester lectures on the book to Northeastern University government students who found the book an accepted view of political analysis, he said.

LaRaia will also devote more time to enjoying his two grandsons.

Phelan said Tuesday he is considering several candidates to replace LaRaia as city assessor. The mayor said he will make his decision after a reviewing process.

$962,500 Approved For N.Q. Sewer Project

The Quincy City Council Monday night approved $962,500 to be borrowed for Phase 1 of North Quincy's Lateral Sewer Improvements Project.

The sewerage system in the areas of Montclair, Sherman, and Belmont Streets will be reconstructed to prevent the constant back up problems residents have to deal with.

On a weekly basis the MWRA must pump out the clogged sewerage from the system to prevent houses, the nearby bog and Neponset and Wollaston Beach waters being backed-up with waste, according to Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin.

Diane Salidas of North Central St. and Tracey

Dorgan of Sherman St. explained how the human waste would back up into their homes and worsen an already existent health problem that Salidas and her family have.

Coughlin explained that Phase 2 will involve the reconstruction of the adjacent storm drains. The storm drain and sewer system currently can overflow into each other and cross contaminate sending waste into the drain pipes which flow into the bog and coastal waters.

Fond Memories Of Paul Harold

GETTING READY FOR his first city election in 1973, Paul Harold is shown with three of his favorite campaign supporters: his brother Joseph Harold Jr., father Joseph Harold and mother Marguerite Harold. Paul was defeated by Leo Kelly by 48 votes for the open Ward 1 city council seat. He had run previously for state representative and lost to Thomas Brownell, now a presiding court justice. Harold came back as a consistent top vote-getter.

PAUL HAROLD honored the memory of his father and mother, Joseph R. and Marguerite Harold, with the donation of two Victorian style chandeliers costing $10,000 for the City Council chambers where he served as a city councillor and council president. Here he (left) admires a plaque at a dedication ceremony in June. With him are his nephew, Joseph R. Harold III and former City Clerk John Gillis, now a Norfolk County commissioner. The plaque is dated Dec. 17, 2001, Harold's last meeting as council president.

PAUL HAROLD is sworn-in by City Clerk Joseph Shea after being re-elected City Council President in January, 2001.

(Quincy Sun Photo)

PAUL HAROLD dropped in on old friend Andy Card, President George W. Bush's Chief of Staff, in 2001 and asked him to see if he could get the President to visit Quincy, the birthplace of the first two father-son Presidents John and John Quincy Adams. Card, a Holbrook resident who served in the state legislature with Harold, said he would work on it.

THE HAROLD FAMILY visited Rome around 1964 and are shown in front of the Coliseum. That's Paul at about age 16 with his sister, Betsy, and parents, Marguerite and Joseph Harold. All are now gone.

IT WAS A proud day for Paul Harold when he established a web site for the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds shortly after his election as Register in 2000. He believed in making the office easily accessible to Norfolk County residents.

FELLOW DEMOCRATS Paul Harold and Senator Edward Kennedy got together at a clam bake at the Kennedy compound in Hyannis Port in 1980.

MARATHONS AND ROAD races were also a big part of Paul Harold's life. Here he shows his form in the Cohasset Road Race By The Sea in 1984. He ran the Boston Marathon as well as marathons in Washington, London and Dublin.

PAUL HAROLD got to meet and chat with Pope John Paul at the Vatican in the 1980s.

AMERICAN BORN Queen Nor of Jordan was pleased to receive a corsage from Senator Paul Harold in the Senate Reception Room at the State House in the early 1980s.

whirlpool of Quincy politics. Mr. Harold lost his first race for state representative to Tom Brownell in 1971. Two years later, after collecting the most votes in the preliminary round, he finally lost by 48 votes for the Ward 1 City Council seat to Leo Kelly.

He was back on the hustings in 1975, this time running for the City Council at large.

As the campaign wound down, his campaign staff estimated that he had attended 300 events, shaken 15,000 hands, knocked on 5,000 doors, attended 150 dinners (but ate at only three of them) and watched the Paul Harold youth hockey team in 10 games.

"Paul was the only guy I know who sponsored teams and also came to see them play," said Mike Linnane, a 30-year Harold friend and campaign worker. "The kids got all excited. It meant a lot to them. It was typical Paul, to be there for the little guys."

Mr. Harold won that 1975 campaign, his first political victory, and two years later he was reelected by 21,243 votes, still a record for City Council candidates and the fourth highest total for any municipal office in the city's history.

Only James McIntyre for mayor and Dr. Charles Dierl for school committee (twice) ever amassed more votes in a Quincy election, according to Quincy's political history, compiled by Frank McCauley.

He was still very much a rookie politician a year later in 1978 when he entered the race of his life, taking on an incumbent Arthur Tobin in a race for the state senate seat from the Norfolk District. Mr. Harold won in a stunning upset.

Throughout his 14 years in the senate, he traveled the world for the U.S. Information Agency, teaching American values and picking up degrees and certificates from the Johns Hopkins Euro Center in Bologna, Italy, and Worcester College in Oxford, England.

He found time to become a visiting professor of American Studies at University College in Cork, Ireland, and an adjunct professor at Quincy College, Curry College and Bentley College and an instructor at Aquinas Junior College in Newton.

He was a board member of the National Center for International Visitors in Washington for which he hosted more than 1,000 State Department visitors, including Queen Nor of Jordan, Prince Bandar of Saudi Arabia and David Lange, prime minister of New Zealand.

Mr. Harold left the state senate in 1992 to run for the 11th Congressional District seat being vacated by Rep. Brian Donnelly. He had already begun to campaign when the 11th District was redistricted out of existence and he was left to face the veteran Congressman Gerry Studds in the newly created 10th.

He outdrew Studds easily in the voting in Quincy but he was overwhelmed when the rest of the votes came in from farther down the South Shore and Cape Cod. He was without a job for the first time in nearly 20 years. It was time to start over.

He was back as a city councillor at-large in 1997 and was reelected in 1999. His colleagues on the council chose him to be council president in 2000. After serving a year, he left the council to become registrar of deeds for Norfolk County.

He was midway through his second year in that office when he died of stomach cancer.

He leaves a brother, William Harold of San Diego, Calif., three aunts, Helen Norcott and Marie Cordani, both of Quincy, and Edith Brickhouse of Braintree; seven nieces and nephews.

Visiting hours will be today (Thursday) from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the Lydon Funeral Home, 644 Hancock St.

A funeral mass will be celebrated tomorrow (Friday) at 11 a.m. at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, St. Elizabeth Seton Parish, 227 Sea St., with contingents from the city of Quincy, Norfolk County, the Massachusetts Legislature and color guards from various organizations.

After the mass, the funeral procession will proceed down Quincy Shore Drive to Mr. Harold's home at 66 Furnace Brook Parkway where an honor guard will be stationed.

From there, the procession will go down Hancock Street to City Hall, where a flag will be stretched across the street between two fire department ladder trucks. He was the first honorary member of the Quincy Firefighters Local 92.

Burial will be in St. Francis Xavier Cemetery in South Weymouth.

The Massachusetts Senate adjourned Monday in former Senator Harold's memory and both the Quincy Youth Soccer and Youth Hockey Leagues announced that they will dedicate their coming season's to Mr. Harold's memory.

Soccer League President Malcolm McNeil noted that he had sponsored a team, the Harold Club, since the league's inception 20 years ago.

His own athletic endeavors consisted of running marathons. He completed 12 of them, including Boston, New York, London and Dublin. He was a member of the 1. Street Running Club of South Boston.

A memorial fund has been established in Mr. Harold's name to provide scholarships to college-bound high school students and College Counsel, Inc., of Quincy, has endowed the Paul D. Harold Scholarship at Quincy College. It be awarded annually.

Harold supervised the Adams Temple and School Fund. President John Adams Trusts and served on the board of directors of the Greater Boston Boy Scouts and the American Red Cross.

He was a member of the advisory board of the Quincy Salvation Army and the Quincy College Trust Committee, a director of the Boston-Kyoto Society and former president of the Quincy Harvard Club.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the Paul D. Harold Memorial Fund, c/o the Quincy Municipal Credit Union, 100 Quincy Ave., Quincy, or to the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, 44 Binney St., Boston.

Conway Continuing Education For Real Estate Licences Sept. 18, 19

The Conway Country School of Real Estate will offer an intensive, two-day continuing-education program for real estate licenses Sept. 18 and 19 at the Lantana function facility in Randolph.

The event is open to all of the state's 125,000 licensed real estate agents — whether active or inactive — and will satisfy the state's requirement of 12 hours of continuing-education credit for license renewal.

"We are very pleased to be offering these courses for our own agents and for our colleagues," said Chairman Jack Conway. "A solid education is a very important part of providing good service to our customers, and we are hopeful that many agents will take advantage of this unique opportunity."

The two-hour classes, which run from 9 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. each day, will cover general real estate laws and procedures, realty exchanges, environmental issues, foreclosures, auctions, estate sales, and zoning and building codes, among other subjects.

Participants may choose any or all of the six courses being offered to help fulfill their license-renewal requirements, according to Education Director Norman LaRocque.

For more information and to have a registration form sent to you, call the school at 781-826-0088 and leave your name, mailing address and telephone number. The cost is $10 per credit hour ($120 for the full two-day program).

The Conway Country School of Real Estate is a division of Norwell-based Jack Conway & Co., which is the largest independently owned real estate firm in Massachusetts, with more than 600 agents in 40 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

Neighborhood Housing Services First Time Homebuyer Workshop

Neighborhood Housing Services, an MHFA & HUD-approved First Time Homebuyer Counseling Agency, will be holding a FREE informational First Time Homebuyers Workshop in partnership with Massachusetts Co-Operative Bank and the MBTA.

This unique partnership was established to better serve the housing needs of public transportation commuters.

The workshop will be held Thursday, Aug. 22 at the Massachusetts Co-operative

Bank, 75 Quincy Avenue, Quincy from 6 to 8:30 p.m.

Agenda will be comprehensive as well as individualized with a concentration on the "Take the T Home" program.

The focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within budget, how to make an offer, and determining the best mortgage program.

Each participant will have the opportunity to meet individually with a mortgage professional from Massachusetts

Co-Operative Bank and receive a free mortgage pre-qualification.

Participants will learn how they can purchase property with little or no money and how to best utilize local down payment and closing costs grants now available across the South Shore.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited.

Contact Neighborhood Housing Services at (617) 770-2227 ext. 31 to register for this workshop.

Greater Boston Realty Loyalty Reward Program

Greater Boston Realty, formerly Real Estate Solutions, based in Quincy announces the new Loyalty Reward Program that awards customers $500 at closing.

The Loyalty Reward Program encourages customers to take advantage of the streamlined and easy-to-browse web site (www.greaterbostonrealty.com), which offers hundreds of listings, neighborhood information and monthly market reports for each client.

With over 1,000 subscribers, the market report offers recent sales information including photos, prices and addresses, which are also conveniently mailed to clients monthly.

Real Estate Solutions recently changed its name to Greater Boston Realty in order to more accurately reflect their coverage area. According to the principal broker, William Riddle, the name change will not affect the company's overall commitment to finding the best housing solutions for their client's diverse needs.

Cool Down With An Energy-Efficient Ceiling Fan

Ceiling fans are one of the most popular cooling methods in homes across the country. More than 150 million residential ceiling fans, many of them with lighting fixtures included, are currently in use nationwide, and about 16 million new fans are sold per year.

When purchasing a new fan, consumers can make a smart choice by selecting an Energy Star labeled model. Energy Star labeled ceiling fans cost less to operate; the fans move air about 15 to 20 percent more efficiently than

The savings increase for the homeowner when the fans include compact fluorescent lamps; these lamps use about 60 to 70 percent less electricity for lighting than equivalent incandescent models.

The Energy Star label, a joint program of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the U.S. Department of Energy, makes it easy for consumers to identify products that are energy efficient without sacrificing product features, quality or personal comfort.

"Choosing energy-efficient ceiling fans is an easy way for consumers to save both money and protect the environment while maintaining pleasant temperatures in their homes," said Commissioner Lauren A. Liss of Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection. "The Energy Star label makes it a breeze for shoppers to find the most energy-efficient fans on the market."

In the summer, ceiling fans can help you save money on air conditioning by allowing you to keep the thermostat higher because the fan circulates air, making you feel cooler. In the winter, ceiling fans help circulate warm air downward from the ceiling to the part of the room where you and your thermostat are requiring the furnace to turn on less frequently to maintain room temperature.

Many Energy Star labeled fans come equipped with lighting fixtures that use compact fluorescent lamps (CFLs). These lamps are also available as individual lighting fixtures. According to the EPA, lighting accounts for approximately 10 to 15 percent of a home's overall electricity usage.

While the monthly amount may not be substantial, over time, the costs can really add up. One Energy Star rated CFL can save you approximately $25 to $50 over its lifetime. In addition, CFLs burn at much cooler temperatures, using only one quarter of the energy to produce the same amount of light as incandescent bulbs. The benefits — you spend less to keep your home cooler during hot months, plus they last up to 10 times longer than commonly used incandescent bulbs.

Environmentally, CFLs are also clear winners. If every household in the U.S. brightened just one room with lighting that earned the Energy Star label, the EPA estimates that during the lifetime of those bulbs, we would avert over one trillion pounds of air pollution.

For more information on how to improve your home's energy efficiency and to learn about money saving rebates on ceiling fans, CFL bulbs and other Energy Star labeled products, contact your local electric utility or energy efficiency organization or visit www.betterwaytosave.com.

SELLING TOOLS THAT WORK

These days, much attention is rightfully focused on the Internet and virtual tours when selling a home; however, the tried-and-true, low-tech approaches that will never be anything less than effective should not be overlooked. For instance, the old-fashioned "for sale" sign remains a big draw, especially when it is supplied with fliers that provide photos and information designed to remain in the minds of prospective buyers. You might be surprised to learn the number of would-be buyers who conduct informal, self-guided tours of neighborhoods they like and stumble upon "for sale" signs. There are also newspaper classified ads, which are still perused consistently by buyers. And "open houses" are a welcome option for prospective buyers who are about to turn serious.

Despite the ups and downs of the stock market, the real estate market continues to show impressive and consistent gains. If you're selling a home, CENTRAL REAL ESTATE can implement an aggressive marketing plan that will maximize its exposure and ensure that it sells for full market value. Our marketing tools include coordinating open houses and listing the home in local papers. We sell on purpose -- not by accident! For individualized service and results, call us at (617) 328-1312, or visit us at 128 McGrath Highway.

HINT: The Internet has not changed the time-tested way to find a real estate agent, which is asking for referrals from people you trust.

Granite-Springfield Rematch Here Saturday

By CHRIS POISSON

After 10 long months the Quincy Granite-Springfield Blitzin' Bears rematch is finally here.

And with the way the first meeting ended and with the way this current season is shaping up, the sequel should be better than such memorable movie sequels like "Godfather III" or "I Still Know What You Did Last Summer."

Saturday night at 7, Quincy will host Springfield at Veterans Memorial Stadium, the same site where the Granite juggernaut was derailed by the Blitzin' Bears in the semifinals of the EFL playoffs last season.

"Saturday night is going to be the biggest game so far," said quad-captain David Harris, who was supposed to retire after last year. "I came back just to play these guys again."

This season, Springfield has been playing like a fully-loaded sports car, easily cruising to a 5-0 start with victories over Clinton, Rhode Island, Bay State, Marlboro and Randolph, a 47-6 shellacking last Saturday. The Northern Conference leaders also top the EFL in scoring (28.6 points per game) and defense (9.2 ppg).

Quincy, meanwhile, is off to a solid 3-1 start. After knocking off Bay State, Marlboro and Randolph, it suffered its lone blemish last Saturday in Middleboro when the Cobras returned the opening kickoff of overtime for a touchdown and a 6-0 win.

"We're both good ballclubs," Harris said. "They're similar to last year. It's going to be a grudge match. I think it's going to come down to the fourth quarter or maybe overtime."

On that chilly October night last year, Quincy should have beaten Springfield and advanced to the championship game against Marlboro, but it turned the ball over and its special teams failed them in a 22-19 loss.

An aberration to the regular season, the Granite committed three turnovers, including a fumble inside their own 5-yard line that led to a Blitzin' Bears' touchdown, and had two extra points and two field goals blocked, including a game-tying attempt with less than a minute left.

Special teams are a concern again this season — not the kicking game but rather the kickoff return coverage, which has given up too many big returns in addition to the overtime score against Middleboro.

"Right now our special teams, the kickoff return coverage, has been our down-fall," Harris said. "I'm sure we'll make the adjustments this week in practice."

In the Middleboro game, Quincy turned in one of its worst offensive performances in its brief history. Quarterback Liam Higgins struggled in the passing game, while the ground game, well, it never got off the ground.

Quincy's reliable defense, though, was just as good as Middleboro's and was able to keep the team in the game until the extrasession. In OT, Middleboro's Lindsey Ferebee returned the opening kickoff 90 yards for the victory. Ferebee earned EC Offensive Player of the Week honors for his heroics.

15-Year-Old Babe Ruth Team Bows In Regionals

The Quincy 15-Year-Old Babe Ruth team came up short in its bid for an invitation to the World Series in Indiana.

At the recent New England Regional Tournament in Vermont, Quincy won its opening game against the host Newport, Vt., team but dropped its next two games to Johnston, R.I., and Manchester, N.H. to be eliminated.

Manager Peter Williams and assistant coaches Bill Richardson and Chris DeLisle praised the team for its tremendous season.

"This was a great bunch of kids to have and I am very proud of them and all they have accomplished," Williams said. "The core of the kids have been playing together for a long time and with the addition of a couple other great kids and the coaching staff they were able to put together a state championship team and the first one for Babe Ruth baseball in Quincy since 1969."

"I had seen these kids grow and play together for a couple of years now and they worked hard and played great baseball together," Richardson said. "I am very proud of what they have accomplished."

"I look forward to seeing this group, along with all the other kids coming up, playing high school and legion baseball in their next couple of years," DeLisle said. "It has been a great experience and a lot of fun working with these kids. Each and every one of those kids had a lot of heart and a lot of talent and we hope they have just scratched the surface of their baseball careers."

The coaching staff also thanked all the parents, family and fans that supported the team throughout the entire District, State and New England tournaments.

A LOT TO ABSORB

Despite what you may think, it is the job of your vehicle's springs to absorb road shocks, while it is the shock absorber's function to dampen the bouncing spring. Otherwise, the vehicle would bounce uncontrollably when it hit a bump. Some vehicles have only shocks, which are part of the overall suspension, while others have just struts, which are complete suspension assemblies. Without them to dampen the spring oscillations from road shock, the vehicle would bounce over bumps and be very difficult to control and handle. Instead, shocks and struts preserve driving manageability by keeping the tires on the road and not allowing them to bounce. When your vehicle does bounce, it is time to inspect the shocks and struts.

Bumpy ride? It's time to check your car's undercarriage components including shocks and struts. Don't hesitate to ask any questions about anything related to your car when you bring it into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO for servicing. We have modern test equipment, the right parts and the best ASE Certified service technicians available in the area. Let's get acquainted at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Tips For Living Healthy In Heat, Humidity

Operation Safe Summer Weather Safety

The American Heart Association's Operation Safe Summer has some tips for living healthy in periods of high heat and humidity. These tips are for the average healthy person, but have extra meaning for the person living with heart disease, or who may be at high risk.

The main problem with sweltering heat and humidity is dehydration, which increases your risk of heat exhaustion or heat stroke. For anyone, this is a concern. For the person with heart disease, congestive heart failure, or at high risk, extra caution is called for.

Try to do physical activities early in the morning or later in the day. If you feel dizzy, nauseated, thirsty, or if you develop a headache, stop and find a cooler place to sit down and drink some water.

Dehydration is the major concern as the risk increases when temperature and humidity reach over 70 percent. Heat and humidity interfere with the body's natural cooling process. The heart is trying to deliver blood and oxygen to your working muscles at the same time your body is trying to cool off by sweating. If you sweat too much, you lose important body fluids. Then your heart has to pump even harder to get the smaller volume of blood distributed. Extreme fluid loss can lead to brain and heart damage.

The symptoms of heat exhaustion are: sweating, cold and clammy skin, dizziness, a rapid pulse, throbbing pressure in your head, chills, flushed appearance, nausea.

Easy Ways To Energize Yourself, Your Family

(NU) — Does your family's busy lifestyle leave little time for regular exercise and healthy meals?

It's a challenge many busy families face. But did you know that healthy eating and regular physical activity will help you and your family feel and live better?

People who are overweight and inactive have a higher risk of type 2 diabetes, heart disease, high blood pressure, stroke and breast or colon cancer.

But, fortunately, it's not necessary to devote long hours to exercise and healthy eating. There are ways you can add fitness and healthy foods to your life and still have time for everything else. These tips from the Weight-control Information Network (WIN) will show you how:

- Sneak physical activity into your day. Get off the bus or subway one stop early and walk the rest of the way, take the stairs instead of the elevator, or simply turn on some music at home and dance.

- Turn playtime into active time. Take your kids for a walk or play basketball with them.

- Buy foods that are good for you and easy to prepare such as pasta, tuna, rice and beans.

- Buy frozen or canned vegetables, fruits and beans. Rinse canned vegetables and beans to lower salt and choose canned fruit packed in juice.

- Plan ahead and cook enough to last. For example, casseroles or a whole, cooked chicken can feed your family for several days.

- Avoid eating on the run, which can lead to unhealthy food choices. Instead, take ready-made, low-fat snacks with you to tide you over until you have time for a healthy meal. Pack some healthy snacks in your kids' lunches, too. Try graham crackers, pretzels or a snack bag with baby carrots, raisins and a small amount of nuts.

- If you eat in a fast-food restaurant, choose a salad or grilled chicken sandwich. If you want a burger, order a small one without sauce. Split and order of fries with a friend or pass on the fries altogether.

For more information about how to eat better and exercise more — including how to read food labels and make healthy family meals — request the free WIN brochure "Energize Yourself and Your Family." Call 1-877-946-4627 or visit www.niddk.nih.gov/health. WIN is a national information service of the National Institute of Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Diseases, part of the National Institutes of Health.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

GETTING REAL

Because they so closely resemble real teeth in terms of structure, dental implants are increasingly gaining favor among patients in need of replacement teeth. According to the American Dental Association, the number of implant procedures has tripled in the last 10 years, with about two million implants being done annually. Moreover, implant dentistry has among the highest success rates of any medical procedure. Depending on where in the jaw they are placed, success rates range from about 96% for simple individual implants with good bone structure underneath to about 85% in some cases where bone grafts are needed. With so many modalities currently available in bone grafting and implant technology, there is a solution available for nearly every patient.

Nothing can take the place of a healthy set of teeth. But when you lose a tooth through disease or an accident, it's good to know you have options in restoring your smile. Even the subtlest change in your smile can make a dramatic difference in the way you look and feel. And when you feel and look good, you project a confident self-image. We want to make the most of your smile. Please call (617) 479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We think you will be delighted with the treatment and counsel you receive. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. While many dental implants last a lifetime, a successful implant is defined as one that lasts 10 years or more.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"Whatever you do, you need courage. Whatever course you decide upon, there is always someone to tell you, there are always difficulties arising which tempt you to believe that your critics are right. To map a course of action and follow it to an end, requires some of the same courage which a soldier needs. Peace has its victories, but it takes brave men to win them." -- Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Each of us, as we go through life, strives to be a winner in our own way. But it takes courage to be a winner, a winner at responding to life. It takes courage to accept friendship and intimacy with other persons. It takes courage to take a stand in an unpopular cause. It takes courage to choose reality over approval. It takes courage to accept the responsibility for your own choices and dare to be yourself. New ways are often uncertain ways and as Robert Frost expressed it: "Courage is the human virtue that counts most - courage to act on limited knowledge and insufficient evidence. That's all any of us have."

The great thing about courage is that, when we get the hang of it, it becomes character. And character, after all, is the referee of our success as a human being...

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Relationships continue to thrive, but watch for any tell-tale signs of potential problems. Take needed action now to set things straight before they become troublesome later.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your powers of persuasion, backed up, of course, by your considerable expertise, help you establish your case even to the most dubious decision-makers in your workplace.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might still be a bit reluctant to face up to some less-than-pleasant realities. But the sooner you accept the facts, the sooner you can set about making some needed changes.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Expect to make adjustments, even when things seem locked up and ready to go. But cheer up: At least one change could lead to something you've been hoping for.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The success of a recent project should do a lot to boost your self-confidence. You might want to start now to check out ways to make that long-deferred bigger and bolder move.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Ease up on the pressure you might be putting on the new person in your life. It takes time for a budding relationship to blossom. Show more patience and understanding.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You have lots of inner strength in reserve. Use some of it to resist intimidation from those who might try to impose on your good nature for their own reasons.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The good news is that your on-the-job status is improving. The one cautionary note, however, involves a personal situation you might have been ignoring for too long.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Congratulations. Once again, your sharp Sagittarian "horse sense" helps you work through a complicated situation that would leave most people confused.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Plan on indulging yourself in some well-earned good times through much of the week. Then be prepared to face some thought-provoking issues by the 18th.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Positive factors continue to dominate following a recent change in both your professional and personal lives. Expect to make contact with someone from your past.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Workplace stability allows you to continue making progress on your projects. But don't ignore your personal life. Spend more quality time with those special folks.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have the gift for making people feel special. Maybe because you know how special you are.

Farewell, Paul

THE FUNERAL PROCESSION for Paul D. Harold, Norfolk County register of deeds and former state senator and city council president, passes under a large American flag held aloft by two Quincy Fire Department ladder trucks in front of City Hall Friday. Hundreds Bid Sad Farewell

Paul Harold: 'A Man Of Great Integrity'

By HENRY BOSWORTH

It was a straight-from-the-heart outpouring of affection as Quincy sadly said farewell to Paul Harold, an all-time favorite son.

That was quite evident Friday at the funeral Mass celebrated by Cardinal Bernard Law in people-jammed Our Lady of Good Counsel Church where many proudly wore yellow and black "Paul Harold Register of Deeds" campaign stickers like hearts on their sleeves.

"He was a man of great integrity," Law said.

The affection was there, too, in the faces of the many who lined the sidewalks in Quincy Center as the long funeral procession passed by on the way to St. Francis Xavier Cemetery in East Weymouth.

And it was there the day before when during a six-hour period, more than 3,000

Ways To Avoid Mosquitoes

Dead Infected Bird 'No Need To Panic'

By TOM HENSHAW

The discovery of a crow that died of West Nile Virus Encephalitis on East Elm Avenue, Wollaston, is no cause for alarm, says Quincy's acting Commissioner of Public Health Andrew Scheele.

"There's no need to panic," cautioned Scheele, after the dead bird was tested by the state and found to be positive for the deadly virus, which has accounted for nine confirmed deaths among humans thus far this year in the United States.

Scheele noted that 10 dead crows infected by the virus were found in Quincy last year and no persons were found with the virus. Only three people were infected in all of Massachusetts in 2001 and one died.

Humans can't get the virus from birds or animals. It is spread only by adult mosquitoes who are themselves infected. Some birds are very susceptible to West Nile Virus. Humans are not. So far this year, there have been only 160 confirmed human cases in 38 states.

The best way to avoid even the smallest chance of acquiring the virus, Scheele recommends the following:

- Avoid outdoor activities between dusk and dawn.

- Wear long sleeve shirts and long pants if you must be out of doors.

- Use mosquito repellents containing DEET (N,N-diethyl-meta-toluamide) dur-

How To Avoid Mosquitoes

Here are acting Public Health Commissioner Andrew Scheele's recommended precautions for West Nile Virus:

- Avoid outdoor activities between dusk and dawn.

- Wear long sleeve shirts and long pants if you must

- Use mosquito repellents containing DEET (N,N-diethyl-meta-toluamide) during periods of high mosquito activity, taking care to read the instructions on the can. DEET should never be used on infants.

- Ensure that household screens are intact.

- Eliminate standing pools of water where mosquitoes breed.

ing periods of high mosquito activity, taking care to read the instructions on the can. DEET should never be used on infants.

- Ensure that household screens are intact.

- Eliminate standing pools of water where mosquitoes breed.

Most West Nile Virus victims do not show any symptoms but if, on the remote chance you have contracted the virus, these symptoms, says Scheele, may be shown:

- Fever

- Headaches and body aches.

- Skin rash.

- Swollen lymph glands

More severe infections can cause: high fever, neck stiffness, stupor, disorientation, coma, tremors, convulsions, paralysis and, on rare occasions, death. Persons over 50 have a higher risk of severe infection.

There is no known treatment for West Nile Virus although doctors can treat the symptoms of encephalitis.

West Nile Virus was first identified in the United States in New York in the summer of 1999. This summer the virus has been reported among birds as far west as Colorado and it is expected to reach the West Coast before long.

It was first found in Massachusetts in the summer of 2000. More than 1,100 infected dead birds were found in the state in 2001. This year, birds have been found in Milton and Weymouth and mosquito pools have been located in Dighton and Acushnet.

The Massachusetts Department of Public Health would like residents to report all dead birds so that the virus can be tracked around the state. But don't handle the bird with bare hands. Use gloves.

To report a dead bird, call the MDPH toll-free at 1-866-MASS WNV (1-866-627-7968).

Aug. 28 Deadline To Register As New Voters

If you aren't a registered voter, time is running out to be eligible to cast a ballot in the state primary elections Sept. 17.

Last day to register to vote for the primaries is Wednesday, Aug. 28, reminds City Clerk Joseph Shea.

On that day, the City Election Department will be open until 8 p.m. to register new voters.

Prospective voters may also register before then during regular City Hall working hours, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

'Fun Dog Show' Raises Funds For Quincy Animal Shelter

Despite an ominous forecast and a few scattered sprinkles, the weather held out for the third annual Quincy Animal Shelter Marina Place Dog Show held recently at Marina Place.

Roughly 75 Marina Place residents enjoyed the dog show which included more than 30 dogs entered in a variety of categories, including "Best Dressed," "Looks Most Like Owner," "Waggiest Tail," "Best Smile," and many more.

"Best of Show" honors went to Caesar, a mixed-breed puppy that traveled from Cape Cod to participate in the event.

Marina Place provided free dog biscuits for the pups, plus lemonade and Popsicles for their human companions.

"This really is a 'fun' dog show," said Sarah Norton, director of Marketing for the Quincy Animal Shelter. "We have many humorous categories and every dog has his own singularly lovable characteristic. We had some tries in categories such as 'Best Trick' and 'Prettiest Eyes' and I don't think anyone went home disappointed."

Norton thanked Marina Place for generously sponsoring the event for the third year in a row. This year's event, she said, raised $310 plus merchandise donations for the shelter.

Pat Garre, executive director of Marina Place, is another fan of the event. "The dogs are a calming influence on our residents," she said. "They look forward to this show every year and we are glad we can help the Quincy

Board Sets 10 P.M. Closing Time At Friendly's Restaurant

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

For the first time since opening more than 40 years ago, the hours at Friendly's Restaurant on Independence Ave. will change with closing time at 10 p.m. instead of 11 or 12 midnight following continued complaints over bright lights and noise.

Voted unanimously by the License Board Tuesday, the restaurant will close at 10 p.m. from Sunday through Wednesday and at 11 p.m. Thursdays Fridays and Saturdays from May 1 to Sept. 30. Then from April 30 to Oct. 1, closing time would be 10 p.m. seven nights a week. Employees may stay an hour later or how long it takes to clean up.

At the meeting, the board heard complaints from Frank Du Lisse who told the board that he has observed patrons as late as 1 to 2 a.m. entering the eatery.

However, an employee Linda Ricciarelli, who also lives in the area of Friendly's disubuted DuLisse's complaint and told the board that in the three years she has worked there, she has never seen Friendly's open those hours.

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymond read a letter from Frank and Jennifer Kerr, residents in the condo adjacent to Friendly's parking lot. Raymond told the board that the couple moved in April, 2002 and have already had to sell their condo and relocate because of the disturbance of noise.

Manager Charles Clark admitted to the board that he was unaware of the closing hours thinking they could remain open until midnight. He promised the board that he and Friendly's would abide by any decision.

Clark told the board that Friendly's is open 364 days a year and the busiest and most frustrating times is when local schools have a musical or any other activities. He said on those times, the restaurant and parking lot would fill up by 7:30 or 8 p.m.. He said at times, he also has called the police to help them out.

He also said that there are also bright lights shining from the condo next door on Friendly's parking lot.

Chairman Joseph Shea said the board will continue to monitor the lights because of recurring change of managers.

Board Approves Auto Body Shop At Sugarman's Site

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board voted unanimously Tuesday to give James E. Schlager a Motor II and auto body garage repair license for Schlager's Auto Body Repair at the former Sugarman's Junk Yard on 299 Centre St.

The motion was made by Acting Fire Chief Paul O'Connell and seconded by Acting Police Chief William Falco.

The Schlagers are no strangers to the auto repair business according to Chairman Joseph Shea who said the family has owned a business on Willard St. for 48 years. He parished the family for their many years of business.

O'Connell was welcomed by Chairman Joseph Shea to his first meeting on the License Board since the retirement last month of Fire Chief Thomas Gorman.

Atty. Dennis Harrington, representing Schlager, showed plans to the board which included the partial demolition of the existing building.

Harrington said the design shows two stories built in the front of the building in order to block the view of the garage area and to provide an architectural relief from the "square box" type of building it once was.

Harrington said the old building was too high and that the new building will have a place for storing flammable materials. He added if the financing goes forward, the building would be completed between 18 and 20 weeks.

O'Connell said after viewing the plans for the new building said he had "no problem" as long as the owner contacted Thomas Lyons at the Fire Prevention Office.

The hours of operation will be from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Mondays through Friday and from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturdays. It will be closed on Sundays.

Before the vote was taken Shea read a letter from an abutter complaining about the prospect of an auto shop.

He said he thought the site of an auto shop was "as good as a resolution we could get for that site as well as a business that would pay taxes to the city."

Shea praised the Sugarman family and said they were a "great family" who always worked with the License Board when complaints would arise, calling the area a "difficult site for its previous use."

Quincy College Selects 5 New Board Members

Five new members, three of them from Quincy, were named to six-year terms on the governing board of Quincy College Tuesday from a list of 24 applicants.

The new governors are: Simon Chan of Quincy, who has spent many years in the hospitality and real estate industries and service on charitable boards. He is a member of the Quincy Medical Center board and the Lions Club of Quincy.

Richard A. Nici II of Jamaica Plain, a 2001 graduate of Quincy College and commencement speaker. He works in computers and currently attends the University of Massachusetts at Boston.

Barbara A. Cannon of Hull, a licensed social worker who attended Quincy College. She is a single parent with healthcare experience in hospice work, assisted living and the New England Home for Little Wanderers.

Rev. William C. Harding of Quincy, pastor of the Bethany Congregational Church who recently returned from a tour of duty as a chaplain to the U. S. military forces in Kosovo, Yugoslavia.

William S. Grindlay of Quincy, an accountant and retired municipal finance expert with more than 30 years service.

"This is an exceptional and diverse group of future leaders," said Theresa M. Lord-Piatelli, chair of the board of governors and the appointing council. "This exciting moment for the college will yield exceptional results over the next decade."

"When you look at the credentials and experiences represented by this class, you see firsthand the significant improvement in the reputation and quality of the college," said City Council President Daniel Raymondi, who is also a governor.

The 13-member board was created by special state legislation passed in 1994 when governance of the college was shifted from the Quincy School Committee to an autonomous structure. Members are permitted to serve a six-year term and be reappointed to another six years.

The selection of the five new governors to replace five who were ineligible for reappointment brings to 12 the number of seats filled on the 13-member board. Member Richard Hart died after the search began for the new members.

The six-member appointing council consisted of Elaine Dwyer and Michael McFarland of the School Committee, Raymondi and Joseph Newton of the City Council and Lord-Piatelli and Geraldine Lewis of the governing board.

The new governors were chosen from five groups based on credentials, experience and relevance. The five categories were: Finance and Business, Quincy College Graduates, Healthcare, Community Service and Special Population Connections, such as minorities and the physically challenged.

"Now," said Quincy College President Sean Barry, "we begin the process of developing the governors, providing them with briefing on college programs and services, meetings with consultants on public sector education boards and consultations with college attorneys on legal issues."

"There is a bit of a learning curve, but I'm very confident that we'll be up and running in the fall."

The new board members will be formally sworn in at the annual meeting of the board Tuesday, Sept. 10. The six member advisory council will convene in January to begin the process of filling the vacancy left by the death of Richard Hart.

Holdover members of the board are Lord-Piatelli, Raymondi, Lewis, John Farmer, Elizabeth Flynn, Joseph Nicastro and Peter O'Neil.

The departing five members include State Rep. Ron Mariano of the School Committee, City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, the Rev. Michael Wayne Walker of the Messiah Baptist Church in Brockton, Attorney Matthew McDonald of Quincy, and John McKenna Jr. of the Quincy Housing Authority.

"We're most appreciative of the hard work and effort by the appointing council members," said Barry. "This long, hot summer wasn't the highest help, but the members did a great job in reviewing and considering the talents of the candidates. This is what Quincy is all about."

CITY COUNCIL PRESIDENT and Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi presents a $1,000 check that has in part supported the Arts in the Park programs to Stephen Buckley, president of Quincy Citizens Police Academy Alumni Association, as Officer Bob Hanna looks on. The money, which came from Ward 2 mitigation money, also went towards a cookout hosted by Raymondi and Sheriff Michael Bellotti at the Martensen Street Senior Complex celebrating the Martensen Street cleanup program. The check also supported the recent "Avalon Beach Bash."

Phelan Appoints Ayer As New Harbormaster

Mayor William Phelan has appointed Andrew J. Ayer as the city's new harbormaster.

Ayer, a lifelong Quincy resident, has been employed in the Health Department 26 years. He became the Shellfish Constable in 1980, and served two terms as president of the Massachusetts Shellfish Officers Association. He has also operated the City of Quincy pump boat for five years.

"I am pleased to appoint Mr. Ayer to this post," Phelan said. "He has worked hard on behalf of the city for many years, and brings a wealth of

'Miss Mildred' A Young 102

Mildred Gustafson celebrated another birthday the other day.

Her 102nd!

And she's looking forward to many more.

"I still have a lot of living to do," she told her "lunch bunch" friends at her birthday party at the Beechwood Life Center in Squantum.

The party was held during the weekly Thursday lunch for seniors -- "the lunch bunch" -- she never misses.

Also on hand to wish her a happy birthday were a dozen or so of Beechwood's pre-schoolers.

And with "Miss Mildred" as the youngsters affectionately call her, so young at heart, it was quite appropriate that they were there to help her celebrate.

"She's unbelievable," says an admiring Sharron Beals, executive director of the Beechwood Center. "She lives (in West Quincy) independently and stays active and interested in life."

She also loves pretty clothes and shoes.

On her 101st birthday last year she revealed she had "27 pairs of shoes and three closets full of pretty clothes."

She has added some since.

She doesn't have a prescribed formula for longevity but there are what you might call a few ingredients.

"I like to keep my feet dancing -- that keeps me healthy." (She dances every chance she gets at Beechwood.)

It was at a dance incidentally at Quincy's Wisteria Bungalow that she met her late husband, Carl.

"He wasn't the best dancer," she says. "I told him I would marry him if I could still dance with the other guys sometimes."

A few other ingredients.

"I never say 'no' to invitations to go out. I don't want to miss anything. I want to be with friends. The worst thing you can do is to sit too much -- especially in your own home."

"I eat breakfast cereal and fruit every day."

She quit smoking 81 years ago.

And, one other thing:

"I stay away from doctors."

Though she lives independently, she has family: a son, Elliot who lives in Quincy; two grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

There have been 20 U.S. Presidents during her lifetime, beginning with William McKinley. Her favorite: William Howard Taft.

"I saw him and the Wright Brothers at the 1910 Aeromeet in Quincy. I always liked President Taft even though he let himself get a little heavy."

To her "lunch bunch" friends she is really something special. Typical tributes:

"She is a role model to all of us."

"She's so honest. Always tells it as it is."

"She's so bright and has such varied interests."

"She is quick on her toes. Doesn't even wear glasses, except to read or do crosswords."

"She still plays the piano beautifully."

At her 102nd birthday party, friend Ralph Verrochi, 92, presented her with a bouquet of sunflowers.

She blew out one big candle and two small ones symbolizing 102 years on her birthday cake and wished for "another special year with my good friends." Happy birthday, Miss Mildred.

MILDRED GUSTAFSON would like you to know "I'm 102 and proud of it."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1914 POSTCARD view of Anne Hutchinson Square in Wollaston showing the foot of Grandview Avenue from Newport Avenue and Beale Street. The Taylor building on the left has been covered with vinyl siding and most of the architectural details have been lost, including the baluster railing around the roof. This view hasn't changed much but the Wollaston Pharmacy is now the Embroidery Plus shop and the house on the top of the hill has been converted into condominiums. The granite wall on the right along Beale Street has been in place for well over 100 years. The stone marker at the end of the sidewalk at the bottom of the hill, with the story of Anne Hutchinson, has been moved across the street next to the Wollaston fire station.

1000-Man Layoff At Shipyard

By TOM HENSHAW

The Bethlehem Steel Co. explained that the recent layoff of more than 1,000 men at its busy Fore River Shipyard was due to the fact that shipbuilding actually was being carried on too fast.

"We have launched several tankers and one cruiser in high speed time," said a Bethlehem news release, "and within a few weeks we will launch the battleship Massachusetts and another cruiser."

"The completion of work has far outstripped our start of new work and hence there have been layoffs until we can get the new work far enough along to call the men back."

BOMB DEMONSTRATION

Three bombing planes roared down out of the night skies to attack a specially constructed building on the shore of Black's Creek in Merrymount Park in a simulated air raid.

Actually the incendiary thermite "bombs" were touched off on the ground by Louis Arconti, a pyro technician, of 22 Barry St., West Quincy, while 5,000 spectators oohed and aahed.

Quincy auxiliary firefighters, under Capt. Robert Fenby, put out the fires in five minutes.

SQUANTUM CLINCHES

Bob Howitt pitched a three-hit shutout for his 11th win of the season as Squantum blanked Thorp Motors of Weymouth, 3-0, to clinch second place in the South Shore League.

VACANCY FILLED AT COURT

Edward P. Batchelder was appointed probation officer at Quincy District Court by Judge Kenneth L. Nash to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Chief Probation Officer Joseph J. O'Brien.

In the running to succeed O'Brien as chief of the department were officers Robert Verge, John Cronin and Miss Helen H. Gavin.

AIRPORT COMMITTEE TOURS

Members of the Quincy Municipal Airport Committee toured several locations proposed for a city landing field, including sites in Broad Meadows and the Rock Island Cove section of Houghs Neck.

Making the tour were Victor A. Brown, chairman; Harold Martin, Samuel G. Jarvis and Robert H. Foy, all of Quincy; and William J. Connell of Braintree. Martin used to manage Dennison Airport in Atlantic.

Literacy Volunteers – Quincy Receives National Accreditation

Literacy Volunteers of America-Quincy has achieved national accreditation.

Quincy is one of the first affiliates to complete the LVA Accreditation Initiative, a comprehensive program of quality and accountability standards.

The accreditation was announced by the Literacy Volunteers of America Board of Directors.

LVA-Quincy, based at the Thomas Crane Public Library, is a non-profit educational organization which offers free tutoring to adults in basic reading and writing through a regional network of trained volunteers.

Although based in Quincy, tutors and students are from 16 South Shore Communities.

Volunteers tutors are needed for one-on-one instruction to adults in basic reading and writing.

An orientation session will be held Thursday, Sept. 12 from 6:30 to 9 p.m. at the main Crane library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

To register for the orientation or receive an information pack, call Literacy Volunteers at 617-376-1314.

"In Achieving Accreditation, LVA-Quincy has demonstrated its ability to meet the highest standards of excellence in providing literacy services to its students and volunteers," said LVA President Marsha L. Tait. "The Accreditation Award means that LVA-Quincy provides effective nonprofit management, excellent volunteer tutor training, and quality literacy instruction."

Not only has this organization distinguished itself as a leader among the more than 300 literacy affiliates of Literacy Volunteers of America, Inc., LVA-Quincy has identified itself as an outstanding nonprofit organization in this community."

Conferred for the three-year period beginning June 23, 2002, the Accreditation Award was approved by the LVA National Board after LVA-Quincy completed months of intensive documentation of its program. The affiliate supplied evidence that it meets the requirements of 18 quality standards and 10 scored standards in the areas of organization, finance personnel, and program management.

Trained LVA surveyors conducted an onsite review of all documentation and completed interviews of key leaders, staff volunteers and students. Surveyor reports were presented to the LVA Accreditation Review Committee, which recommended that LVA-Quincy receive the LVA Accreditation Award.

License Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

•Granted the transfer the car repair and manager's license at Aameco Transmission, 678 Southern Artery from Richard Corelli to Jon Marino, pending a meeting with the Fire Prevention Unit.

•Postponed at the request of Fire Chief William Falco a hearing regarding violations on June 9, 10, 2002 of the rules and regulations of the License Board regarding closing hours at Waterworks, 314 Victory Rd. It will be heard on Sept. 3. Falco said he wanted to supply the attorney and the owners with more information about the violation of closing hours.

Because of commitments by board member Walter White, director of building services, the Aug. 27 meeting has been canceled.

Catchy Slogan Sought To Promote Quincy Tourism

Plymouth has "History is just the beginning." Salem is "The Bewitching Seaport." Even Cambridge calls itself "Boston's Left Bank." So, what is Quincy?

The Quincy Tourism Advisory Council is asking residents for their help in coming up with a suitable slogan to be used to help promote the city as a tourist destination.

"We're looking for a slogan that will capture the spirit of Quincy and all the city has to offer," said Mayor William Phelan. "Ideally, it should convey the fact that Quincy is a beautiful, historic place to visit."

The person whose slogan is accepted by the Tourism Council will receive a $100 savings bond donated by South Coastal Bank. All participants will be entered into a drawing to win an "Historic Quincy" gift basket from Abigail's Crossing.

Slogans of five words or less should be sent to the Quincy Tourism Advisory Council, c/o Mayor's Office, City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy 02169. Each participant should include his or her name, address and telephone number with the entry.

Slogans may also be e-mailed to Kristin Priscella at kpriscella@ci.quincy.ma.us. E-mail entries should also include the entrant's name, address and phone number as well as the words "Quincy Slogan Contest" in the e-mail's subject line.

Deadline for entries is Friday, Sept. 13.

HERB FONTAINE (second left), former news director of WJDA, was honored by the Beechwood Community Life Center Board of Directors and membership at the recent annual meeting. Fontaine, an active member of the board since the mid-1980s, is retiring but will continue to serve on Beechwood's Elder Advisory Council and help plan the Senior Center's Current Events Breakfast. With him are Paul Reynolds, vice president of the board; Helen Gallahue Irvin, president; Judith Paul, secretary; and William MacDonald, treasurer.

Wollaston Beach Bonfire Canceled Because Of Drought Conditions

The bonfire and sing-along scheduled at Wollaston Beach tonight (Thursday) has been canceled because of drought conditions.

Doug Gutro, Ward 5 city councillor and chairman of the Wollaston Beach Task Force, said the decision to cancel the event was at the advice of state police and the Quincy Fire Department.

"I'm disappointed, but under the circumstances it is the prudent thing to do," Gutro said. "Although we are working hard to bring family-friendly activities back to Wollaston Beach, public safety is of paramount concern. We will revisit this idea next year and welcome other ideas for events to make Wollaston Beach a premiere family-friendly destination in the city of Quincy."

Gutro, civic associations and local businesses along Wollaston Beach have been working together to bring activities back to Wollaston Beach by sponsoring an annual Wollaston Beach Volleyball Challenge, sand castle contest and beach cleanups.

Three Seafood Casserole

It was going to be one of those hot pool days and we all decided to each make something and then have a buffet. I told my children that I would make a seafood casserole early in the morning while it was still a little cool.

As I was preparing it, the thought of serving a hot casserole was making me mind the heat even more. So I decided to grab the seashells that I bought (some at a flea market) and place each serving on the seashell. I only had to place them on cookie sheets and when it was time for dinner, I would just pop them in a 350 degree oven and that was it. It worked out really great and I served them with wedges of lemon. Here is the recipe I used for the shells, but of course the same recipe can be for a casserole as well.

Three Seafood Casserole

1 pound scallops (small)
(if large ones used, a half pound will do)
1 garlic clove (take out after sautéing)
1/2 pound chopped clams
1/2 pound deveined fresh shrimp
3/4 pound haddock (skinned)
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/4 cup white cooking wine juice from one large lemon

1-2 cups seasoned bread crumbs
4 slices white bread (dry and cut in small pieces)
1 cup or so of shredded cheddar or favorite cheese

In the hot oil and butter or margarine sauté the garlic, and all of the seafood. I cut the haddock in small pieces before sautéing. Cook until all the juices blend together while all the fish is cooking.

Now you will notice there is a good amount of juice. Add breadcrumbs slowly until mixture gets to a point where you can place it on the shells. At this point I added the white bread and it blended right in with the juices. I didn't want to add too many breadcrumbs, because I wanted to enhance the tasty seafood blend.

On a cookie sheet (I used two sheets for 11 shells) grease each shell with Pam and fill each one placing a shrimp right on the top of each one for presentation. On top of each one place some of the shredded cheddar and bake for about 20 minutes or so or until you think they are done. If there are any leftovers, they can be heated in the microwave.

I've made this also in a casserole dish and the baking time would be about 30-35 minutes or until bubbly.

QUINCY RESIDENTS, from the left, Sara Chung, Christopher Freeman and Valerie Ayer recently performed in the South Shore Conservatory's Summer Music Festival in Hingham.

3 Residents Perform In Summer Music Festival

Three Quincy residents recently participated in the South Shore Conservatory's Summer Music Festival in Hingham.

Flutists Sara Chung and Valerie Ayer and clarinetist Christopher Freeman were students of the Summer Wind Ensemble program.

They spent the month of July taking classes — held Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. — learning reading, intonation, listening, breathing, improvisation, phrasing and musicianship.

After four weeks of studying and rehearsing, they performed the final concert which was recorded live and is available on CD.

Chung and Ayer also rehearsed Wednesday evenings throughout the summer with the Flute Symphony — known to be the largest and only flute symphony in the country. They recently had their final performance, which was recorded live.

All three have known each other for the past several years as they rehearse weekly and perform with the Eastern Nazarene College Concert Band.

This coming school year, Ayer will be a sophomore and Chung a freshman at North Quincy High School, while Freeman will be a senior at Xaverian Brothers High School.

Quincy 2000 Offering Small Business Programs In Fall

The Quincy 2000 Corporation will offer a 12-session small business management course and a series of evening seminars for small businesses this fall, announces Executive Director Joseph Mannarino.

The public-private partnership for economic development provides both loan funds and technical assistance to Quincy businesses but its education programs are open to the public and do not require Quincy residency.

All are held at Quincy 2000's 1250 Hancock St. offices from 6 to 9 p.m. on the evening specified. Contact Quincy 2000 at 617-847-1454 for more information and registration.

"NxLevel Quincy for Entrepreneurs" is a nationally acclaimed program designed for entrepreneurs who are ready to plan for further growth and success.

The program was developed at the University of Colorado with input from 24,000 entrepreneurs and will be taught in Quincy by staff of the UMass-Boston Small Business Development Center.

Last year's NxLevel Quincy was oversubscribed and immediate registration is recommended.

The program is designed

for entrepreneurs who have been in business three or more years. Business owners will learn organization and management of their business, how to understand and use their financial statements, as well as marketing and attracting customers. They will build their management skills, analyze their company and build a business plan to manage the next level of growth.

The program will run Thursday evenings Sept. 17 to Dec. 10 and will feature expert guest lecturers, meetings with financing sources and networking opportunities. The course costs $250 but partial scholarships are available for income-eligible Quincy residents. Fee for the second person from the same company is $140.

The Fall Seminar Series is designed to respond to the diverse needs of the Quincy business community from exporting to government procurement to starting a business.

"Government: The Forgotten Market" is scheduled for Oct. 28. Each year the federal government purchases more than $200 billion worth of goods and services. State and municipal governments spend an additional $20 billion.

This seminar, conducted by the Massachusetts Procurement Technical Assistance Center (PTAC) in conjunction with Quincy 2000, will guide businesses through the government procurement process and help them to complete in the government marketplace.

"Exporting 101" will be held Nov. 4. A first look at exporting, this seminar, conducted by the Mass Export Center, the Canadian Studies Program of Bridgewater State College and Quincy 2000, will introduce participants to issues including determining export readiness, potential export markets, identifying potential partners and the mechanics of export transactions. There will be a special emphasis on Canada, our nearest export neighbor.

The cost of each of these seminars is $25 or $45 for both.

"Getting Started in Business" will be held Jan. 21. This is for business start-ups who never had the time to get the MBAs but still need to write a business plan.

This evening is designed for start-up entrepreneurs who will need a plan to seek financing as well as those already in businesses. Attendees will hear Quincy 2000's partners from the UMass-Boston Small Business Development Center on how to start or grow their companies. The cost is $15.

THE DOROTHY QUINCY HOMESTEAD

(Robert Noble Photo)

Will Push For Transfer To Adams National Park Delahunt Takes Up Harold's Cause On Dorothy Quincy Homestead

Call it the final tribute to cap the career of the late Paul Harold.

Extra efforts are being made to place the transfer of the Dorothy Quincy Homestead on the fast track to becoming part of the Adams National Historical Park.

That was a pet project of the former city councilor, state senator and register of deeds who died Aug. 12 before the transaction could become a reality.

Congressman Bill Delahunt pledged to give the transfer "a special priority" when it comes time to designate the 316-year-old homestead as a National Historic Landmark.

The mansion at 34 Butler Rd. is owned by the MDC but is under a 99-year lease to the Colonial Dames of America, who own the furnishings and conduct tours of the building.

The MDC has indicated it is more than willing to give up the building to the National Park Service.

The mansion was the home of Dorothy Quincy, the wife of John Hancock. His pledge of eternal love is still scratched on one window pane. The blue cupid wallpaper that was imported for their wedding is still on the walls.

knowledge and experience to this position."

Ayer will continue to serve as the city's Shellfish Constable in addition to his new duties. The dual roles are assumed by one person in other towns on the South Shore, including Hull, Cohasset and Ringham.

Ayer is currently serving his third term as president of the Quincy Public Employees Association. He and his wife, Paula, have four children and three grandchildren.

Ayer succeeds Bernie Reisberg who died in April and had served 18 years as harbormaster.

Four-Mile Route Begins, Ends At Pageant Field

Marie Curry Walk For Breast Cancer Awareness Sept. 15

A woman is diagnosed with breast cancer every three minutes; a woman dies from the disease every 12 minutes. These women — mothers, sisters, daughters, co-workers, neighbors, friends — are the heart of the fifth annual Marie Curry Walk.

On Sunday, Sept. 15, nearly 1,000 South Shore residents will team up to support these women and to raise funds to provide critical mammography services for uninsured and underinsured women, who otherwise may not have access to the important cancer screenings.

The Marie Curry Walk, sponsored by Quincy Medical Center and the Mayor's Commission on Women, is dedicated to raising awareness about the importance of screening mammography in the early detection of breast cancer.

Early detection provides a greater chance of survival and more treatment options for patients with breast cancer. Screening mammograms can reveal cancer at its earliest stage, up to two years before a lump becomes palpable.

The centerpiece of this year's walk is a striking visual tribute. "Images of Honor and Memory." A dramatic path of pink and white will represent the impact of breast cancer on the South Shore with pink containers remembering those who have passed away and white containers honoring breast cancer survivors. Each will be inscribed with the name of the person being honored or remembered.

remembered.

The walk begins and ends at Pageant Field in Merry Mount Park, following a four-mile route largely along Quincy Shore Drive. Event registration begins at 8 a.m. and the walk begins at 9:30 a.m. The festivities will culminate with a special post-walk celebration, including the "Images of Honor and Memory" ceremony at Pageant Field.

The Marie Curry Walk was established to honor the memory of Marie Curry, a South Shore resident who lost her battle with breast cancer in 1995. More than $500,000 has been raised since the walk began five years ago.

For information on business and corporate sponsorship opportunities or to become a team captain, call 617-376-5493. Donations may be sent to the Marie A. Curry Fund, c/o Quincy Medical Center Foundation, 114 Whitwell St., Quincy 02169.

Two-Month Recovery Time Seen After Apartments Fire

All but 12 units of the 36 that had to be evacuated in the wake of last Thursday's fire at the Presidential Estates apartments have been reoccupied and the damaged dozen are expected to be back on line in two months.

"Six of them will be back in a month," said Pat McHugh, the site manager of the apartment complex at 1020 Southern Artery. "The final six will be back in a couple of months. We started repairs Saturday morning. This is their homes, you know."

McHugh said she had "no clear estimate" of the damage but firefighters set the figure unofficially at around $400,000.

Two firefighters, Lt. Pat Dee and Firefighter John McCarthy, suffered minor injuries and were treated and released from Quincy Medical Center. None of the residents of the 276-unit complex, including the 54 who were displaced, reported injuries.

"Our main concern," said McHugh, "is that two of the people who were burned out lost everything in the fire. We have set up a Presidential Estates Fire Relief Fund for them at the Eastern Bank."

The fire broke out in a second floor apartment about 12:45 p.m. Thursday and the Red Cross had 10 workers on the scene until midnight, said Mary Thang, spokesman for the American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay in Boston.

"We are getting in touch with the displaced persons now," said Thang. "We have long term assistance for them, furniture, utensils, etc. We have shopping vouchers for clothing for them. Everything is new."

Koch Endorsed By Professional Fire Fighters Of Massachusetts

Tom Koch, Democratic candidate for Norfolk county treasurer, has received the endorsement of the Professional Fire Fighters of Massachusetts.

The Endorsement was voted unanimously at the June meeting of the PFFM.

President Robert McCarthy cited Koch's "concern and support for the fire fighters of the Commonwealth and their families" as a major reason for the endorsement. McCarthy also cited Koch's "success and accomplishments, and I have found them to be quite exemplary."

"I am honored to have the endorsement of the hard-working fire fighters of the Commonwealth," Koch said. "They recognize my commitment to ensuring that the retirement monies of hard-working public employees, such as our fire fighters, are protected so that a lifetime of public service will be rewarded with a quality of life they deserve for their retirement."

The Professional Fire Fighters of Massachusetts have more than 11,000 members throughout the Commonwealth. The PFFM assists with the promotion and protection of legislation favorable to the intent of firefighters, and they assist their members in securing adequate compensation and just and sound pension plans.

"Through the tragic events of the past year, many people now truly appreciate the daily reality of fire fighters and public safety personnel," Koch said.

"In my 14 years of service in local and county government, I have a proven record of supporting fire fighters and public safety personnel. It is an honor for my record to be recognized by such an influential organization as the Professional Fire Fighters of Massachusetts," Koch said.

School Teacher Cuts Now Down To Just 16

Two weeks before the start of the public school year in Quincy, the size of the teaching staff is steadily inching back to normal.

When Mayor William Phelan's proposed $195.2 million budget for Fiscal 2003 was first announced in May, it was estimated that the schools' share, a 10 per cent cut over Fiscal 2002, would cost 117 teaching jobs.

Two weeks ago, after a hefty infusion of state funding that brought about a total recall of 76 teachers, the figure stood at 41 teaching positions lost.

Tuesday, Assistant School

Superintendent Dr. Carmen Mariano placed the recall figure at 101, which means that the number of teachers lost to the financial crunch stands at 16 on the eve of the schools opening Wednesday, Sept. 4.

"We are elated the bring back so many excellent teachers to our schools and to our students," said Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, the superintendent of schools.

"The state's Chapter 70 money funded the good news. We thank our legislative delegation of Ron Mariano, Bruce Ayers, Steve Tobin and Michael Morrissey for all they did to bring these funds to Quincy.

"We are also indebted to our School Committee and its chairman, Mayor Phelan, for continuing to make our classroom teachers and class sizes the beneficiaries of all new money that come our way."

"The staff here is wonderful. They make me feel right at home."

It's all about peace of mind at an Allerton House Assisted Living Community. Here you'll discover a new kind of independence, built around a real home, new friendships and a caring staff.

Benefit Planned For Paralyzed Youngster

Friends of the Shadduck family of Braintree have arranged a benefit event at the Quincy Marriott Hotel to raise funds for the care of 13-year-old Jack Shadduck, who was struck down by a neurological ailment that has left him paralyzed.

The aim of the event, which will feature a silent auction, a raffle and the appearance of Boston sports personalities, is to raise $150,000 of the $500,000 it is expected to cost the Shadducks for Jack's care during the first year alone.

Jack was stricken May 15 when he returned home from a school field trip, did his paper route and went out to play. Suddenly, he lost feeling in his feet and had to struggle home. In an hour, he was paralyzed from the neck down and breathing with difficulty.

He was diagnosed at Children's Hospital with "transverse myelitis," a neurological syndrome caused by inflammation of the spinal cord. He was hospitalized for three months but remains paralyzed and breathing with the aid of a ventilator.

Jack's parents, Joe and Marie Shadduck, and his grandparents, John and Barbara Gilfeather, have devoted all their energies to his 24-hour care but their insurance does not cover the expected $500,000 in bills, which is where the Friends come in.

The event they are arranging is a cocktail party which will feature a live band, a disc jockey, a live and silent auction and a raffle with a one week stay in St. Martin as first prize. Special guests will include past and present Boston sports figures.

The Friends are looking for individuals and local businesses to donate items for the live and silent auctions and advertise in the Ad Book as well as people to purchase tickets to the event and/or raffle tickets.

For more information on the Shadducks or the event itself, contact Daniel J. Flynn III at 617-479-9000.

John Graham Receives Business Writing Award

The Door and Hardware Institute has named John R. Graham as the recipient of this year's Ryan Editorial

Award for business writing.

Graham, who received the award at the Institute's annual convention in Chicago, is the president of Graham Communications in Quincy.

He was honored for his article, First Impressions

Are the Last Thing a Company Wants to Forget, that appeared in the Institute's monthly magazine, "Doors and Hardware."

The article, which has appeared in 29 business and trade publications, focuses on the importance of first impressions in business and how salespeople can use this to their advantage with clients and prospects.

In the article, Graham advises the reader to be "painfully clear" about recognizing the type of perception that one wishes to create, taking every positive and negative message seriously, remaining clear in understanding what the customer is thinking, and capitalizing on every uniqueness.

Graham Communications is a marketing services and sales consulting firm that has served clients since 1976.

After His Diagnosis David Ezickson Starting Parkinson's Disease Support Group

When substitute teacher David Ezickson was diagnosed with Parkinson's disease, an illness that attacks the nervous system, he discovered an alarming fact — there is no support group for ailment in Quincy.

That's why Ezickson is rallying support to start just such a group with the first meeting scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 8, at 2 p.m. in the Community Room at Roche Brothers Supermarket, 101 Falls Boulevard, Quincy Point.

A support group is particularly important for victims of Parkinson's Disease since many are left with negative attitudes about themselves that can be erased by developing self-esteem through a support group.

DAVID EZICKSON

Until recently, Parkinson's was a disease that those who suffered from it chose to keep locked in a closet, like breast cancer, as something that was vaguely shameful. It came out of the closet with Mohammed Ali. Michael J. Fox and Janet Reno.

"If I have it, then I have it, that's all," says Ezickson.

For the past two weeks, with the support and a grant of $200 from the American Parkinson Disease Association, Inc., he has been contacting support groups from surrounding towns for advice and printing posters and cards from distribution.

"South Shore Hospital in Weymouth has a group with only one Quincy resident," he says. "Sinai Hospital in Stoughton has one with no Quincy residents. So we're not duplicating anyone else's efforts. We're looking for patients, care givers or volunteers to join us."

Anyone wishing to join the Parkinson's Disease support group should call Dave Ezickson at 617-471-9359.

Beth Houghton Receives Robert C. Byrd Scholarship

Beth N. Houghton, a recent North Quincy High School graduate and future freshman at Merrimack College, is a recipient of the Robert C. Byrd Scholarship for $1,500.

The scholarship is a federally-funded, four-year program whose purpose is to promote student excellence and achievement and to recognize exceptionally able students who show promise of continued excellence.

Eric O'Dea On BC High Honor Roll

Eric R. O'Dea of Quincy achieved high honors for the fourth quarter at Boston College High School.

Sheriff's Youth Leadership School In Successful Start

Sheriff Michael Bellotti's Youth Leadership Academy completed its first week with glowing reports of its value in developing positive attitudes and social skills of its students.

"The focus on teamwork and problem solving is what brings out the best in these kids," said Bellotti. "It's amazing to see what develops when these kids work together and put aside their differences."

The academy will run five one-week sessions with up to 50 new kids per week, ages 10 to 14, from across Norfolk County. Most are referred by local DARE officers.

There were 36 youngsters from Quincy, Braintree and Holbrook in the first week's class, conducted at the sheriff's administrative center on 16 acres of open space in Braintree.

Paul Harold: 'A Man Of Great Integrity'

people from all walks of life filed into the Lydon Funeral Home on Hancock St., Wollaston, to pay their respects.

For many, it brought back memories of another lost favorite son whose life was cut short. James R. McIntyre, former mayor, state senator and city council president, who died following surgery in March, 1984.

Paul Harold, who was Norfolk County Register of Deeds, also served as state senator and city council president — and could have been mayor if he wanted to be many are convinced — died Aug. 12 after a two-year battle with stomach cancer.

They were two of Quincy's brightest political stars. Both, sadly, died at age 53 in the prime of their lives.

Mourners arrived more than an hour early for the funeral Mass that lasted two hours on a sweltering, humid day.

Agnes Hogan, who had worked in the Harold political campaigns for 27 years and was one of the early arrivals said, "Paul was like a son to me."

A reminder that at senior citizen facilities throughout the city, where he was so well liked, they used to say that all the women wanted to mother him.

The Harold Committee thoughtfully provided small bottles of cold spring water during the long Mass as the church is not air-conditioned.

The estimated 400 or more who filled the church included:

Congressman William Delahunt, Senate President Thomas Birmingham, Secretary of State William Galvin, Mayor William Phelan, Brian Donnelly, former Congressman and ambassador to Trinidad, Philip Johnston, Democratic state party chairman, State Sen. Michael Morrissey, City Council President Daniel Raymondi and the entire city council, School Committee Vice Chairwoman Christine Cedrone, City Clerk Joseph Shea, Dist. Atty. William Keating, Sheriff Michael Bellotti, County Treasurer Tim Cahill, County Commissioners John Gillis and William O'Donnell, Patrick McDermott, assistant Norfolk County Register of Deeds, and many other present and past officials from the Boston-South Shore area.

Participating were color guards from the Quincy police and fire departments, and the sheriff's department. Rangers from the National Parks Service, Adams National Historical Park served as honorary pallbearers.

Cardinal Law likened Paul Harold to John Quincy Adams as "representing the very best in the tradition of this nation."

He saw a correlation between what Harold "did as a public servant, how he did it and the stands he took and his faith."

"It is refreshing to look at a life like Paul's. He was a man of great integrity. I am proud to have served as the celebrant of his funeral Mass."

Fr. Michael Kearney, pastor of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, had this praise:

"A good, good man. The good Paul did in his life. All the times he stood up politically. He touched all his friends and family."

Harold's code in life came through while walking with Fr. Kearney a few days before his death.

"One of the things he said to me was, 'Father, I tried to do it the best way I knew how. I tried to do it right.'"

Joseph R. Harold, III of Hingham recalled his uncle as: "A very special public official. He did things with class and style. People liked him even if they didn't agree with him. He always thought of others first and himself last, if at all. He lived his life with honesty and dignity."

His uncle, he said, had great respect for people and often gave free of his law services to help those in need.

On the lighter side, Joseph Harold remembered the Christmas his uncle was going to buy his young nephews a monkey just because they wanted one. But their mother put her foot down and Uncle Paul stuck pretty much to gift certificates after that.

There was also the time, he remembered, when a window was broken at one of the Presidents Adams birthplaces. His uncle and long-time campaign supporter Mike Linnane were quick to the rescue: they boarded up the broken window with one of Harold's campaign signs.

And then there was all that duct tape.

Joseph Harold said Uncle Paul would wait for duct tape to go on sale and buy rolls by the dozens. Just the thing for leaky pipes and frayed wiring and assorted other household problems. Easy to use and cheaper than having to call a plumber or electrician.

He also recalled his uncle sometimes was a bit stingy when it came to distributing campaign bumper stickers. He would give out just one at a time to be sure they weren't wasted.

A roar of laughter went up when Joseph Harold said his uncle insisted: "I'm not cheap. I'm frugal. Frank McCauley is cheap."

McCauley, a longtime friend and political ally, who was at the Mass with his wife, Sandra, laughed the loudest.

William Harold of San Diego recalled his brother's first run for elective office. It was as a student at Broad Meadows Middle School and it was his first political victory.

"He was asked what he liked most about it (winning) and he said: 'The applause. I liked the applause.'"

And with that, William Harold said to those attending the Mass: "So, today I'd like you to start the applause one more time."

Loud applause swept through the church like a wave. Many stood to make it a standing ovation.

Volunteer police motorcycle details from Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and Dedham kept the entire several-mile funeral procession route clear from the church to St. Francis Xavier Cemetery in East Weymouth.

The long procession, estimated at 100 vehicles or more, passed by the Harold home on Furnace Brook Parkway where an honor guard of rangers from the National Parks Service stood at attention and saluted.

The procession made its way down Hancock St. to Quincy Sq., passing under a large American flag held between two Quincy fire department ladder trucks in front of City Hall.

It was the fire department's tribute to Harold who was the first honorary member of Quincy Firefighters Local 792.

City Hall employees unable to attend the Mass lined the sidewalk.

The cortege continued to Quincy Ave. and Weymouth Landing to Rte. 53.

There, just before the cemetery, the procession passed under another large American flag held between two ladder trucks from the Braintree fire department. Braintree was part of Paul Harold's state senatorial district he served 14 years.

At the cemetery, under a blazing sun, several hundred gathered at the grave where prayers were read by Fr. James Curtin, former pastor of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church now part of St. Elizabeth Ann Seton Parish, and Deacon John Menz.

Quincy Local 792 President William Arienti read a letter of praise as a Weymouth fire department color guard stood by.

A bagpipe played a stirring "Amazing Grace." A flock of white doves arranged for by Quincy Police Lt. Kevin Williams was released by Quincy Captain James McNeil and flew over the grave.

Paul Harold's final resting place is beside his sister, Betsy, and in front of his father and mother, Joseph and Marguerite Harold.

Some lingered at the conclusion of the service to say a personal prayer or to touch the casket and then walked away slowly -- and sadly.

Strong Spring Market In Bay State

Sales On Pace For Second Best Year Ever

Home buying activity rose for the third time in four quarters in Massachusetts this past spring, the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR) recently reported.

Record-low mortgage rates, volatility in the nation's financial markets and the changing lifestyles of baby-boomers led to strong increases in single-family and condominium sales in the second quarter.

Home prices also rose steadily this spring as a result of strong housing demand and insufficient inventory level, especially in the entry-level market.

The MAR report showed detached single-family homes sales increased 7.5 percent during the second quarter of 2002 compared to the same period a year ago, climbing from 12,367 to 13,295 — the most of any April-June period since 1999 when 14,558 units sold.

In addition, condominium sales rose 12.3 in the second quarter, rising from 3,852 to 4,325 units sold — the highest on record for a spring quarter in Massachusetts.

"Business has been much stronger than we could have anticipated given the slow economic recovery and turmoil on Wall Street," said MAR President David Drinkwater. "The steady decline in mortgage rates, along with the mild winter weather and strong confidence in the housing sector, has brought a lot of new buyers into the market this spring, and that's helped the housing industry to remain recession-proof in many areas to this point."

Regionally, sales of detached single-family homes rose measurably in every region of the state, except western Massachusetts where sales were flat. The largest improvement in activity occurred in southeastern Massachusetts (Gr. Fall River-New Bedford), where sales rose 16.5 percent, while Cape Cod and Greater Boston each saw sales climb 11.6 percent.

In the condo market, sales also increased in every region but western Massachusetts, with double-digit sales growth reported on Cape Cod (Barnstable County), and in the Central (Worcester County), Greater Boston and Southeast regions.

"The recent decline in the stock market and the events of Sept. 11 have prompted a lot of people to invest more heavily in their homes and family life," Drinkwater said. "They're purchasing new homes, larger homes and vacation property within driving distance, and that's kept much of the market busy through the spring and early summer."

In fact, if the current sales pace were to continue through the end of the year, 2002 would become the second most active year on record for residential home sales in Massachusetts. Through the first six months of this year 29,816 detached single-family homes and condos have been sold. That's exceeded only by the 30,097 units sold in the first half of 1999.

Unquestionably, one of the hottest housing sectors in the state is the condo market which is benefiting from a shortage of entry-level homes in the detached home market, and the aging of the baby-boom generation that has led many empty-nesters to downsize to smaller homes during this current period of low interest rates, Drinkwater said.

"We haven't seen demand like this for condos since the late 1980s," he said. "It's become a popular first step into home ownership for thousands of entry-level buyers."

Notably, at the end of the second quarter, the average rate for a 30-year fixed mortgage was 6.76 percent in the Bay State, a decline of nearly half a percentage point from the average rate of 7.26 percent for a 30-year fixed loan in June 2001.

"As mortgage rates have fallen, many young families are finding they can own a home for less than they pay in rent," Drinkwater said.

While there's no shortage of buyers, the strong sales pace of the last six months has started to eat away at inventory. Listings of single-family homes and condos declined this spring for the first time in five quarters, falling 4.6 percent from a quarterly average of 34,095 to 32,537.

"We need to increase the supply of housing, especially for starter homes," Drinkwater said. "Housing provides a basic need and is a fundamental component of our economy, but we're not building nearly enough of it in Massachusetts. Our communities need to become more accepting of new development or home prices are going to continue to escalate more quickly than the growth in household income, until they are out of reach of most first-time homebuyers."

Data in the MAR's housing report confirms this point. After five consecutive quarters of single-digit appreciation, the statewide average selling price of detached single-family homes rose 14.9 percent, from an average of $306,121 to $351,845.

In addition, the statewide average selling price for condominiums increased 17.7 percent, from an average of $210,028 to $247,287.

Within regional markets, average selling prices for detached single-family homes rose by healthy margins in every area of the state in the past year, while selling prices for condos climbed steadily in all markets except Cape Cod, which saw a 1.2 percent decline in selling price.

Granite Knock Off Springfield, Improve To 4-1

By CHRIS POISSON
The Quincy Granite didn't play their best game, but it was still able to knock off the best team, undefeated Springfield, last Saturday at Veterans Memorial Stadium on a steamy night.

In a game sloppier than a 2-year-old eating spaghetti—especially the two-hour first-half performance—the Granite built a 27-6 lead after three quarters and was able to hold on for a 29-26 victory, avenging the devastating loss to the Blitzin' Bears (5-1) in the semifinals of last year's Eastern Football League playoffs.

"We put some points on the board," said head coach Ken McPhee. "We went up 27-0 in the second half and then we kind of went into a deep sleep. Defensively, we played great. We dominated the first half."

The win improved the Granite's record to 4-1, behind Eastern Conference front-runner Charlestown (5-0) and Middleboro (5-1). Tomorrow (Friday) night at 8, they travel to Marlboro to square off against the 11-time defending champion Shamrocks, whom they beat, 27-22, on July 20 in Quincy.

"It's going to be a huge game," said captain David Harris. "I think it's going to go down to the wire. We got redemption by beating them at home and now we have to go there. It's a long 45-minute drive home at 12 o'clock at night."

After Quincy's heralded defense forced quarterback Bill Watson to throw three straight incomplete passes on Springfield's first possession, the offense took over and looked crisp early on.

Quarterback Liam Higgins fired a 12-yard strike to wideout Bo Garcia and then completed a 31-yard pass to wideout John Barr down to the Springfield 2-yard line. However, Higgins misfired on second and third down and Quincy settled for a 22-yard Matt Kuluszka field goal.

The Blitzin' Bears fumbled the ensuing kickoff and the Granite received the ball at the Springfield 31. Unfortunately, they gained only two yards and Kuluszka's 43-yard field-goal attempt came up short.

Quincy's defense continued its strong play. Late in the first quarter Quincy fumbled a catch on Springfield's third punt, leaving the Blitzin' Bears in prime field position at the Granite 22. Three plays later, though, defensive tackle Christos Arsoniadis recovered a fumble to end the threat.

As well as Quincy's defense was playing—allowing only one first down in the first half—Springfield's was equally as well. Quincy couldn't establish its running game; the offensive line allowed two sacks and Higgins threw nine straight incomplete passes before being lifted with 7:42 in the half for newcomer Shawn Tarpey.

Tarpey entered the game with the ball on the Springfield 23 after the Blitzin' Bears shanked a punt in their own territory. After a 6-yard scramble, tailback Ed Mazzuchelli blasted through a hole up the middle for a 17-yard touchdown and a 10-0 lead after Kuluszka's extra point.

Springfield picked up its only first down on its next possession but eventually had to punt, which Quincy's Mike Mathisen blocked. However, Tarpey handed the ball right back when he tossed an interception on his first pass attempt.

After the defense again forced Springfield to go (Cont'd On Page 23)

Morrisette Babe Ruth Playoff Hopes Alive

Veteran hurler Bobby Newcomb fired seven solid innings to help keep Morrisette's Babe Ruth playoff hopes alive last week with an 11-7 win over Fire at Adams Field. Newcomb, a control pitcher who plays for North Quincy High School, allowed only three walks. He got stronger as he went along, giving up only one run over the last four innings. He added two hits and a run scored at the plate.

Drew Loud had a career-high six stolen bases as he walked and hit safely in his final three plate appearances while scoring four runs and driving in two. The shortstop also came up big defensively with four put-outs and five assists.

Joe Cafano and Tom Powers each had a pair of hits, while Terry O'Connell, Nick Peters and Anthony Gilbody had one apiece. Mike McPherson, Josh Brabazon and Matt Breslin played well.

For Fire, Kevin Bossart and Paul Lennon each banged out three hits.

SUSPECTING FOUL PLAY

If your vehicle idles roughly and/or its engine misfires, the likely culprit is a fouled spark plug. Although spark plugs will not lead foul with today's unleaded gasoline, they can oil-foul, carbon-foul, or even be fouled by fuel additives. These potential problems conspire to make a fouled spark plug more likely than a clogged fuel injector. If inspection of the spark plugs reveals oil-black deposits, the problem may rest with defective intake valve stem seals. If there are carbon-black deposits, the culprit may be an overly rich fuel mixture or a defective oxygen sensor. Emissions-control standards require the engine's on-board diagnostics (OBD II) to log trouble codes for each of the cylinders, recording the incidence of misfires.

Concussion And Fall Sports

With the fall sports season nearing, athletes of all ages are gearing up to play football, soccer, rugby and other contact sports where the chance of injury is just part of the game.

In fact, according to the Center for Disease Control and Prevention, there are approximately 3.7 million sports-related injury visits to hospital emergency rooms each year and about 300,000 of these are head injuries.

Concussion or mild traumatic brain injury is the most common head injury in sports, according to Thomas Galski, Ph.D., the director of psychology and neurology services at Kessler Institute for Rehabilitation.

A concussion is an injury in which the brain is shaken inside the skull upon forceful impact with a stationary or moving object, such as two football players colliding head-on.

"It is important to recognize that most athletes recover spontaneously and completely from a concussion, usually within days or weeks," Dr. Galski said. "However, a concussion may not be inconsequential, and there may be immediate and lasting effects, even though the athlete appears normal to the casual observer."

Kessler Institute for Rehabilitation, nationally recognized for its treatment of brain injury, is helping to educate coaches, trainers, parents and athletes on the importance of recognizing and treating a concussion as well as determining when it is safe to return to play.

Out of play

Any athlete suspected of sustaining a concussion should be removed from competition immediately and be evaluated by a coach, trainer or other qualified individual for deficits in attention, concentration and memory. Common symptoms of concussion include headache, dizziness, loss of balance, memory loss, confusion, disorientation, nausea and vomiting.

Far too often, in an attempt to keep that competitive edge, athletes disregard their symptoms, "shake them off" and return to play too soon. "Coaches and trainers, as well as the athletes and family members, need to be aware of the potential for serious after-effects from a concussion. They need to be cautious in regarding it as a minor or mild brain injury and returning to competition too soon," Dr. Galski said.

Back to play?

"In the past, there has been no clear-cut guidelines for use by coaches and trainers to identify and manage suspected concussions," Dr. Galski said. "More recently, though, simple guidelines that help determine the seriousness of a concussive injury and that describe recommended actions have been developed."

The guidelines are as follows:

- The athlete experiences no loss of consciousness and any symptoms resolve within 15 minutes. After one-half hour symptom-free the athlete can return to play but must be removed immediately if another head injury occurs.

- The athlete experiences no loss of consciousness, but symptoms last more than 15 minutes. The athlete should be removed from competition and be carefully monitored to make sure further complications do not arise. The player should be symptom-free for at least one week before resuming practice or play.

- The athlete who experiences loss of consciousness, even if only a few seconds, should be brought immediately to the emergency room for a thorough neurological evaluation. Depending on the results, an athlete who was briefly unconscious should not be allowed to resume practice or play a minimum of one week after all symptoms clear. An athlete who had prolonged unconsciousness should not return for a minimum of two weeks to a month after all symptoms clear.

In addition, all athletes suspected of concussion should be carefully monitored for at least 24 hours following injury. During sleep, the person must be awakened every two hours and asked basic orientation-type questions like "what's your name?", "how old are you?", etc. Any significant changes in mental status or behavior should be reported promptly to their doctor. If their doctor is unavailable, the patient should return to the emergency room for further evaluation.

Kessler, which has been federally designated as a model system for the treatment of traumatic brain injury, has developed a specialized treatment program for those who have experienced a concussion.

For more information about Kessler's comprehensive physical medicine and rehabilitation programs, call 1-833-KESSLER or visit its Web site (www.kessler-rehab.com).

Applications Available For Quincy Tennis Tournament

Entry forms are now available for the Quincy Recreation Department's 32nd annual City Tennis Tournament, announces Recreation Director Barry Welch.

The Quincy Municipal Credit Union has once again agreed to serve as co-sponsor.

"This is the 32nd consecutive year we have supervised this event and are grateful to the Credit Union for its seventh year as a co-sponsor," Welch said. "This is a wonderful activity for Quincy residents of all ages to take part in a tournament that has no equal in tradition, size and quality of play."

Entry forms can be picked up at the Quincy Municipal Credit Union, the Recreation Department office, City Hall, the Quincy Sun and at various tennis courts throughout the city. Deadline for entry is Thursday, Aug. 29, and the tournament will start Thursday, Sept. 5.

Cost is $11 for adults and $8 for youth. There are T-shirts for all participants. Matches are played nights and weekends at the Russell Park Tennis Courts on the grounds of the Center for Technical Education.

The tournament, believed to be one of the largest municipal tournaments in New England, has events for men, women, boys and girls, as well as mixed doubles. The director is John Franceschini, who has guided the tourney for over 20 years.

Events scheduled are: men's singles, women's singles, men's 50 and over, men's 35 and over, women's 35 and over, men's doubles, women's doubles, boys' 16 and under, girls' 16 and under, and mixed doubles.

There is also a special event, men's B, which is open to all participants in men's singles who are defeated in the first round. And there is a division for men or women who are employees of the city.

For more information call the Recreation Department at 617-376-1394.

Pat McDermott Completes 11th Pan-Mass Challenge

Despite record-breaking heat and humidity, former City Councilor Patrick McDermott recently completed his 11th Pan-Massachusetts Challenge to benefit the Jimmy Fund at the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

He finished the two-day ride from Sturbridge to Provincetown in 13 hours and seven minutes.

"PMC weekend is a great reminder about what is important in life, that being life itself," McDermott said.

He noted he was particularly moved at the opening ceremony at the Sturbridge Host Hotel with the amount of cancer survivors who were present.

PAT McDERMOTT

"The fact that the number of cancer survivors has been consistently growing each year gives all of us in the PMC family motivation to be back here every year," McDermott said.

Asked if ride number 12 is in store for 2003, McDermott said, "As long as my body will let me ride and as long as cancer continues to be a disease in our society, I will be back in 2003 and in years to come."

McDermott hopes to raise $4,000 this year, which is double the required $2,000 to ride. To make a donation, send checks made payable to "PMC/Jimmy Fund" to McDermott at 146 Taylor St., Quincy 02170, or visit www.pmc.org to donate online.

three-and-out, Quincy found the end zone with 1:12 left in the half. On a third-and-7 play at the Springfield 35, Tarpey slashed his way through the defense for a beautiful 27-yard gain that set up Mazzuchelli's second TD of the game from 8 yards out. Kulusza added the extra point for a 17-0 advantage at the break.

"Shawn Tarpey is an exciting player," McPhee said. "He's a good change-up guy.

He adds another dimension to the position."

"When he stepped onto the field Saturday night he shocked everybody," Harris said.

In the second half, Higgins came back into the game and must have gotten a case of amnesia during halftime. Shaking off his 2-of-12 outing earlier, Higgins kept the opening drive alive with a third-down conversion pass and then lofted a pretty 42-yard TD pass to — who else?

— wideout Jeff Lang for a 24-0 lead.

Kulusza tacked on a 23-yard field goal to put Quincy ahead 27-0 before Springfield got on the board late in the third quarter.

In the fourth, Springfield staged a tremendous rally with three scores led by quarterback Chris Borders before the Blitzin' Bears ran out time enabling Quincy to walk away with a much-needed win.

cal education. Dr. Mark Lipsky, M.D., Milton Hospital's chief of radiology, studied under Dr. Longmaid at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center.

"Dr. Longmaid hired me as a fellow at the Deaconess and was instrumental in my education. I'm thrilled to be able to work with such a bright, wonderful teacher again," Dr. Lipsky said.

Dr. Longmaid is a native of Montana. He and wife planned to be here for three years while she finished medical school, but that was in 1973. Now, 29 years later, Dr. Longmaid and his family are planted in the Boston area.

Dr. Longmaid enjoys playing basketball, hiking, reading, keeping up with Boston sports' teams, and most of all, spending time with his family.

Dr. Longmaid is certified by the National Board of Medical Examiners and his academic appointments include: Clinical Fellow in Radiology; Instructor in Radiology; and Assistant Professor of Radiology at Harvard Medical School, as well as Assistant Professor of Radiological Sciences at the Medical College of Pennsylvania, and Assistant Professor of Medicine at Dartmouth Medical School.

He is a member of the American Medical Society, the Association of University of Radiologists, Radiological Society of North America, Massachusetts Radiological Society, American College of Radiology, Association of Program Directors in Radiology, and the American Institute of Ultrasound in Medicine.

Easing Anxiety And Worry

Essential Back-To-School Tips For Parents

By ALAN JACOBSON
Licensed Psychologist

"Already?" This word has begun to echo across the region as parents and kids realize that it is back-to-school time again.

During this time, most kids begin to experience a sad feeling that their summer fun is over. Even so, some will look forward to seeing friends they have been out of touch with. For many, however, back-to-school time brings anxiety and worry. Their fears range from worrying about missing the bus to having a difficult teacher.

Parents are certainly not immune from anxiety as we think about hectic mornings, carpooling chaos and whether our children are ready to take their next academic step.

As parents, however, we must try to put aside our anxiety because we are the emotional role models our kids will look to as they contemplate the new school year. We need to be able to try to pro-actively address our children's concerns and demonstrate that we can effectively problem-solve around the back-to-school issues facing the whole family.

Here are some tips that should help:

Beginning now...

Encourage your child to seek out their friends. They will feel much more com-they see a friend and exchange a friendly word. You might want to call the parents of other children in your child's class ahead of time to arrange play dates that might jump-start this process.

ALAN JACOBSON

A week or two before school starts...

Be sure to be available to your child to talk about fears and anxieties they may have. Many of kids' fears will diminish just by talking about them and problem solving with you. The younger your child, the more direct you will have to be.

For example, with an 8 year old you can bring up the topic directly by asking: "Are you worried about going back to school?" With a teenager, on the other hand, you should just be silently available for them to bring up the conversation. Rides to the store for back-to-school shopping, mealtimes and the time right before bed provide great opportunities for these conversations.

Four or five days before school starts...

Begin to have your family follow the same routine you will have on school mornings. This may include having your child start going to bed at the school-night bedtime, setting an alarm clock for the correct wake-up time, and having breakfast ready at the school time. This will accomplish several goals: it will alleviate fears of missing the bus, it will reduce morning drowsiness that can increase anxiety and will decrease your own anxiety about the change in the morning routine.

The day before school starts...

Help your child select clothing and pack their backpack. Knowing what they're wearing and having everything packed will help them start off the morning on a calm, predictable note. Then help them become calm and relaxed at night. Tell them not to worry if they can't sleep — this is very normal, and if they feel undue pressure to fall asleep it will only make their insomnia worse.

The first day of school...

You could write a letter of introduction to the teacher. This would be particularly helpful if in your conversations your child has voiced worries such as, "How will my teacher know that I'm nervous about raising my hand in class?" You might want to include information such as games they enjoy playing, favorite foods and their best friends. Also on the first day you can send a note in your child's lunchbox to let them know you are thinking of them, or pack their favorite snack to help them feel your supportive presence during the day.

During this time of year it is perhaps most important to remember what happened in past years. It is more than likely that your family's anxiety will soon pass, and you will all be comfortably in the school-year routine.

GONE, BUT NOT FORGOTTEN

It may be necessary to extract a tooth because it is badly damaged by decay, it is causing crowding or malocclusion, or it is preventing a tooth from erupting. Whatever the reason, for a simple extraction, the area is first numbed with a local anesthetic. After the extraction, the initial healing period typically takes 1-2 weeks. Within the first 24 hours, there may be some swelling and residual bleeding. It is important not to dislodge the blood clot that forms on the extraction site, which is necessary to promote healing. Occasionally, this clot can break down, leaving what is known as a "dry socket," which may lead to some discomfort as the socket heals through a secondary healing process.

Extractions, sealants, fillings, root canals, cosmetic dentistry, partial or full dentures, and crowns and bridges are just some of the services we offer. For exceptional dental care, call (617) 479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we want to provide your entire family with the best care possible. We urge a routine of periodic professional exams that will help ensure the health and longevity of your teeth. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com. P.S. Eventually, new bone and gum tissue grow into the gap left by a tooth extraction.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Of all God's gifts to man, laughter is one of the most subtle and is one of the most precious. It has neither nationality nor religion. As an equalizer, it has no equal.

Laughter is one of the greatest contributions that has been given to mankind, and is one of the best things that one person can give to another. Comedians try to give that gift to us by telling jokes or humorous stories, but we don't always need an entertainer to make us laugh. We can give laughter to others; others can give laughter to us; and best of all, we can give it to ourselves.

When was the last time you had a good laugh at yourself? When was the last time you were in an embarrassing situation and didn't know what to do or say? And when you thought about it later, you realized the joke was on you and you could have just laughed? Laughing can make you feel better in an embarrassing situation and it certainly is better than crying... So keep it as an important part of your life. As the saying goes: when you laugh, the world laughs with you; when you cry, you cry alone.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) As eager as you are to take on this new challenge, it would be best to temper that spurt of "Ram"-buncious energy until you have more facts to back up your decision to move.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) This is a good time for hardworking Bovines to take a break from their hectic on-the-job schedules to bask in the unconditional love and support of friends and family.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Pay attention to what you hear in the workplace. You could pick up some hints about possible changes. Meanwhile, a new infusion of creative energy sets in by week's end.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Try to be more flexible in dealing with a suddenly difficult situation, whether it's on the job or in the home. Others might have some good points to offer. Listen to them.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might think you're not getting the royal treatment you deserve. But be careful not to become a royal pain by complaining about it. Be patient and allow things to work out.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Watch that penchant for being super-judgmental at work. It might create a bad impression with someone whose decisions could determine the course of your career.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You've been your usual busy-bee self, gathering nectar wherever you can find it. But now's a good time to kick back, relax and just enjoy smelling the roses.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) That pesky personal situation seems to be improving. But change comes slowly, so be patient. Expect someone to bring more positive news by week's end.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Whoa! Ease up on that hectic pace you've been putting yourself through. Take time to recharge your energy levels before going full gallop again.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Try to be intrigued, not intimidated, by the issues you're suddenly facing, and you'll be ahead of the game. Don't be afraid to demand answers to your questions.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) New associates freezing you out of their inner circle? Never mind. Put a warm smile on that friendly face of yours, and you'll soon thaw them all down to size.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your wise guidance helps colleagues agree to compromise and move forward. Meanwhile, there are still vital issues you need to deal with in your personal life.

BORN THIS WEEK: You enjoy being free with your emotions, but you also can exercise disciplined focus. You would make a fine artist.

Mary T. McElwin, 75 Restaurant Manager

A funeral Mass for Mary Theresa McElwin, 75, of Quincy, a restaurant manager, will be celebrated today (Thursday) at 11 a.m. at St. Agatha's Church in Milton.

She died Aug. 17 at Boston Medical Center.

Born in Boston, Miss McElwin was a lifelong resident of Quincy and a 1944 graduate of Quincy High School.

She was manager of several Howard Johnson and Red Coach Grill restaurants, working for Howard Johnson's for more than 40 years.

She is survived by a brother, Leo F. McElwin of Texas; three sisters, Joan M. Joyce of Brockton, Sister Barbara G. McElwin of Sisters of the Good Shepherd and Virginia M. Machado of Pembroke; and several nieces and nephews.

Burial will be in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Visiting was Wednesday 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. at Deware Funeral Home, 578 Hancock St.

Rose C. Ryder, 82 Musician, Entertainer

A funeral Mass for Rose C. (MacNeil) Ryder, 82, of Quincy, formerly of Rockland, a well-known musician and entertainer, will be celebrated Friday at 10 a.m. in Most Blessed Sacrament Church, corner of Sea and Darrow Sts.

Mrs. Ryder died Monday at home after a brief illness.

Born in Boston, she was educated in Quincy schools and graduated Quincy High School in 1937.

She moved back to Quincy last year after living in Rockland for 30 years.

Mrs. Ryder was a lifelong pianist and entertainer. She was well-known throughout the South Shore area and had entertained for more than 60 years.

In her later years she entertained at various local nursing homes and senior citizens groups and organizations. She also played for pre-kindergarten children in Rockland for 15 years.

Wife of the late Eugene Ryder II, she is survived by two daughters, Janice Fratolillo of Quincy and Linda Robinson of Rockland; a son, Ronald G. Ryder of Abington; five step-children, Alan Ryder of Florida, Virginia "Chickie" Yergeau of North Carolina, Eugene H. Ryder, Jr. of Carver, Beverly Ryder of New Hampshire and Valerie Acciavatti of Milton; seven grandchildren; seven great-grandchildren; several step-grandchildren; and a dear friend, William Bemus of Scituate. She was also the mother of the late Robert Lott.

Visiting hours are today (Thursday) from 4 to 8 p.m. at the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy Center.

Burial will be in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Donations may be made to the South Shore VNA, 100 Bay State Dr., Braintree, MA 02184.

Century-Old Water Mains To Be Replaced In South Quincy

The city has executed a $677,000 contract to replace the century-old water mains serving homes and businesses in the South Quincy area that was affected by a water main break in July.

The system, one of the oldest in Quincy's infrastructure, dates back to the 1890s and early 1900s and includes connections on Liberty, Center, Intervale, Rodman, Trafford, Taber, Columbia and Albertina Streets.

Mayor William J. Phelan and Ward 4 City Councillor Bryan Connolly said the mains will be replaced this

High School Classes Start Sept. 5 Back To School Sept. 4 For Grades 1 To 9

By TOM HENSILAW

It's back to school for Quincy Public School students in Grades 1-9 on Wednesday, Sept. 4, with a full day of classes and lunch served in all schools.

Sophomores, juniors and seniors at both Quincy and North Quincy High Schools will return to school Thursday, Sept. 5. Freshmen will have reported for orientation a day earlier at 7:45 a.m.

Kindergarten orientation days will be held Wednesday, Sept. 4, through Friday, Sept. 6 and kindergarten development screening Monday, Sept. 9 and Tuesday, Sept. 10.

The first full days for all students Grades 1-12 will be Thursday, Sept. 5. Regular kindergarten classes will begin Wednesday, Sept. 11.

Budget cuts will be most noticeable on the transportation side.

The number of buses and routes for Grade K-5 has been reduced and the busing distance from the elementary schools increased to three quarters of a mile.

School hours for the city's 11 elementary schools are divided into two tiers.

The first tier is 7:45 a.m. to 2 p.m. for the following elementary schools: Atherton Hough, Charles A. Bernazzani, Lincoln-Hancock, Merry Mount and Wollaston Schools.

The second tier is 8:15 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. for the following elementary schools: Beechwood, Knoll, Montclair, Francis W. Parker, Snug Harbor, Squantum and Clifford H. Marshall Schools.

School hours at the Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center will be 7:35 a.m. to 1:50 p.m.

Middle school students

(Grade 6-8) will attend classes from 8:15 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at Atlantic, Broad Meadows, Central, Point Webster and Sterling Middle Schools.

School hours at Quincy and North Quincy High Schools are 7:45 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

A school year of 180 days is mandated by the state. The last day of classes is scheduled for Tuesday, June 17. Five makeup days to cover possible cancellations are listed as June 18, 19, 20, 23 and 24.

Graduation ceremonies are scheduled for Monday, June 2, at North Quincy High School and Tuesday, June 3, for Quincy High School and the Center for Technical Education.

Harming Them 'An Appalling Act' 14-Year Old Defends Coyotes Roaming Squantum

By LANCE MORGANELLI

The coyotes that are reported to be making life so hazardous for cats and dogs in Squantum have attracted at least one young defender.

Joseph Fontana, 14, of Huckins Avenue, in a letter to The Quincy Sun, protested his neighbors' coyote-bashing petitions as "an appalling act against nature."

"These coyotes," he wrote, "suspected to have roamed from Marina Bay, have not done anything unnatural to their species. There have been no proven attacks on any pet (or person, for that matter) by coyotes."

"It's a natural reason to come into the surrounding streets after being chased out of their Marina Bay homes," he added in an interview.

"Many of my neighbors are now signing a petition for the city to take action against the coyotes roaming Squantum's streets. This is being done because the government's hands are tied against this unless an attack by the coyotes is proven."

Fontana said the petition to kill the coyotes has already filled six notebook pages.

"I'm sure there are non-lethal methods of getting the coyotes out of the streets," he said. "It doesn't seem they are trying enough to search for other ways."

"Many of the people signing this are the same people who fought to save the bird sanctuary down at Marina Bay, a hot spot for coyotes as well as rabbits and other animals."

"Who is to say what nature is good or bad, and what makes it such?"

Fontana said he plans to get in touch with Ward 6 City Councillor Joe Newton to help him in his campaign against the massacre of the Squantum coyotes.

Meanwhile, he is issuing a call to anyone who is against the killing of coyotes "to step up and speak out. The killings must be stopped before they start."

Fundraiser Oct. 12 For Michael Fitzgerald Fund

The third annual Michael J. Fitzgerald scholarship fundraiser will be held Saturday, Oct. 12, from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. at the George E. Bryan VFW Post on Broad Street.

Michael, who was born and grew up in Germantown and graduated from North Quincy High School, was a 24-year-old senior at the University of Rhode Island when he was killed in an auto accident in October, 1999.

Since then, a scholarship has been established in his memory to benefit the members of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity at URI. Suggested donation at the fundraiser is $35, payable at the door or by mail to M. J. Fitzgerald Scholarship Fund, c/o Mary E. Fitzgerald, 75 Palmer St. No. 421, Quincy, MA 02169.

Disability Commission To Meet Sept. 10

Quincy Commission on Disability will meet Tuesday, Sept. 10 at 6:15 p.m. in the conference room at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington Street, Quincy Center.

The public is invited. For more information contact Jonathan Yip at 617-376-1515.

Birmingham Details Crime Plan On Visit To Quincy

Thomas Birmingham, the State Senate president who wants to be governor, took the occasion of a visit to Quincy to outline his plans for fighting crime, including "serious" penalties for corporate fraud and identity theft.

Birmingham, speaking in front of the Quincy Police Station, also paused long enough to pick up an endorsement from the International Brotherhood of Police Officers (IBPO), who cited him as a man "who knows what it takes to keep our neighborhoods safe."

"My crime plan recognizes that to keep our communities safe we must be tough on crime and smart on crime," said Birmingham. "This plan includes innovative ideas and policies that will not just respond to crime but prevent crime from Main Street to Wall Street."

The Birmingham plan includes:

- A major expansion of the community policing grant program, mobile data terminals in every police car, beefing up the violent fugitive arrest squad, a corrections policy focused on recidivism, meaningful transition and post-release supervision.

THOMAS BIRMINGHAM

- Defeating efforts to weaken the state's gun control law, stopping the flow of guns into the hands of criminals and stalkers, reconstituting the Gun Control Advisory Board, promoting responsible gun ownership, using new techniques to combat gun crime.

- Eliminating the statute of limitations for sexual assault, eliminating the backlog at the Sex Offender Registry, updating the Mandatory Reporting Law, extending the Rape Shield Law to civil cases, instituting the Amber Alert for abducted children.

- Aggressive legislation to combat corporate fraud, establishing felony penalties for identity theft, cracking down on terroristic threats, tracing the sources of Internet crime, prosecuting inter-district crime.

- Ensuring that the Victim Compensation System is there for victims of crime, making financial restitution as a part of every sentence and prevention of convicted offenders from profiting from their crimes.

Birmingham said he was "particularly proud" of the endorsement from the IBPO and pledged that "as governor, I will continue to work with police officers across the state to fight crimes and keep our neighborhoods safe."

Assumes Duty Next Month

Gorman New Director Emergency Management

Tom Gorman, who retired as Quincy's fire chief only two months ago, will take over as director of Emergency Management next month.

"He is the perfect fit for the job," said Mayor William Phelan. "I'm excited about him. He is experienced and very knowledgeable about the city."

Technically, Gorman replaces the city's police chief, who has been head of emergency planning since the department was established.

Actually, he replaces the assistant director, Tony Siciliano, who supervised emergencies from his post as foreman of the Traffic and Parking Division.

TOM GORMAN

"Historically," said the mayor, "the chief of police has been the director. Tom Gorman will make sure this doesn't pit the police against the firemen."

Phelan said the salary for Gorman's position has not yet been determined but it will be restricted because the retired chief draw a pension from the city.

"The salary will be paid out of the emergency budget and from grants," said Phelan. Siciliano was unpaid as assistant director.

The job will be part-time, said the mayor.

"One of his first jobs will be to update the shelters and the safety equipment," said Phelan, "and begin the steps toward certification of our emergency plan by the state."

One Dead, One Injured In Houghs Neck Crash

A 21-year-old Dorchester man was treated and released from Boston Medical Center following a one-car accident at the intersection of Sea and Darrow Streets, Hough's Neck, that left another Dorchester man dead.

James D. Roche was injured when the vehicle in which he was a passenger struck three parked cars and took down two utility poles at 1:30 a.m. Thursday. Power was lost for a time in the area.

The operator of the car, Pete McDonagh, also 21, was pronounced dead at the scene.

Preliminary results of an investigation by the Quincy Police Traffic Division indicate that speed was a factor in the accident.

Hazardous Waste Collection Rescheduled To Sept. 14

The household hazardous waste collection originally scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 11, has been changed to Saturday, Sept. 14, from 8:30 to 11 a.m.

The last hazardous waste collection for the fall will be Saturday, Oct. 19, from 8:30 to 11 a.m.

A Farewell To Joe

Joe LaRaia has been around City Hall a long time. In and out over a 42-year span, he is leaving again this week, this time his final exit.

He leaves behind for many, memories of one of Quincy's most controversial — and colorful — political figures.

And a positive legacy that seems to get overlooked or ignored as the years go by.

Just turned 70, LaRaia is stepping down Friday as a city assessor, a post he has quietly held for nearly seven years.

But he will be best remembered for the much more lively 22 years (plus) he served in elective office: 20 (and five months) as a city councillor and two as mayor.

Especially those two as mayor. LaRaia launched his political career at 27, winning the Ward 2 city council seat in 1959, and went on to build a loyal, and sometime near fanatical following.

He jolted the political scene in 1975.

That was the year he took on mayoral incumbent Walter Hannon in a political brawl. Hannon went home election night the winner by a scant 134 votes.

A short lived victory. LaRaia filed for a recount which declared him the actual winner by 483 votes.

LaRaia claimed his enemies tried to steal the election. A court inquest, however, found it wasn't larceny but errors in the tabulation of the paper ballots election night.

Hard feelings festered on both sides as LaRaia entered into one of the most turbulent administrations the city had ever seen. One involving three bad choices as appointees.

But LaRaia said it was more than that. His administration was obstructed by his enemies, he insisted.

"I was there (mayor's office) for only two years," he told The Sun in November, 2000. "It seemed like 10. It was a very active two years. Combative. Challenging. It was never boring. There was so much happening you would think it would take 10 years for it all to happen, but it all happened in two."

Regardless of who or what was to blame, after those two years, the voters had had enough. City Council President Arthur Tobin, hardly a LaRaia fan, defeated him by more than 5,000 votes in another bitter battle in 1977.

That was the end of LaRaia, his critics predicted. They wrote him off as a political has-been. But he would show them.

Back he came two years later, winning a city council at-large seat by just 197 votes over political newcomer Richard Koch, Jr.

But a win is a win and he was back in the ballgame and rallying his fans. By 1985 he had surged to the top spot in the council at-large field.

On the strength of that showing, he trained his sights on the mayor's office once again in 1987. And came close to another big upset, losing to incumbent Frank McCauley by only 460 votes.

That may have convinced McCauley to bid his famous "Sayonara" and not seek a fifth term in 1989. And LaRaia to take another crack at the mayor's office and the chance to make up for all the things that went wrong in 1976-77.

But the LaRaia magic was fading despite the scare he gave McCauley. In a four-man preliminary field, he finished last behind James Sheets, Peter O'Connell and Steve McGrath.

Sheets, who won the final election and went on to six terms, appointed LaRaia an assessor in 1995. LaRaia hasn't run for anything since.

He is remembered for those battles on the political front and those two stormy years in the mayor's office.

He's had his share of criticism down through the years. But he deserves a share of credit, too, which he seldom gets.

He showed vision in 1975 when he favored the extension of Upland Rd. (now Burgin Parkway) and the construction of Rte. 3 access ramps at Capen's Bridge in Braintree to help revitalize the downtown business district.

Not the most popular stand back then with some of the retail leaders of the day arguing it would make it easier for Quincy shoppers to get to the South Shore Plaza. But the ramps and extension are warmly embraced today.

LaRaia brought about the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre that honors the Wollaston born award-winning actress who was "thrilled" as she stood on the stage the day it was dedicated. And since then, where hundreds each summer enjoy free concerts in the open air.

But the legacy still pretty much forgotten as LaRaia leaves City Hall Friday, is City Hall itself. The new City Hall attached to old City Hall.

Mayors before him often talked about the need for a new City Hall with the old one bulging at the seams and valuable documents and records scattered here and there.

LaRaia did something about it. He got it built and deserves the credit. That, probably, is his legacy.

Would he ever run for mayor again?

People not too long ago urged him to, he says. But his answer: "Been there. Did it. I won't be doing it again."

Friends and foes saw things differently but they agreed on one thing: there was never a dull moment whenever he wandered into City Hall to pick up nomination papers.

Happy retirement, Joe.

South Quincy Italian Festival Sept. 7

The 17th annual South Quincy Italian Festival will be held Saturday, Sept. 7, from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. at Malnati's Block, intersection of Liberty Street and Brooks Avenue.

Rain date for the festival is Sunday, Sept. 8.

The purpose of the festival is to raise money to fund scholarships for college-bound Quincy students while reuniting family and friends with roots in the South

Quincy neighborhood. Last year, the festival awarded ten $350 scholarships.

This year's festival features a wide variety of food such as Italian sausages, pizza, calzones, fried calamari, fried dough and other offerings. There will be many craft tables with items for sale ranging from T-shirts to collectibles to shark's teeth.

Children's rides and amusements will be available for a nominal charge.

A disc jockey from noon to 4 p.m. followed by the sounds of "Ronnie Lewis and the Expedition" from 4 to 8 p.m. will provide entertainment.

The newly opened Cyril P. Morrisette American Legion Post on Liberty Street is a welcomed addition to the festival providing another food and beer vendor. All are invited to stop by and check out their new facility.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1909 POSTCARD view of the old Quincy YMCA building on the corner at 61 Washington and Maple Street in Quincy Square. This Y building served the young boys of Quincy for over 50 years. It featured a large swimming pool on the ground floor. When the present South Shore YMCA was opened on Coddington

Street in 1955, this property was sold to the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Co. which has since erected a new building on the corner and is now constructing a new addition.

Half Million Grant To Develop Vo-Tech School

By TOM HENSHAW

The School Committee accepted the offer of the American Institute of Research to seek a half million dollars grant to help Quincy develop and evaluate an experimental curriculum for the planned $5 million vocational technical school.

Aug. 26 - 31
38 Years Ago

Under the proposal the institute and the city would work together over a five-year period to plan the curriculum with the $500,000 grant paying the salaries of research scientists, travel, educational consultants, materials and services.

Quincy would retain final control of the curriculum, School Supt. Robert E. Pruitt assured the School Committee.

CLAM POLLUTION

Health Commissioner Dr. Richard M. Ash directed Shellfish Constable Carmelo Morreale to inspect the clam-digging areas on the Quincy shore line daily and prepare weekly reports on conditions for the Health Department.

"Good clams are nutritious, savory and digestible and are an important addition to the diet," said Dr. Ash. "But man has made shellfish a danger to himself by polluting the water in which shellfish live."

QUINCY-ISMIS

Rep. Joseph E. Brett urged the city to deal with "dangerous conditions" at the Atlantic, Norfolk Downs and Wollaston railroad stations which have fallen into disrepair since their abandonment by the New Haven Railroad. . . Eugene L. Ronayne of Hyde Park was appointed an elementary school teacher by the School Committee. . . Work began on reconstruction of the dome and belfry of the First Parish Church despite the fact that the fund-raising campaign was still $20,000 short of its $50,000 goal. . . Samuel Wakeman, 56, general manager of the Fore River shipyard for Bethlehem Steel Co. from 1952 until its sale to General Dynamics eight months ago, announced his retirement. . . Funeral services were held for Perley E. Barbour, mayor of Quincy in 1925-26, who died at his home, 28 Glendale Rd., at the age of 84. . . A 1962 Ford Falcon was $1,895 at Granite Dodge, 338 Washington St. . . Anthony Colucci of 21 Hilltop St., West Quincy, supervisor of apprentice training at the Fore River shipyard for 28 years, was named resident vocational advisor at the Massachusetts Trades School in Boston. . . Thomas Hurlibus of Shennen St., Houghs Neck, was installed for a second term as commander of the Houghs Neck Legion Post. . . Quincy Point Congregational Church Homes, Inc. received the 100th application for its Senior Citizens Housing Center to be built at 1000 Southern Artery with a $2.5 million government loan. . . Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa sent a letter of congratulations to Mrs. Minnie Anzides of 2 Glenwood Way, Quincy Point, for growing a bean stalk more than 15 feet tall. . . Peter C. Melvin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Melvin of 24 Huckins Ave., Squantum, received a degree in economics from Boston University. . . The Rev. Leslie Ostberg of 305 Whitwell St. resigned as pastor of Conventry Congregational Church to become chaplain at North Park College in Chicago. . . The World Of Henry Orient starring Peter Sellers, Paula Prentiss and Angela Lansbury, was playing at the Wollaston Theater. . . The businessman's lunch was 99 cents at the Villa Rosa in Lakin Square. . . Percy N. Lane, a reporter for The Patriot Ledger for 44 years, was awarded the Advocate Carnation by the Jewish Advocate on his 68th birthday. . . Joan M. Labazoski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Labazoski of 77 East Elm Ave., Wollaston, was on home leave prior to leaving for French West Africa to teach English with the Peace Corps.

Paul Harold Was A True Statesman

I am writing to thank The Quincy Sun for its coverage and tribute to Senator Paul Harold and his career.

On a personal note, when I first was elected to the State Senate, Senator Paul Harold served as a mentor to me. Even though we belonged to different political parties, Paul Harold was always there for me as someone new to the State House. He offered guidance and advice, both solicited and often unsolicited!

From my observations Paul Harold always put the people of his district first, never letting partisan politics or demands from the legislative leadership get in the way of that commitment.

These are traits rarely seen in most of today's legislators.

Senator Harold was a true statesman!

Rita's Pizza with Pizzazz

It was a double birthday Sunday brunch held in Scituate at our daughter Rita and son-in-law Jonathan's house. Rita made a ton of food including various types of quiches, irritatas, as well as bacon, sausages, and ham.

She also baked a delicious coffee cake. My contribution was calzones filled with scrambled eggs and sausage. There were also other foods brought in by family members including some fresh prosciutto and crusty Italian bread.

Later on in the day Rita made a couple of pizzas, one is today's recipe that is her invention and very unique as there is no tomato sauce. Imagine an Italian pizza without that! But it is as delicious as it is different.

Rita makes her own dough, but you can use dough purchased in any supermarket to make things easier.

Rita's Chicken, Broccoli Pizza
1 pound dough (if homemade enough for one pizza)

1/2 cup broccoli florets (uncooked) (spinach can also be used)

1 small chicken breast (grilled and cut in small pieces) Rita was lucky, she used leftovers!

muenster cheese and shredded mozzarella (any favorite can be used)

2 tablespoons butter

2 tablespoons flour

1 cup half and half

2 cloves garlic

1/2 cup grated parmesan cheese

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Sauté the butter and garlic, add the flour and half and half stirring until smooth. (remove garlic at this point) As this thickens, take it off the heat and add the parmesan.

Place the dough on a pizza pan. Add the cream sauce first. Then add the broccoli and chicken. On top of that add the two cheeses or if you prefer just the mozzarella. Bake in the preheated oven. It is the most delicate, delicious pizza ever!

Atlantic Studios Dancers Perform At Chinatown Festival

Quincy residents Maureen Aiello, Sine' Callanan, Nicole Chan and Laura Trubiano of Canton, all high school students, performed extensive dances at the recent Chinatown Festival in downtown Boston.

The dancers are all advanced students having studied for more than 10 years at Atlantic Studios of Dance Education located in North Quincy and East Milton. In addition, Miss Aiello, Miss Callanan and Miss Chan have successfully auditioned for and performed in Jose Mateo's Ballet Theatre of Boston Nutcracker for several seasons.

The festival gave the students an opportunity to demonstrate their own style and choreography while gaining confidence and poise.

Atlantic Studios of Dance, entering its 22nd year, is accepting registrations for the 2002-03 season, which begins the third week of September.

For registration information, call 617-698-2881. Classes are available for ballet, tap, jazz and creative combination classes.

Director/teacher Julie Moffatt has been an active member of the Dance Teachers' Club of Boston for 24 years and is currently serving her sixth term as membership examining chairperson for the organization, where she has served in several other capacities.

In addition, she is an active member of Dance Masters of America. Both clubs require extensive examination for membership and offer student workshop sessions during the academic year.

Moffatt graduated from Wheelock College in 1974 with a degree in early childhood education/music/theatre.

David Riley Cycling For Lung Association

David Riley of Quincy will join other bicycling enthusiasts from throughout the area and pedal from Plymouth to Provincetown Sept. 20-22 to raise awareness and funds for the American Lung Association.

This will be Riley's fourth year participation in the trek. Riley, a competitive swimmer, will ride as a tribute to his mother Otilie E. Riley who died in 1995 of smoking-related emphysema. "I love doing the Trek every year. It's not all that difficult. You just have to pace yourself," Riley said.

Individuals from local towns are putting their time and energy into the fight against lung disease. Many suffer from lung disease or know someone who does.

"What is unique and special about this event is that these people come together for a weekend, united in making a difference in the fight against lung disease," said Martha Waldron, executive director of the American Lung Association.

Over the three day/160-mile trek, cyclists will tour the Cape Cod Canal, the Falmouth Shining Sea Bike Trail, the Old King's Highway, and the Cape Cod National Seashore. Each cyclist pays a $50 registration fee and raises a minimum of $500 in pledges.

A two-day Saturday to Sunday option is also available. Trekkers who participate at this level must raise a minimum of $400 in pledges.

Money raised through trekker pledges and donations will qualify cyclists to win incentive prizes. Prizes include retail gift certificates, a four-day stay on Cape Cod and more.

Sunflower Contest Ends Friday

The city's eighth annual "Grow Together" contest, a summer-long sunflower growing competition, will conclude at the end of the month, Friday, Aug. 30.

Participating families are invited to call the Beechwood Community Life Center on that day and report the heights of their sunflowers. Beechwood sponsors the contest along with Almquist Flowerland and The Quincy Sun.

The winning family will be awarded a "Sunflower Basket" of gifts and be pictured in The Sun.

Quincy families registered for the contest in May and packets were distributed with encouragement to grow the tallest sunflower. Two or more families were encouraged to "grow together."

Succeeds Paul Harold

William O'Donnell Named County Register of Deeds

County Commissioner William P. O'Donnell has been appointed County Register of Deeds, succeeding the late Paul Harold. Harold died Aug. 12.

O'Donnell was selected by a unanimous vote of the Norfolk County Board of Commissioners.

The Registry of Deeds keeps property records such as deeds and mortgages and is a revenue producing agency for both the county and the state.

O'Donnell commenting on his appointment said, "Today is bittersweet. While honored to be selected as the next Norfolk county Register of Deeds, the circumstances gives one pause. Paul Harold epitomized the best in public service: honesty, integrity, decency and accountability. It will be difficult, if not impossible, to fill Paul's shoes; but with the support to the men and women at the Registry, I pledge to give the citizens of Norfolk County a professional, efficient, financially-sound and customer service-oriented Registry of Deeds."

"I hope to expand upon programs begun by Paul such as the investment in computer technology to allow for better offsite access to the Registry's indices and the possibility of satellite operations. We will strive to find ways to better serve the citizens of Norfolk County. The work begun by Paul Harold will continue during my tenure."

O'Donnell, a graduate of Xaverian Brothers High School in Westwood, received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Georgetown University and is a Juris Doctorate from Boston College Law School. He served as an assistant district attorney under Dist. Atty. now Congressman William Delahunt. For the past 10 years, O'Donnell served as a member of the Norfolk County Board of Commissioners, overseeing a $25 million budget and staff of over 800 employees. In addition, O'Donnell is a practicing attorney and volunteers his time to the youth of Norwood coaching both Babe Ruth baseball and Norwood Nuggets youth hockey.

O'Donnell is married to Susan J. (Thornton) O'Donnell. They are the parents of three children: William, 11; Jennifer, 7; and James, 5.

To Create Affordable Housing Opportunities For Low, Moderate-Income Residents Quincy Community Action Receives $25,000 Grant From Fleet Foundation

In the midst of a growing housing crisis, Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP) turned to the FleetBoston Financial Foundation to support its efforts to create affordable housing opportunities for low- and moderate-income residents.

The Fleet Foundation responded with a $20,000 grant to QCAP for its Housing Counseling Program.

"This award offers us a great opportunity to build on our successes in the coming year," said Trish Appert, QCAP's housing director. "Through this partnership, we will continue our focus of helping people become or remain homeowners, preserving tenancies, finding new housing solutions for homeless families and providing an array of other housing counseling services." Paul Anghinetti, FleetBoston Area Manager of Small Business in Southeastern Massachusetts, said, "We are pleased to support the outstanding work of Quincy Community Action Programs and view community service as an important part of our commitment to this market."

A GREAT COMPANY TO DO BUSINESS WITH

Real Estate in the New Era

by Vin Moscardelli
Owner/Broker

IDENTIFYING YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD

It is repeatedly said that the three most important factors in purchasing a home are "location, location, location." Thus, buyers are encouraged to first pinpoint the most suitable neighborhood, then limit their searches to that area. Many times, prospective buyers make the mistake of allowing themselves to be shown a home "that is just perfect" for them in an undesirable neighborhood. Of course, this exercise in futility sets them up for disappointment, as they feel cheated at having fallen in love with a home that they know they cannot have. A more disciplined, and ultimately satisfying, approach involves identifying a viable home-search plan and sticking to it. If a neighborhood is unacceptable, so is any plan to visit it.

As a homebuyer, it's important to narrow your search by considering certain criteria such as location. When CENTRAL REAL ESTATE locates a home for a prospective buyer, we consider the client's neighborhood preferences and lifestyle needs. We also provide information on local schools, houses of worship, and community events. For personal attention and a stress-free real estate experience, call us at (617) 328-1312, or visit us at 128 McGrath Highway.

HINT: The age of a home should be less of a concern than its condition.

QCAP Receives $25,000 Grant From Fleet Foundation

(Cont'd From Page 10)

"We are thrilled that FleetBoston recognizes the urgency of the affordable housing crisis and is committed to support local efforts to maintain affordable options for all residents," said QCAP Executive Director Beth Ann Strollo.

Strollo said affordable housing in Massachusetts is losing ground.

"QCAP and other housing advocates must make sure this issue remains in the forefront of the public's awareness," she said. "Support from the private sector is key to both sustaining our affordable housing initiatives, and advocating for more affordable housing funding. We are delighted that FleetBoston will be a partner in our efforts to retain Quincy and surrounding communities as affordable places for people to live and raise families."

This year marks the QCAP housing program's 18th year as a housing counseling agency and 12th year of providing comprehensive housing-related services in Quincy and Norfolk County.

Strollo said: "QCAP's focus is to sustain and improve the housing situations of low-income households through housing search and counseling, landlord training, eviction and homelessness prevention, mediation, mortgage default and foreclosure counseling, credit and budget counseling, access to down payment, lead abatement and home improvement loan programs, HomeEquity Conversion Mortgage counseling, homeownership education, affordable housing development and property management. No other agency in this area provides such a broad array of housing assistance."

In addition, the FleetBoston award will boost QCAP's ability to develop more programming, such as the First-Time Homebuyer workshops for Cantonese speakers, aimed at meeting the changing needs in Quincy and surrounding communities.

"QCAP is strongly committed to supporting diversity in the community," Strollo said. "The 2000 Census data revealed what we already knew: the Asian community is a growing, vibrant and active part of our community. In response, QCAP again identified diversity as a priority in our three-year strategic plan. We will be looking to develop new partnerships in the community, as well as new services in housing and other areas that support Quincy's diverse population."

For more information about the upcoming First-Time Homebuyer workshop beginning Sept. 21, to register for a workshop, or learn more about QCAP's Housing Program, call 617-479-8181 or visit www.qcap.org.

Fences Enhance Property

(NAPS) -- If you're on the fence about whether to add a fence to your property, consider the following:

- Building a fence can add value and beauty to your home.

- Fences serve as an effective barrier for keeping out wildlife that might otherwise graze on landscaping; and

- Pets and children are safely and effectively contained with fences.

The purpose of the fence often helps homeowners make the appropriate material choice. Popular "fencescaping" choices are color-coated chain-link, wood and vinyl picket, privacy and post and rail; and ornamental aluminum and steel.

Delahunt To Seek Freedom For Saudi-Held Americans

Bill Delahunt left Tuesday with a congressional delegation for Saudi Arabia to investigate several cases of America citizens held there against their will and the help clarify US-Saudi relations in the war against terrorism.

Delahunt, a member of the House International Relations Committee, has taken a strong interest in the plight of several American women and children who reportedly have been prevented from leaving the Middle Eastern kingdom.

Saudi law prevents women, even those with American citizenship, from leaving the Moslem country without the permission of a close male relative, such as a husband or a father.

One of the cases is that of the Roush daughters, who were abducted from their American mother by their Saudi father and taken to Arabia. Now adults, the women cannot leave because they were "sold" into an arranged marriage by their father.

Another case is that of Amjad Radwan, whose mother discovered Amjad's father was already married and attempted to take the girl and her brother Rasheed home to the United States.

The delegation is seeking a meeting with Saudi Crown Prince Abdullah bin Abdulaziz and a variety of Saudi business and government leaders to press for the release of these Americans.

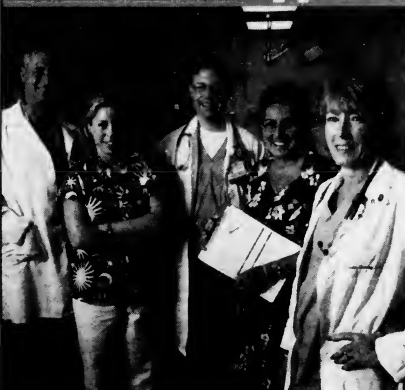

They will also use the meetings to explore strains on relations between the US and Saudi Arabia in the aftermath of the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks on America and the possibility of a preemptive strike on Iraq.

The Care You Want. Close to Home.

And Not Just On Weekends.

You never know when you or your family may need to visit the hospital emergency department. But you can take comfort in knowing that Milton Hospital is ready to provide the emergency and urgent care you need, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

Extra Coverage - Extra Care

In addition to providing extra coverage on weekends, our emergency department now has a physician's assistant on duty every day during our busiest period (from 2 to 10 p.m.). This enables us to direct emergency cases to the department physician, while the physician assistant treats less critical conditions. The results are shorter waits and more personal attention for our patients. We take the time to answer your questions and address your concerns. It's the kind of personal care that has earned us high marks in recent independent patient satisfaction surveys.

Here When You Need Us

More than 18,000 people are treated in Milton Hospital's emergency department each year, at all hours of the day and night. We hope you don't have to visit us, but isn't it good to know that we'll be here if you do?

Tips On Back-To-School Playground Safety

Ask your children what their favorite time in school is and many will answer "recess." And with good reason. That's the time they can run, jump, play and have some physical fun. However, it's also the time that injuries can — and do — occur.

"Falls onto hard surfaces are the primary factor in playground injuries," said Dr. Robert Krotenberg, medical director, Kessler Institute for Rehabilitation. "Of course, scrapes and bruises are most common, but fractured limbs and mild to serious head injuries happen frequently."

According to the National

Program for Playground Safety, more than 200,000 school-age children receive emergency department care each year for injuries that occur on playground equipment.

Dr. Thomas Galski, director of psychology and neuropsychology services at Kessler, notes that brain surgery is one of the top 10 diagnoses in emergency rooms for playground-related injuries, accounting for nearly 20 percent of all injuries on swings, slides, seesaws and monkey bars.

To prevent your children from being injured, help them develop smart playground habits, including:

- Wait until the swing stops before getting off. Do not jump off swings or any other piece of equipment.
- Avoid walking directly in front of, or close behind, moving swings.
- When playing on a slide, always go feet first, not head first. Wait until the slide is clear before going down to avoid collisions.

- Take turns. Crowding onto equipment often results in injuries.

- Keep a safe distance from others using equipment. Watch for moving arms and legs.

- Be sure there is proper supervision on the playground.

Keep in mind that a soft, protective surface under and around playground equipment can also help prevent injury. The Brain Injury Association recommends sand or wood chips, as these materials help absorb impact.

"It is important for children to enjoy these classroom breaks in an environment that is as safe as possible," Krotenberg said. "We then need to encourage them to play by these rules."

BACK-TO-SCHOOL

Back-To-School Safety Rules

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

This time of year is always hectic but it is important that parents take a few minutes to talk with their children about "Back To School Safety."

The following suggestions may help keep your child from becoming the victim of a crime:

- Talk with your children about the route they take to school. It is important that they do not take shortcuts through wooded areas, alleyways or other secluded areas. It is a good idea for parents to walk to the school route with their children. This will give parents a good opportunity to point out potential areas of danger as well as safe areas where children may find help.

- Stranger Danger is a very important topic. Parents should talk with their children about the following:

A) Who is a stranger? Anyone that you and your parents do not know well.

B) What does a stranger look like? Many children, when asked this question, reply that "a stranger is ugly and scary looking and wears dark clothes and maybe a mask." The correct answer is: A stranger looks just like everyone else. They can be young or old, they can be men or women or teenagers. Although most strangers will not hurt you, some might. It is important to treat all strangers alike.

C) What do you do if a stranger approaches you?

Tell your child to run away and tell someone. They should tell a teacher, police officer or parent.

D) Some of the situations that a child might find herself/himself in are as follows:

1. A stranger tells you that he/she has lost their pet and would like you to help find that pet. The child should run away and tell someone. Never go with a stranger.

2. Never take rides from a stranger. A stranger may offer you a ride or stop to ask a question. He/she may even call you by name. That is a trick. No matter what the stranger says, never go near a stranger or his/her car. Run away and tell someone.

3. Always go straight home after school. Always go home the same way.

4. Always get help if there's trouble. If you are grabbed or touched by a stranger, "Run and scream and tell someone, your parents, teacher or a police officer." If you see a stranger grabbing a friend, remember as much as you can about what the stranger looks like. If he/she is in a car, try to write down, or remember, the license plate number and tell someone immediately.

5. Never take gifts from strangers. A stranger may offer you a gift, candy or games. Never take anything from a stranger.

6. Always let your parents know where you are. When playing away from home, let mom or dad know where you are. Never play in deserted areas and always play in a group.

When discussing this with your children, make a game out of it. Such as, "What would you do if a stranger asked you to help him/her find their lost dog? Discussing stranger danger with your children in this manner makes it fun and less threatening.

If parents discuss these topics with their children, they may prevent them from becoming the victim of a stranger.

8 Ways To Help Kids Start School Year Off Right

If your child more apprehensive than excited about the school year beginning?

Phillip Mountrose, veteran educator and author of the innovative "Getting Thru to Kids" and "Getting Thru to Your Emotions" with EFT communication series, offers advice on how to help your child have a positive attitude about school.

Consider the following:

- Concentrate on what your child likes about school. Likes can include recess, P.E. and other kids. Find ways to value whatever your child likes. Build on the positives.
- Listen carefully to what your child says about school. Even if he or she views school negatively, you can be supportive by using your listening skills. Empathize and validate what your child says, even if you disagree. This promotes understanding.
- Don't try to fix it. By handling the problem for your child, you keep him or her from learning how to handle it. Be a resource, and, at times a guide, not a savior.

- Help your child develop positive beliefs about school. Instead of the limiting belief that "school is hard or boring," suggest the positive belief, "I can improve, get help, or make it interesting."

- Identify resources your child can use. To encourage your child's "I can get help" belief, explore people, books, materials, computers that will assist learning.

- Share your experiences and outlook on school. Offer examples of your successes and failures in school. Be candid without going into the lecturing mode. Relate your experience to your child's, being sensitive to your child's strengths and weaknesses.

- Help your child schedule time for activities. Buy an organizer notebook for school assignments. Set a homework and bedtime schedule to allow time for work and play.

- Find ways to appreciate your child, regardless of school performance. School competence is only one aspect of life. And as you see your whole child, more of his or her competence can be valued, perhaps in unrecognized and subtle ways.

Labor Council Endorses Tobin For Probate Register

The Norfolk County Central Labor Council AFL-CIO, which claims 40,000 members in Norfolk County, has endorsed Mark Tobin for register of probate for Norfolk County.

"For the first time in 24 years the people of Norfolk County will have the opportunity to elect a register of probate and the membership of the Norfolk County Labor Council supports Mark Tobin," said the council.

The labor council's endorsement recognized Tobin's 18 years and his "commitment to the issues important to working men and women of Norfolk County."

Pre-Election Rally For Tom Koch Sept. 5

A pre-election campaign rally for Tom Koch, Democratic candidate for Norfolk County treasurer and Quincy resident, will be held Thursday, Sept. 5.

The event will be held in the Tirrell Room at the Quincy Lodge of Elks, 254 Quarry St., from 7 to 11 p.m.

Donations are $20 per person and $30 per couple.

Romney-Healey To Hold Rally Sept. 6

Mitt Romney and Kerry Healey, Republicans running in tandem for governor and lieutenant governor respectively, will be in Quincy at an old-time political rally Friday, Sept. 6, from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Hall, 120 Quarry St. Suggested donation is $20.

"This is a great chance for people to meet Mitt and Kerry and learn where they stand on the issues before the September primary and the November 5 general election," said City Councilor Frank McCauley, Quincy's leading Republican and a Romney supporter.

Vinny Scarnici Finance Director For Rappaport Committee

Vinny Scarnici of Quincy has been named finance director for the James Rappaport Committee headquartered at 199 Wells Ave. in Newton.

Scarnici has been working on Rappaport's Republican campaign for Massachusetts lieutenant governor since last October. He coordinates field events, parades and fundraising activities.

Scarnici assisted Rappaport at the Massachusetts Republican Convention held in Lowell in April where Rappaport won the endorsement of the Massachusetts Republican Party.

Scarnici is well-known on the South Shore in the automobile industry for more than 30 years and for running local campaigns in Quincy for Christine Cedrone, whom he married last fall. He currently has a successful real estate practice with Century 21 Abigail Adams in North Quincy.

Scarnici has experience on the local political level with grass roots campaigning and fundraising. Rappaport said. When Rappaport was chairman of the Massachusetts Republican Party, Scarnici invited him to be the guest speaker at Cedrone's first kick-off fundraiser in 1993 when she was a candidate for the Quincy School Committee. Rappaport accepted the invitation and said he was impressed with the enthusiasm from the campaign and Cedrone.

Cedrone lost the election after a 40-hour recount. The following her, she and Scarnici came back and Cedrone topped the ballot to win a seat on the Quincy School Committee. She was re-elected to a four-year term in 1999, topping the ballot again.

Scarnici also assisted another successful candidate's campaign, Tony Scalse for the Sandwich School Committee. He topped the ballot over two incumbents.

Scarnici has also volunteered on two other well-known campaigns in Quincy. He assisted Francis McCauley in his last two elections for councillor at large by putting up signs and distributing flyers throughout the city. He also assisted Timothy Cahill in his campaign for Norfolk County treasurer where he was the field coordinator for the Town of Weymouth.

In 1992, Scarnici attended classes on running political campaigns. He has worked with Rappaport over the last 10 years on Republican-party related events such as security, fundraising and event facilitating.

"I really got to know Jim over the last 10 years," Scarnici said. "He is an intelligent, capable, honest and enthusiastic gentleman. He will take the lieutenant governor's position serious and assist in repairing the spending and taxing problems we face in Massachusetts."

Scarnici said it is an honor and privilege for him to be working with Rappaport and feels confident they will be successful as they head into the September primary.

Scarnici can be reached at The Rappaport Committee by calling 617-305-6418 or his mobile phone at 617-461-6052.

Still No Road Luck For Granite Against Shamrocks

By CHRIS POISSON

Quincy Granite captain David Harris hates the trip back from Marlboro.

And who can blame him.

In his nine years in the Eastern Football League, he has never been on a team that has beaten the Shamrocks in Marlboro, making that long drive late at night after a physically draining game seem like the green mile.

Must have been another long ride last Friday night after Marlboro whipped the Granite, 44-15, right?

"This time it wasn't too bad because we knew we beat ourselves," said Harris, a defensive tackle. "The fact remains you have to play a mistake-free game against Marlboro and we made all kinds of mistakes."

"We got pounded," said head coach Ken McPhee. "We made a lot of mistakes. It was one of those stinker games that you file away."

Between the fumbles and interceptions, the Granite stood no chance against a revamped Marlboro team, which has brought many former players out of retirement since the first meeting — a 27-22 Granite win July 20 in Quincy.

None more important than veteran quarterback Dave Palazzi, who torched Quincy for over 300 yards and four touchdowns in just three quarters of play.

"Defensively, we were unable to adjust to their passing game," McPhee said. "Their quarterback, Palazzi, was back and he was outstanding."

Quincy (4-2) insists it has put the game behind them and is now focused on Friday's match (8 p.m.) against the undefeated Charlestown Townies (6-0) at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Coming off a 16-7 win over Rhode Island (2-4), the Townies are the only team left in the EFL without a loss. Yet they still have to prove themselves as they have beaten up on the likes of Middlesex (0-7), Bay State (0-6), Randolph (1-5) and Roxbury (4-3) twice.

Quincy knocked off Charlestown, 29-12, last September in its only meeting of the season.

"Friday night will be our test after this terrible loss to Marlboro," Harris said. "Now we have to take it out on Charlestown. They're coming in on a high, undefeated, and have nothing to lose."

"We'll be fine," McPhee said. "We have a good bunch of guys. The Marlboro game was just one of those games that happens."

In the opening quarter, Marlboro struck first with Palazzi's 15-yard TD pass, but it botched the extra-point attempt and Quincy picked up the loose ball and returned it for two points. On the ensuing drive, quarterback Liam Higgins hit wideout Jeff Lang for a 54-yard TD as Quincy took an early lead.

However, Palazzi tossed a 20-yard TD pass near the end of the quarter and then a 72-yard strike in the second. The Shamrocks' defense added to the offense when it picked off a pass and returned it for a score.

In the second half, Quincy's Derrick Wright returned the opening kickoff 80 yards for a touchdown. But that was as close as the Granite would come to catching the Shamrocks.

"Defensively, we didn't do as much as we should have," Harris said. "We just got beat and we have to take it. We've beaten them at home and they've beaten us at their place and hopefully there will be a tie-breaker at the end of the season."

Deadline Today To Enter Recreation Tennis Tournament

The deadline for entry forms for the Quincy Recreation Department's 32nd annual City Tennis Tournament is today (Thursday).

They can be picked up at the Quincy Municipal Credit Union, the Recreation Department office, City Hall, The Quincy Sun and at various tennis courts throughout the city.

The tourney will start Thursday, Sept. 5. The Quincy Municipal Credit Union has once again agreed to serve as co-sponsor.

"This is the 32nd consecutive year we have supervised this event and are grateful to the Credit Union for its seventh year as a co-sponsor," said Recreation Director Barry Welch. "This is a wonderful activity for Quincy residents of all ages to take part in a tournament that has no equal in tradition, size and quality of play."

Cost is $11 for adults and $8 for youth. There are T-shirts for all participants. Matches are played nights and weekends at the Russell Park Tennis Courts on the grounds of the Center for Technical Education.

The tournament, believed to be one of the largest municipal tourneys in New England, has events for men, women, boys and girls, as well as mixed doubles. The director is John Franceschini, who has guided the tourney for over 20 years.

Events scheduled are: men's singles, women's singles, men's 50 and over, men's 35 and over, women's 35 and over, men's doubles, women's doubles, boys' 16 and under, girls' 16 and under, and mixed doubles.

There is also a special event, men's B, which is open to all participants in men's singles who are defeated in the first round. And there is a division for men or women who are employees of the city.

For more information call the Recreation Department at 617-376-1394.

TORQUE AND HORSEPOWER

Horsepower, a measure of the work that an engine can do, is a term coined by a Scottish inventor who wanted to know how many horses his invention, the steam engine, would replace. He found that a robust horse could lift a 150-pound weight 220 feet in the air (using a pulley) in 60 seconds. Thus, horsepower is the force needed to move a specific amount of weight a specific distance in a specific amount of time. Torque, on the other hand, is a measure of force that produces rotation around an axis. Torque, then, is the force that propels it down the road, while horsepower is the force that determines how fast the force (torque) makes it happen.

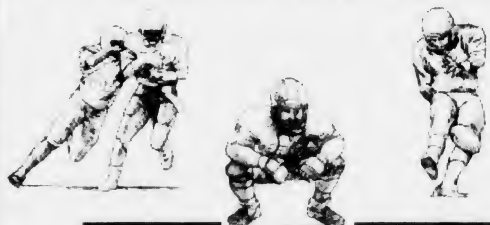

No matter what the horsepower you can count on us for most all types of service for your car, van, or light truck, from replacing your wiper blades to major repairs. Our customers continue to tell us they find our ASE Certified professional service staff to be superior. We also use the AllData CD-ROM based systems for the very latest in maintenance and service bulletins for all makes of cars. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO is proud of that, and we want you to know we will continue to work toward improving our record. We are located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: By knowing how much torque an engine produces, and at what rpm the engine is generating the torque, you can determine the engine's horsepower.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Cataracts: You Need Not Suffer From The Most Common Cause Of Blindness

If you're an American over the age of 40, you may be one of the more than 15 percent of your age group suffering from cataracts or a clouding of the lens of the eye.

If you're between the ages of 75 and 84, the National Center for Health Statistics of the National Institutes of Health (NIH) says 58 percent of your age group suffers from this degenerative form of eye disease, which is the leading cause of functional or legal blindness today.

"The condition is very common throughout the world," says Joseph H. Bowlds, MD., an ophthalmologist and member of the Massachusetts Medical Society. "However, cataracts are very treatable and cataract surgery is extremely successful."

Causes And Symptoms

Cataracts are formed when protein in the lens of the eye clumps together, distorting the light that passes through the lens to the retina at the back of the eye. In its early stages, the cataract may affect only a small portion of the lens and not interfere greatly with vision.

However, as the cataract grows, more and more light is blocked and vision impairment becomes greater. Although cataracts do not spread from one eye to the other, it is common for people to develop them in both eyes.

The exact cause of cataracts is unknown, but the NIH says research is pointing to smoking, diabetes and excessive exposure to sunlight as possible causes. Symptoms of cataracts include the following:

- Cloudy or blurry vision.
- Problems with light, such as glare from headlights of oncoming cars or a halo effect around lights.
- Poor night vision.
- Fading of colors that once seemed bright and sharp.
- Double or multiple vision.
- The need to frequently change eyeglass or contact lens prescriptions as the developing cataract limits more light from reaching the retina.

One or more of these symptoms may be signs of other eye problems. If you are experiencing any of them, it's best to consult your ophthalmologist.

Detection And Correction

Cataracts can usually be detected during a regular eye exam. The exam consists of three parts including an acuity or eye chart test to measure how well you see, pupil dilation for close examination of the lens and retina, and measurement of fluid pressure inside the eye.

A change in eyeglass prescription, use of stronger light sources or use of a magnifying glass may be all that is needed to correct vision during the early stages of cataract development.

If these steps are not sufficient, the only truly effective treatment is surgery to replace the clouded lens with a clear lens. Generally, surgery is only recommended when the vision loss caused by the cataract interferes with your daily life.

The most common surgical procedure performed today for removal of the clouded lens is small incision surgery. An ultrasound device is placed into an incision made on the side of the cornea to break up the cloudy center of the lens, which is then removed by suction.

Usually the surgeon inserts a clear, artificial intraocular lens (IOL), which focuses light on the retina and clears the vision. It becomes a permanent part of the eye and requires no special care.

The NIH says that about 90 percent of cataract surgery patients realize improved eyesight within days of the procedure. There may be a period of adjustment required for the eye to focus properly and for the patient to become used to brighter light and colors. The length of this period varies from patient to patient.

"After surgery most patients comment that the procedure was so simple that they regret having waited so long before having it done," says Bowlds.

For more information about cataracts and their treatment, visit the National Eye Institute Web site (www.nei.nih.gov) or www.medicom.com.

Labor Day Advice For A Healthier Workplace

There are some very simple, yet important steps that all workers can take to help stay healthy and injury-free while on the job.

"The first thing people can do is bring a 'healthy self' into the workplace," says Bill Patterson, M.D., M.P.H., a board-certified specialist in both internal and occupational medicine and chair of the Environmental and Occupational Medicine Committee of the Massachusetts Medical Society. "People who are in good physical and mental shape are less likely to be injured on the job."

Take A Break

Dr. Patterson recommends that workers take a number of "micro" breaks of as little as one minute to as long as 10 minutes to loosen tight muscles and get refreshed. He says that using these breaks to do simple stretching exercises can relieve stress that builds up at work, and help avoid injuries caused by repetitive motion.

Here are three quick exercises that can be done while sitting or standing at your work station that will loosen your back, neck and torso muscles and help relieve tension.

- Sit and Reach: Move your chair back from your desk, interlock your fingers, turn your palms outward and extend your arms as far from your body as possible. Keeping your back and arms straight, rotate your shoulders to the right, return to center, rotate to the left, and repeat. This helps relieve tension in the middle of the back that comes from sitting for prolonged periods.
- Lower Back Fold: While sitting, extend your arms in front of you and lift them over your head slowly as you inhale deeply. Lower your arms, head and shoulders as you exhale and curl your torso, allowing your arms to dangle toward the floor.

• Shoulder Roll: Lift your shoulders as high as you can. Bring them forward in a complete circle, moving down then back, and return to the starting position. Repeat three to five times.

Other easy exercises include deep breathing, shaking your arms to loosen tight muscles and stretching.

There is another important factor in maintaining a healthy work environment, says Dr. Patterson.

"People need to get involved in making the workplace safer and healthier," he says. "Workers should team with their employers in devising and implementing ways to improve their health and the environment in which they work."

Wellness Programs

The American College of Occupational and Environmental Medicine (ACOEM) has developed a checklist for both employers and employees to help create a healthy workplace.

For the employer, these include the following:

- Promote wellness and preventive activities in the workplace.
- Provide ready access to medical treatment.
- Develop a systematic process to reduce workplace hazards.
- Provide educational programs to address health and wellness concerns.
- ACOEM says that workers need to participate as well by adhering to the following:
 - Maintaining a healthy lifestyle through regular exercise and a balanced diet.
 - Participating in workplace medical assessments, health promotions and medical screening programs.
 - Awaiting themselves of personal and workplace vaccination programs.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

READING BETWEEN THE LINES

There is a reason that dentists mention "flossing" in the same breath with "brushing," which is that flossing cleans those areas of the teeth that brushing cannot reach. The fact is that if you do not floss, you are missing 30% of tooth surfaces in your mouth. What is more, these surfaces between teeth are among the most vulnerable to decay because they are places where food often becomes trapped. Equally important, flossing helps prevent gum disease by ridding the teeth of bacteria-laden plaque. While flossing may seem like a chore to the uninitiated, it really only takes two to three minutes to perform. If flossing between each meal is not a possibility, floss before retiring for bed.

No time to floss? You might want to re-examine your priorities. A growing body of research suggests that good oral health, including brushing and flossing daily, not only cuts down on tooth decay but may prevent serious health problems, including heart disease, osteoporosis, stroke, diabetes. We utilize all available resources and procedures to provide dental health care our patients deserve and expect. When was the last time you had a comprehensive dental examination? We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we're currently accepting new patients. Please call (617) 479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're here to help. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Our web address is www.quincydentist.com.

Grandpa loved gardening, baseball, and playing the harmonica.

Your memories are precious. That's why, at Keohane Funeral Service, we take the time to find out what made your loved one special.

Whether it's gathering some of the flowers he so tenderly cultivated or finding a musician to play "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" on the harmonica, you can count on us to help you plan a service that will be just as unique as the person you love.

It involves equal consideration for all people alike, regardless of status or importance... or area or location. And this certainly holds true on streets and highways. Quite often, good manners are shelved and ignored in the driving habits of people who otherwise are fairly well-mannered... You see this in drivers squealing cars past slower motorists... You see this in the blasting of horns the second the light turns green... You see it in gestures and words of retaliation when bad manners of one induces bad manners in another. Bad manners probably cause as many accidents in driving as any other cause.

On holiday week-ends, especially when traffic is heavy, good driving manners are really needed... Giving the other fellow a break by means of common courtesy can definitely reduce traffic accidents which cause so much human misery -- and property damage. Courtesy on the road has NEVER -- nor will ever degrade a driver...

How courteous a driver are you?...

Welch Education Institute To Present End-Of-Life Seminars

The Education Institute of Welch Healthcare and Retirement Group will offer seminars on Bereavement and End-of-Life Care beginning Thursday, Sept. 12 from 10 to 11:15 a.m. at Hancock Park Rehabilitation & Nursing Center, 164 Parkway in Quincy.

The seminar is broken up into two five-week intensive programs: the first focusing on popular bereavement models in order to gain better understanding of the process of grief; and the second focusing on issues of coping with life-threatening and terminal illnesses. (Seminar on Bereavement and Loss is a prerequisite to the seminar on End-of-Life Care).

Seminars are designed for nurses, social workers, healthcare administrators, hospice workers (professional and volunteer), nursing home recreation staff, physical/occupational therapists, clergy, parish visitors, and family caregivers. CEUs are also available to healthcare professionals attending the seminars.

Thomas A. Welch, M.Ed., LCSW, director of the Education Institute, is the seminar instructor. For the past 30 years Welch has focused on hospice and end-of-life care. He founded and is past director of Omega Hospice and Bereavement Program of Metro-West Catholic Charities, and has lectured extensively and made radio and TV appearances. His work was featured in a CBS documentary entitled A Time to Die.

To inquire or enroll, contact the Education Office at 781-337-4542.

For over 50 years, family-owned Welch Healthcare and Retirement Group has provided senior and rehabilitative healthcare services on the South Shore.

FOUR MURALS PAINTED in the windows of O'Brien's Bakery, Beale St., Wollaston, commemorate the first anniversary of the terrorists' attacks Sept. 11. Owners Muriel and Brian Jackle (center and right) had artist Steve MacDonald show

First Time In 32 Years

Teachers Start Year With New Contract

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor William Phelan was ecstatic.

"For the first time in 32 years, we will be starting a school contract year with a contract," he said. "That's a positive sign."

Actually, it was like pulling teeth.

It was 9 p.m. Monday night, after 12 hours of intense bargaining, negotiating teams for the city and the teachers' union finally reached tentative agreement on four years worth of contracts.

The agreement, which replaced the old contract that expired Sept. 1, came on the eve of Wednesday's school opening and averted a rumored job action on the part of the teachers.

Neither side would disclose details of the agreement pending ratification by the union membership and the school committee.

Paul Phillips, president of the Quincy Education Association, said a meeting of the 820 members of the union would be held Tuesday, Sept. 17, at 3:15 p.m. at the Stirling (Cont'd On Page 28)

Moments Of Silence At 8 Fire Stations, Flags At Half Staff, Various Services

City Plans Solemn Sept. 11 Commemoration

The terrible day that has come to be known simply as "9/11" will be recalled in Quincy with flags at half staff and moments of silence at each of the city's eight fire stations.

"This day of remembrance is to honor those who lost their lives that horrific day," said Mayor William Phelan.

"It is to honor those who displayed great strength and courage to help their fellow Americans.

"It is to honor our country, which suffered a tremendous blow, yet stood strong and united."

City Council President Daniel Raymondi said he was planning to ask the Council last Tuesday to declare Sept. 11 Remembrance Day in Quincy.

The first-year anniversary of the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center, the Pentagon and in Pennsylvania will be held Wednesday, Sept. 11, in conjunction with the Fire Chiefs' Association of Massachusetts and the Professional Fire Fighters of Massachusetts.

Fire apparatus will be rolled out to the apron of each station in Quincy at 9:45 a.m., the time the first hijacked airplane crashed into the World Trade Center tower.

Twenty minutes later, at 10:05 a.m., the moment the first tower collapsed, there will be as simultaneous ring (Cont'd On Page 17)

Owners Retiring

Ryder's Shop Closing

An old familiar face is leaving Quincy Square.

Charlie Ryder and his wife, Cindy, proprietors of Ryder's Home Decor & More Shop, 1489 Hancock St., are retiring Oct. 31 after 26 years in business.

The going out of business sale began Tuesday.

"I'll do a little fishing, a little boating, some community service," he said. "That's quite a change from the 80-hour week we worked between us."

"The saddest thing is that I was not able to find anyone to buy the business. No one wanted to invest in Quincy Square.

"The Square is going through a transition now. Retailers need other retailers around them. As soon as the residential people arrive, it will turn around."

Ryder is a former president of the Quincy Center Business & Professional Association.

He founded his business in 1976 after his then-employer, W. T. Grant Co., folded its tent.

Now, 26 years later, at the age of 66, Charlie Ryder is folding a tent of his own.

Roy LaMotte, Jr. To Assume Duties Sept. 9

Phelan Names Traffic Engineer

Mayor William Phelan has appointed Newton's traffic engineer as Quincy's new traffic engineer.

Roy C. LaMotte, Jr. will be sworn in by Phelan and assume his duties Sept. 9.

LaMotte, traffic engineer in Newton for the past 17 years, succeeds Jack Gillon who retired in July.

In Newton, with a population comparable to Quincy's, Phelan noted LaMotte managed all facets of the traffic department, including field crews, traffic engineering personnel and the administration of a $2 million budget.

He also designed short and long range programs for the resolution of traffic problems and developed public policy programs including a traffic claiming system for community requests.

"I am thrilled to have someone of Mr. LaMotte's caliber come aboard as the city's new traffic engineer," Phelan said. "I look forward to working with him to achieve Quincy's short and long term traffic objectives."

Prior to 1985, LaMotte served as the city traffic engineer for Newport, R.I., and the regional traffic engineer for the Central Massachusetts Regional Planning Commission.

LaMotte has a Bachelor of Science in civil engineering from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst and co-authored "Creating a Municipal GIS Transportation System" in 1991.

He lives in Blackstone with his wife, Jeanne, and their three children, ages 16, 14 and 11.

QHS Seniors Receive Computer Instruction

Seventeen senior residents of Quincy Housing Authority housing in Germantown received beginner's computer training last month in the QHA's Family Resource and Development Center's computer lab.

The two training classes were offered by the QHA in partnership with the Massachusetts School of Information Technology (Mass Info Tech).

The 17 residents received instruction on using a mouse, simple movement around the keyboard and an introduction to the world of e-mail and the Internet.

Computer instructor Debra Rathel of Mass Info Tech provided the training with individual assistance from the QHA Support Services staff. The computer classroom has 16 work stations with Windows 98.

Rathel teaches a daily class on Microsoft business applications and job readiness assistance for QHA residents.

In her four years on the job, she said, 80 per cent of her graduates have gone on to obtain jobs in the business world.

Community Policeman Appointed For Ward 5

Ward 5, which contains two major business districts, two T stations and six schools, finally has obtained a community police officer of its own.

City Councillor Doug Gutro hailed the appointment of Officer Ralph Radzevich as "great news... something I have been advocating for since I was elected."

Until Police Chief William Falco assigned Radzevich to the post, Ward 5 was the only one of Quincy's six wards without a community police presence.

"Community policing has proven to be a necessary and effective tool in the city's crime prevention toolbox and with this announcement, Quincy now has city-wide community police coverage," said Gutro.

Officer Radzevich has been in community policing since its inception and has done a fine job. He works well with people of all ages and has been a positive influence on the people with whom he has worked."

Gutro said the decision to name a community police officer for Ward 5 made sense because "my ward is literally in the center of the city with activity around the clock."

It contains the Quincy Center and Wollaston business districts, the Quincy Center and Wollaston MBTA stations as well as Quincy High, Central Middle, Beechwood Knoll Schools, Quincy College, Eastern Nazarene College and Woodward School.

Also within Ward 5 borders are the historic sites — the Adams Mansion, the Dorothy Quincy Homestead, Adams Academy and the Josiah Quincy House — and the recreation areas of Wollaston Beach and Merrymount Park.

"Earlier this year," said Gutro, "I hosted meetings to create a neighborhood watch, update residents of vandalism at one of our school buildings and increase safeguards at Quincy banks."

"The addition of a community police presence dedicated to our ward and issues like these will sharpen our focus on problem areas, build relationships with neighbors, businesses and youth, and step up crime prevention efforts in this part of the city."

Tax Free Workshop Offered To Chinese Businessmen

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) and FleetBoston Financial's North Quincy Branch will hold a free workshop to help Chinese-speaking business-owners cope with federal tax requirements.

The two-part workshop, presented in Mandarin with Cantonese interpretation, will be held Tuesday, Sept.

10, and Tuesday, Sept. 17, from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. at FleetBank, 440 Hancock St., North Quincy.

"We want to offer free advice on a range of business tax issues in English, as well as their native language," said Elise Sickels, the Asian-American senior tax specialist who is organizing the workshop.

The first session will provide an overview of different business entities, their reporting requirements, keeping track of income and expenses and how to take advantage of the tax deductions available.

The second session will focus on employee vs. independent contractor issues, employment tax, retirement plans for small business owners and special incentives for Boston Empowerment Zone businesses.

Pre-registration is encouraged. Participant's name, address and phone number should be mailed to Ms. Ji Li, FleetBoston Financial, Mail Stop MA DE B02229, 440 Hancock St. North Quincy, MA 02171 or call Ms. Ji Li at 617-773-8100.

Registration information will be kept confidential.

Police Allegedly Drinking After Hours Board Delays Penalty On WaterWorks Incident

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

After a near three-hour hearing Tuesday, the License Board delayed and continued until Sept. 24 a decision on a penalty for a violation at WaterWorks in Marina Bay.

Lt. Anthony DiBona and Lt. John Duggan testified that an anonymous letter received by the Police Department alleged that police officers were drinking June 9-10 after hours resulting in an investigation that is still ongoing.

Acting Police Chief William Falco made a motion to charge Waterworks for allowing police officers to take possession of alcohol and consuming alcohol after closing hours, the night of June 9-10.

The board voted 4 to 1 in favor of the motion with Walter White, Director of Inspectional Services dissenting. He said the owner should not be penalized for something the police officers allegedly did.
